BIOGRAPHY

Ruth Hines Temple was born in Warren County, Kentucky on 1899 December 29 to Adalaska L. and Mary Camilla (Miller) Temple. The couple had one other daughter, Mary Hortense Temple (1885-1886), that died at 15 months of age from "congestion of the brain." Mr. Temple operated a dry goods store called The Busy Bee at 136 Main Street in Bowling Green, and the family lived above the establishment. From an early age, Ruth exhibited an artistic ability which was encouraged by her mother. She graduated as salutatorian from Bowling Green High School in 1919. In 1923 she received her A.B. degree from Virginia's Randolph-Macon Woman's College and her M.A. in Art Education from Peabody College in Nashville in 1938. During the interim between studies, Temple taught one year at Leitchfield High School, traveled abroad and attended the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts for a summer. She also toured the American South on a fellowship from Peabody.

After her father's death in 1929, Temple and her mother sold the store and had a house built at 639 East 13th Street which they called "Pine and Holly." During the Depression, Ruth made some money as a free-lance graphic designer; she also worked for a period as a librarian at the Bowling Green Business University. In 1942 Temple accepted a position as art supervisor with the Western Kentucky State Teachers College training school. In 1946 she was promoted to head of the college's art department remaining there until her retirement in 1966. During her tenure, the department's faculty grew from two to fourteen.

Temple was active in many civic organizations, particularly the XX Literary Club, the Landmark Association, the Players Guild, the Arts Club of Louisville, as well as numerous professional organizations. In addition, Ruth was a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church in Bowling Green. She traveled extensively in Europe, which benefitted her art history lectures. Ruth Hines Temple died October 18, 2001 in Bowling Green and is buried in Fairview Cemetery.

COLLECTION NOTES

This collection was assembled by Ruth Hines Temple. The bulk of the collection documents her life and career as an art professor and administrator. It also includes information about various members of the Temple family who hailed from Warren County, Kentucky, particularly the siblings of Ruth's father, Adalaska L. Temple.

Of particular interest is the correspondence between Ruth Hines Temple and her mother Mary Camilla (Miller) Temple, while Ruth attended Randolph Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Virginia from 1919-1923. Ruth describes in detail the educational and social pursuits of a young woman attending a female college in the 1920s. She also records information about institutional events and local happenings in Lynchburg. The mother-daughter duo wrote each other weekly, and sometimes several times per week. On occasion, she also writes her father and other Bowling Green friends. Most of the remaining correspondence is strictly family related. One exceptional letter written to Mary Temple by her sister-in-law, Ellen (Temple) Parker, described the Galveston Hurricane of 1900; it can be found amongst family correspondence in Box 1, Folder 2.

The collection also documents a woman's efforts to make a living during the Great Depression. Ruth had an endless number of money-making ideas but did not have the resources to implement them. She was able to make some money drawing graphic illustrations, chiefly for newspaper ads, before she was hired as an art instructor at Western's Training School. Because of her interest in art, Miss Temple's collection contains a number of drawings, cartoons and small watercolor paintings. Most of this work is found in Box 13. In the late-1930s, Temple was asked to serve on a committee to investigate implementation of municipal planning and zoning in Bowling Green. She investigated the subject thoroughly resulting in extensive research notes and printed material found in Box 9.
