BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

William Shakespeare Hays (19 July 1837-23 July 1907) was born in Louisville, Kentucky, and resided most of his life in that city. Hugh Hays, his father and a native Pennsylvanian, migrated to Louisville in 1832 where he married Martha Richardson. Will showed signs of musical talent at an early age and took a few violin lessons, but that seems to have been all of the musical training that he received. During 1856 and 1857, Will attended colleges in Hanover, Indiana; Clarksville, Tennessee; and Georgetown, Kentucky. While at Georgetown, he became known as the "boy poet." His first published song was "Little Ones at Home," which was written while he was at Hanover. This incident ignited a prolific writing career which resulted in Hays penning innumerable poems and newspaper columns in addition to approximately five hundred songs. He signed his manuscripts as "Will S. Hays." Some of his poetry was written to his future wife, Belle McCullough of Louisville. They were married in 1865.

Hays always had a love for the river, and his newspaper columns were based on river happenings and occurrences. During the Civil War, he commanded a river transport on the Mississippi, between Vicksburg and New Orleans. He continued to work on riverboats periodically during the sixties and the early seventies.

Hays began his newspaper work in Louisville in the late 1850s and maintained a position with the Democrat, and later, with the Courier-Journal and Times until his death. He served as marine editor for several years.

When he died in 1907, he was survived by his wife and two children, Dr. Samuel Brown Hays (1878-1933), and Mattie Belle Hays [Mrs. Fauche Warren Samuel] (1868-1947).

COLLECTION NOTE

The correspondence of Hays is comprised mainly of his letters to Belle McCullough, his future wife, written during the years of 1863 to 1866. Also, there is a diary entitled "My Leisure Moments to Belle," written by Hays during this same period while residing in Nashville, Tennessee. A few letters to Mattie Belle Hays Samuel and to Samuel Brown Hays constitute the Hays family letters. Manuscript poems, songs (chiefly lyrics), and newspaper columns of Hays, with accompanying typed and manuscript copies, are included. There are royalty and copyright contracts as well as lists of Hays' works. Many newspaper clippings of Hays' various endeavors are included, too. Additionally, there is a folder of George Grise's correspondence from 1947 to 1949, which he collected while researching and writing his thesis on Hays.

For additional information about Hays' musical compositions, consult the sheet music collection in the Kentucky Library.
