RESOLUTION 79-14

SUBJECT Housing Improvements Research

DATE 1/22/80

STATUS PASSED

Whereas, the available married housing has declined over the past several years and the need for such housing has been considered
Whereas, the feelings toward on-campus housing are varied among the student body (i.e. Resolution 78-2 passed by only one vote in Congress and failed in IBC); however, not detracting from the need for future studies and research to be done in this area by the Administration, and
Whereas, constant communications with Western's benchmark institutions should be expanded in order to find possible solutions to the above problems and others that might be of interest to the student body,
Therefore, be it resolved that Western Kentucky University take a more active role in researching the possibilities and feasibility of improving the existing housing situations, along with a greater emphasis placed on possible changes in various trends,
Furthermore, that the action come by way of the University Housing Committee and the University Office of Student Affairs which includes the Housing Office,
Also let it be emphasized that presently the University Housing Office does not have the manpower to facilitate such research and development, thus creating a need for other arrangements within the Office of Student Affairs.

Resolution 79-14
Housing Improvements Research
Introduced 1/22/80

Status PASSED Unanimously

Whereas, the available married housing has declined over the past several years from a level which had already been considered deficient, and

Whereas, the feelings toward co-ed housing are varied among the student body (i.e. Resolution 79-9 passed by only one vote in Congress and failed in IHC); however, not detracting from the need for future studies and research to be done in this area by the Administration, and

Whereas, with the various problems with student organizations in obtaining proper zoning for off-campus housing facilities and other related problems, and

Whereas, existing facilities (i.e. dorms) should be continually reviewed for possible alterations which might increase their desirability by the students, especially in the wake of possible enrollment declines, and

Whereas, constant communications with Western's benchmark institutions should be expanded in order to find possible solutions to the above problems and others that might be of interest to the student body,

Therefore, be it resolved that Western Kentucky University take a more active role in researching the possibilities and feasibility of improving the existing housing situations, along with a greater emphasis placed on possible changes in various trends.

Furthermore, that the action come by way of the University Housing Committee and the University Office of Student Affairs which includes the Housing Office.

Also, let it be emphasized that presently the University Housing Office does not have the manpower to facilitate such research and development, thus creating a need for other arrangements within the Office of Student Affairs.
