BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Julian Byrn Goodman was born in Glasgow, Kentucky on 1 May 1922, the son of Charles Austin Goodman and Clara (Franklin) Goodman. After graduating from high school, Goodman matriculated at Western Kentucky University in 1939 and took classes until 1943. He later received a Bachelor's of Arts degree in economics from George Washington University in 1948. He started his journalism career as a reporter working at $3 a week for The Glasgow Daily Times. After a stint in the Army, he moved in 1945 to Washington, where he met William McAndrew, the head of NBC News, who hired him for the night news desk, to replace David Brinkley. As an executive in the Washington bureau, Goodman later became a strong advocate for Mr. Brinkley, pressing NBC News to pair him with Chet Huntley to anchor the 1956 Democratic and Republican conventions. The two went on to fame anchoring the network's nightly news together for more than a decade. Goodman often joked that freeing Mr. Brinkley from the night desk had been his greatest contribution to journalism. Goodman produced the second Nixon-Kennedy debate in 1960 in Washington, in an NBC studio. Mr. Goodman had a reputation for being self-effacing and never asking for a promotion or a raise.

Goodman, who took early retirement from NBC on May 31, 1979, served the company for 34 years in a number of important posts. He began as a news writer; became Director of News in Washington; Executive Vice President of NBC News based in New York; then President and Chairman of NBC. He was Chairman of the Board of NBC from 1974 to 1978 and from 1966 to 1974 he was President of NBC. During his presidency he negotiated a $1 million contract for Johnny Carson to continue as host of The Tonight Show. In addition to his duties at NBC, Goodman served on the Board of Directors at RCA, Gannett Company, Inc., McDonnell Douglas Corporation, and the Larchmont, New York, Federal Savings & Loan Association.

His distinguished service in the field of broadcast journalism earned him many awards and honors. In 1976 he received broadcasting's most prestigious individual honor, the National Association of Broadcasters' Distinguished Service Award as a "broadcast journalist, program innovator and industry leader." The previous year he was elected to the Hall of Fame of the New York Chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi. In 1972 the American Association of State Colleges and Universities inaugurated the Distinguished Alumni Award.

Julian Goodman was the second recipient of the AASCU award, following former President Lyndon B. Johnson. In 1974, he was honored with a George Foster Peabody award for his "outstanding work in the area of First Amendment rights and privileges for broadcasting." A year earlier he received the Paul White Memorial Award from the International Conference of Radio and Television News Directors. The International Radio and Television Society awarded Goodman its highest honor in 1972—the Gold Medal—for his achievements in, and contributions to, broadcasting.

Goodman was known as an ardent supporter of first amendment rights and tried to dismantle the Fairness Doctrine. He engaged in a war of words with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who accused the news media of biased coverage of the Vietnam War. Mr. Goodman responded, "Evidently he would prefer a different kind of television reporting—one that would be subservient to whatever group was in authority at the time." He later sparred with the Nixon speechwriter Patrick J. Buchanan, who said the networks should be decentralized, but Mr. Goodman called that "dangerous thinking." And he resisted the administration when it threatened to challenge broadcast licenses if network news divisions did not give President Richard M. Nixon what it considered unbiased—that is, more favorable—coverage. Subsequently Goodman was included on the White House "opponents" list by the Nixon administration.

Goodman was married to Betty Davis, who was also from Kentucky. Together they had four children, John, Jeffrey, Gregory, and Julie. Goodman died on 2 July 2012 at his home in Juno Beach, Florida at the age of 90 from kidney failure, and he was cremated.

COLLECTION NOTE

This collection contains textual and audio/visual material. The textual materials consists chiefly of Goodman's production memoranda (1953-1966) written when he worked as manager of NBC News and Special Events and press releases and speeches of Goodman issued by his office from 1966 to 1979. Most of the speeches relate to the influence of television in American culture and announcements of NBC programming (Box 1). Box 2 contains a single 16mm film of Goodman giving a speech to the Canadian Association of Broadcaster in Montreal on 21 April 1971. Box 2 also contains several small colored portrait photographs of Goodman as well as a few black-and-white photographs from his college days in Bowling Green, Kentucky. Box 3 contains Goodman speeches on reel-to-reel tape. Box 4 contains special printings of Goodman's speeches; these manuscripts deal chiefly with professional issues. Boxes 5 and 6 contain films of speeches and interviews given by Goodman. Box 6 includes more Goodman speeches and interviews on reel-to-reel tape, a broadside containing a Goodman quote, and a deluxe edition of a WKU commencement address delivered by Goodman in 1966. Box 7 includes several 16mm films of Goodman speeches. Box 8 consists of a high band color film of the Eleventh Annual KMTV Awards filmed by KMTV, Channel 3, in Omaha, Nebraska.

The film in this collection (in various format) has not been reformatted or digitized and thus is not presently usable for research.
