CARROLLTON, KENTUCKY - A RESOURCE PROFILE

Carrollton, county seat of Carroll County, is located in the Outer Blue Grass Region in northern Kentucky along the Ohio River. A 1975 All Kentucky City, Carrollton is only 4 miles northwest of Interstate 71. Carrollton's location between Louisville, Kentucky, and Cincinnati, Ohio, and along the Ohio River offers opportunity for many recreational activities. Carrollton is 50 miles northeast of Louisville, 55 miles southwest of Cincinnati, and 72 miles northwest of Lexington, Kentucky.

Carrollton had a 1973 estimated population of 3,890. Carroll County, with a total land area of 130 square miles, had an estimated 1974 population of 8,600.

The Economic Framework

The total number of Carroll County residents employed in 1974 averaged 3,700, including 775 in agriculture and 610 in government. Manufacturing employers in the county reported 1,280 workers; trade and services firms employed 660. Major industrial products are: metallo organic chemicals, industrial coatings, aluminum appliance trim, aluminum extrusions, wood dinette sets, metal collapsible tubes, and silicones.

Total unemployment in Carroll County averaged 3.1 percent of the labor force in 1974.

Per capita personal income in the county in 1973 was $4,019, an increase of 47.7 percent since 1969.

The Carrollton labor market area includes Carroll County, the four adjoining Kentucky counties, and Jefferson and Switzerland counties in Indiana. The total number of residents in the Kentucky portion of the labor market area employed in 1974 averaged 15,530, including 3,670 in agriculture and 2,580 in government. Manufacturing employers in the Kentucky portion of the labor market area reported 2,210 workers; trade and services firms employed 1,665.

Resources for Growth

1. There is a current estimated labor supply of 1,010 men and 1,460 women available for jobs in the Kentucky portion of the labor market area. In addition, 1,800 young men and 1,600 young women in this area will become 18 years of age by 1982 and potentially available for work. The current labor supply would be supplemented by the number of men and women in the nearby Indiana counties who are available for industrial jobs.

2. All aspects of transportation in the Carrollton area are good. The Carrollton Railroad, a subsidiary of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, provides Carrollton with excellent freight service. Interstate 71 provides easy access to Louisville, Kentucky, and Cincinnati, Ohio; Carrollton is also served by U.S. 42 and Kentucky Highways 55 and 227. Seven truck lines serve Carrollton. Commercial air service is available at Louisville, Kentucky, and Cincinnati, Ohio. Water transportation potential for Carrollton is excellent due to its location at the confluence of the Kentucky and Ohio Rivers.

3. In Carrollton, electricity is provided by the Kentucky Utilities Company. In Carroll county, the Owen County Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation and the Shelby Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation provide electric power. Natural gas service is provided to Carrollton by the Carrollton Utilities, whose source of supply is the Texas Gas Transmission Corporation. Two distributors of propane and four distributors of distillate fuel oil service the Carrollton area.

4. One public school system serves Carroll County. Two universities, four senior colleges, and one community college are located within 55 miles of Carrollton.

The Carroll County Area Vocational Education Center, located in Carrollton, offers seven different course areas. The nearest state vocational-technical schools - the Northern Kentucky State Vocational-Technical School at Covington, 54 miles away, and the Jefferson State Vocational-Technical School at Jeffersontown, 52 miles away, provide vocational instruction in 21 and 17 occupational areas, respectively.

CARROLL COUNTY HISTORY

Carroll County is situated in northcentral Kentucky in the Blue Grass Region. Its territory was taken from Gallatin County in 1838, when it became Kentucky's eighty-seventh county. The county covers 130 square miles. Its surface is predominantly hilly, its soil fertile, and timber grows throughout its area. The Ohio River forms the northern boundary of the county, and the Kentucky River flows through the middle of the county. Carrollton, the county seat, is located at the point where the Kentucky River flows into the Ohio River.

The first man to visit the Carroll County area was James McBride, who came down the Ohio River as early as 1754. Some thirty-one years later a settlement was begun on the point at the confluence of the Kentucky and Ohio Rivers, but was destroyed in an Indian raid. A second blockhouse was built by Captain Ellison the next year, but was abandoned also because of marauding Indians. Not until 1789, when General Charles Scott built a third blockhouse and fortified the site was a permanent settlement assured. This blockhouse was occupied until 1792 when the town of Port William (present day Carrollton) was planned. Port William was incorporated in 1794.

Both Carroll County and Carrollton, the county seat, were named for Charles Carrollton of Carrollton, Maryland. He was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and out-lived all of the others who affixed their signatures to the document.

Carroll County's population increased from 5,526 in 1850 to a high of 9,825 in 1900. From 1900 the population slowly decreased to 7,978 in 1960, but rose again to 8,523 in 1970. In 1974, population of Carroll County was estimated at 8,600.

The total number of Carroll County residents employed in 1974 averaged 3,700, including 775 in agriculture and 610 in government. Manufacturing employers in the county reported 1,280 workers; trade and services firms employed 660. Largest among Carrollton's industrial plants are: M & T Chemicals, Inc.; Kawneer Company; Consolidated Aluminum Corporation; Butler Furniture Industries, Inc.; Dow Corning Corporation; and Teledyne Wirz.

Several important people have lived in Carroll County. General Percival Butler, a member of the family for whom Butler State Park was named, was a Revolutionary War soldier who was with Washington at Valley Forge, and later fought in the Battles of Monmouth and Yorktown. He migrated to Kentucky in 1792, settled first in present day Jessamine County, then after becoming adjutant-general of the state, moved to the mouth of the Kentucky River in 1796, and helped develop Port William into a thriving Ohio River town.

General William Orlando Butler, son of General Percival Butler, fought in the War of 1812 and in the Mexican War of 1846-48. In 1848, he succeeded General Winfield Scott in the Command of the Army in Mexico until a treaty of peace was signed. He was a losing candidate for the vice-presidency of the United States in 1848.
