Adairville Training School Yearbook, 1906-1907

Adairville, Kentucky

Submitted by Gail Jackson Miller, CG
425 Midcrest Drive
Bowling Green, KY 42101

Location:

This school is located at Adairville, KY forty miles north of Nashville, TN, and thirty miles southwest of Bowling Green, KY. It is the southern terminus of the Owensboro and Adairville branch of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad.

Adairville is a beautiful town situated in the rich agricultural district of southern KY, and is the highest point between Owensboro and Nashville. It is unsurpassed in its advantages of good water, pure air, and freedom from all local causes of disease.

The moral character of the people is seen in the fact that they support four churches, and they have recently gained a decided victory over intemperance, and all the saloons are now closed. The social life here would do credit to a much larger place, with the advantage of being free from the common vices of larger towns. The people are largely college bred, giving them culture and refinement in the highest degree.

Music:

The purpose of this Department is to give the pupil a thorough training in technique, to encourage a love and appreciation for good music, not merely to give the pupils a showy repertoire, but to make of them true musicians. Selections are given from the best composers of all periods, in connection with the standard etudes of all grades. The methods of instruction are modern, and are determined by the individual requirements of the pupil. Class lessons including Theory, Ear-training and Musical History will be taught without extra charge.

Recitals by the pupils will be given from time to time to accustom them to public performance and that they may acquire self-possession in playing.

Elocution:

"I believe that every man should train his voice and body under some system of elocution. First, for the health it affords; second, for its educational effects; third, for the advantage it gives a man over others for usefulness." - Rev. Charles Spurgeon.

In the study of elocution the development of the powers of each individual is of the highest importance. the intellect should be quickened, the imagination cultivated, the feelings deepened and guided. The course in elocution will include voice culture, physical culture and rendering. Throughout the course, special attention will be given to the literary analysis, that the student may be led to experience the thoughts and feelings of the author. The study of elocution means more than the ability to recite a few selections well. It is not a training for exhibition day, it is a training of all the agents of expression used in everyday life. It will give one the ability to stand before others and express in a natural, forcible, and entertaining manner what he has for them. It will give him an added power in whatever field his future work may be.

Requirements for graduation are three years' work in elocution and the first three years of the English course in the Academic Department or a course equivalent to that.

Obsolete Words

Submitted by Gail Miller, using as a reference Elizabethan Left-Overs in Allen County by Alford Paul Dalton, Western KY State Teachers College, 1936.

I have always been fascinated by what I considered the quaint words which my older paternal grandparents used. My dad was the youngest of their 6 children with my grandfather, Arthur Jackson, being born in 1891 in Hopkins Co., KY and my grandmother, Virgie (Steele) Jackson, being born in 1899 in Dekalb Co., TN. They both claimed to be of Scot-Irish descent.

Mr. Dalton has listed several of the words which I heard my own grandparents use. Even though his study attempts to show Elizabethan influences in his reference group in Allen County, many of the words obviously show up in rural settings in other areas. Listed are some of the words I have heard used.

Airish. An adjective used in referring to a cool, breezy condition of the atmosphere. From Scotland and Yorkshire, England. It's kindly airish this morning?

Peaked. An adjective from the dialect of Devonshire which means pale and ill-looking. You look peaked; are you feeling poorly?

Mammy and Pappy survive from English provincialism. They mean mother and father. My grandmother's parents were Mammy and Pappy.

Jaunt. A noun meaning little trip. My grandmother always used this word when she meant a little adventurous trip.

Gumption. From Scotland. It means bravery or spunk. If you had any gumption, you wouldn't let them other boys run over you.

Fizz. A variant of Old English feeze meaning a nervous state. What are you in such a fizz about?
