BIOGRAPHY

Pearl Eagle (Carter) Pace was born in Tompkinsville, Monroe County, Kentucky on January 25, 1896, the daughter of James Clark Carter, Sr. and Idru (Tucker) Carter. She received her public education locally, graduating in 1915. Pace taught in two elementary schools in Monroe County, Kentucky, then furthered her education in 1917 at Western Kentucky State Normal School in Bowling Green, Kentucky. From 1917 to 1918 she was a public school teacher in the Cumberland County community of Marrowbone.

Pace married Stanley Dan Pace of Waterview, Cumberland County, Kentucky on December 24, 1917, and they resided in Burkesville, Kentucky most of their married life. They had three children: Patricia Nell "Patty" born February 2, 1919, who married Maurice Clifton "Doc" Keen, Stanley Carter born February 15, 1921, who married Elaine Marilyn Cutchall, and Mary Elizabeth "Molly" born June 22, 1924, who married Kenneth Monroe Carr.

Pace began her business career as a bookkeeper in 1924, and in 1940 became secretary-treasurer of the Cumberland Construction Company, Monroe-Cumberland Crushed Stone Company, and Cumberland Crushed Stone Company. She assumed the presidency of these family-owned businesses in 1943. Pace was a managing agent for Ashland Oil Company in Monroe, Clinton and Adair Counties, Kentucky.

In 1938, Pace achieved an outstanding goal -- that of being the first woman in Kentucky to be elected to a four-year term as sheriff. Serving as Cumberland County sheriff from 1938 to 1941, she replaced her husband who could not legally succeed himself.

Stanley was Cumberland County Democratic Executive Committee Chairman for many years, while Pearl ran on the Republican ticket. After her husband was killed in a traffic accident in 1940, she became active in the Republican Party. Pace served as secretary of the Cumberland County Republican Committee and then as chairman and vice-chairman of the Ninth Congressional District for four years. Additionally, she was a nine year member of the Republican State Central Committee, and Republican National Committeewoman for Kentucky from 1948 to 1957.

Pace was an active campaigner in the 1952 election of Dwight D. Eisenhower. In December 1953, Eisenhower appointed Pace to the War Claims Commission, which became the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission in July 1954. She attained chairmanship of the Commission in December 1959, thereby becoming the second-ranking woman in the Eisenhower Administration. Pace resigned in the spring of 1961, following John F. Kennedy's election in November 1960.

Active membership in many religious, civic, political and professional organizations in Kentucky and Washington, D.C. occupied much of Pace's time. During the 1940s, she was chairman of the Civil Works Administration, later named the Works Progress Administration, in Cumberland County, and filled the position of chairman for the Cumberland County Federal Relief Association Advisory Committee for a time. Pace also served on the Advisory Committee of the Kentucky Republican Women's Club and as governor of the Eighth District. From 1948 to 1950, Pace was a board member of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, serving as Department Coordinator. Other memberships held included: Advisory Board of the American Cancer Society of Kentucky; Board of Crippled Children's Bureau; National Advisory Board for Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, serving as one of its Executive Board's directors; and the Welcome to Washington Club, of which she was a founding Co-Chairman of the Evening Group. Furthermore, Pace served on the State Board of Kentucky Crushed Stone Association and the Board of the National Limestone Institute and its legislative committee. She spoke often at various meetings and conventions throughout the nation.

Pace suffered several illnesses throughout the years; and in March 1962, she had a debilitating stroke. Yet after recuperating, she continued to participate in limited activities and enjoyed traveling. Pace died on January 14, 1970 and was interred in the Pace-Allen Cemetery near Grider in Cumberland County, Kentucky.

THE COLLECTION

The collection is organized primarily in chronological order within the areas of personal, professional, civic and political concerns.

Her personal materials include data from her days as Cumberland County sheriff as well as correspondence with family and friends. Correspondence and other items focus on Stanley Carter Pace's military career and his time as a prisoner of war in Europe during World War II.

Additional personal financial data include ledgers, correspondence, and household receipts. Personal travel and entertainment materials include tourist information, restaurant menus, stage bills, and programs. Then too, there are photographs of Pace, family, friends, and associates, and many Christmas and other greeting cards.

Business papers focus on Pace's tenure as sheriff and her involvement in the many family businesses in Cumberland County and the surrounding area.

Materials relating to her civic involvement include educational, philanthropic and social committee and club activities in Kentucky and Washington, D.C.

Her political days are documented from that of sheriff to Kentucky Republican National Committeewoman to chairmanship of the U. S. Foreign Claims Settlement Commission to her concern for the role of women in politics. Pace did much public speaking, and her speeches --with associated data -- are included, as well as documentation of her service on boards and committees. White House correspondence and invitations, in addition to other governmental-related materials on both the local, state, and national levels are also available.
