BOWLING GREEN MAIN STREET PROJECT

On October 30, 1986 at a news conference in the State Capitol, Governor Martha Layne Collins announced the participants in the 1986 Kentucky Main Street Program. Administered by the Kentucky Heritage Council, this program will provide funding and/or technical assistance to 16 Kentucky cities.

The Kentucky Main Street Program is a comprehensive approach to revitalization of Kentucky's downtowns utilizing economic development and historic preservation. Prior to this year, the program focused on medium sized cities with populations of 10,000 to 60,000. The Governor's Main Street Program will allow adaptation to benefit many of Kentucky's smaller towns as demonstration cities.

The demonstration cities will receive a concentration of services including manager training, technical assistance, design assistance, and resource team visits. The cities selected were Brandenburg, Franklin, Harrodsburg, Prestonsburg, Princeton, and Springfield.

Bowling Green was one of 10 cities selected to receive a $10,000 matching grant and technical assistance to continue its very successful Main Street Program. Others chosen included Campbellsville, Covington, Danville, Georgetown, Henderson, Hopkinsville, Middlesboro, Shelbyville, and Somerset.
