BARREN COUNTY KENTUCKY LUNATICS

Transcribed by Martha Powell Harrison from the Lunatic books in the Barren County Clerk's office. Some of the books transcribed had only a few entries; some contained more information than others. The date is when the case was presented to the Court. Sometimes the date wasn't given and the date of the jury's verdict was used. The handwriting was sometimes atrocious and some of the information had to be guessed.

FAMED GLASGOW ELOPMENT STIRS IMAGINATION

From the 100th anniversary edition of the Glasgow KY Times.

"Blow, ghost bugles - blow - set the wild echoes flying - echoes for a Civil War bridal pair who lived in this Glasgow home, whose enduring walls hold century old memories of the most stirring and dramatic wedding ever lined with local history, and whose bride was descendant of the most famous in all American history.

To consummate their love, this pair fled horseback across three states, over mountain and river and thru the smoke and dire of the Civil War's two opposing battle lines. But Cupid conquered all.

Where better to ponder on a safe and solid future than at the old Harbison place, built in 1831 on the Edmonton Road

Elopement continued:

It's time - trodden doorway has seen the joys and sorrows, the fortunes and vicissitudes of young love whose forebearers dared to mingle with blood times the aristocracy of the titled Englishman with that of the American aborigine chieftain and whose descendants gave noteworthy impetus to every advancing American frontier.

In a day when baffling problems not only confronted the community, the state and the nation, but also confronted the individual who wished to found a home and rear a family, this home was chosen as a comfortable, safe and prosperous place to live, rear a large family and enjoy the fruits of man's labor.

The bride of the bygone day was the pampered southern belle of Virginia plantation. Born in 1845, she was christened with a dozen names in true old Southern tradition, but there was room for only five so they were set down as Lantha Frances Josephine Olivia Pocahuntas Phelps. She was called "Pink" for short. Although there was an English castle, too, in her background, Pink always was proud to state that she was a true descendant of Princess Pocahuntas, daughter of the mighty Powhatan, chief of some thirty Indian Tribes. No story is more familiar than that in which Pocahuntas saved the life of Captain John Smith in 1607 and prevented the destruction of Jamestown by warning the whites, unless it is the story of her marriage to John Rolfe, in 1614, after which he took her back to his home in England, where she was graciously received at the Court of King James. Pink Phelps long straight black hair, broad shoulders, high cheek bones, slightly curved nose and erect carriage were all characteristics of her proud Indian lineage.

The groom was named George Washington Hinkle, born in Cumberland County, Ky., in 1838, where he spent his early life. Receiving a good education, as a young man he went to Nevada, then a young, new frontier. There he enlisted in the Confederate Army as an officer of Calvary, while his father at home joined the Union Army. Such was the sharp division served this romance well. Young Phelps was severely wounded in Missouri and was retired from active service, but he found his way back to Kentucky and saw special service with Morgan's Men during the remainder of the war.

And so it was that he went to Virginia and fell in love at first sight. This young Confederate soldier was observed shying around the Phelps mansion, trying to meet and make dates with the slim, erect, dark haired, blue eyes heiress to the lands and slaves of the plantation.

But among old Virginia families, such an affair just could not be. This unknown soldier, Confederate tho he was, had nothing but a courteous manner and a fetching smile to recommend him. Nothing was known of his family connections back in Kentucky, his worldly fortunes or even his moral stability. So he could not be considered as a suitor for the hand of Lantha Frances Josephine Olivia Pocahuntas Phelps.

But like many other, he found a way. Pink had a slave, Negro Sam, whose sole duty was to care for and protect her. To Sam, young Phelps passed a few coins and then the love notes began to reach their destination and secret rendezvous were arranged. When Pink pled for parental acceptance, the answer was a stern and final "No!" and she was hustled off to a select girls school, and the slave, Sam, sent to the vicinity to guard her and copy with any emergency.

Elopement continued:

Weeks and months passed, Pink languished in health and studies. Then one night, Sam brought her a note. "Be ready to elope Monday night at 2 a.m. Ladder at balcony window. Take light baggage for swift get-away on horses. George."

Thru the night she listened, until the tap of light gravel on her window told her the time had come. With throbbing heart she crept over the sill and down the ladder, into the arms of her sweetheart soldier, who rushed her thru the wooded path where horses were hidden, one with side saddle, and they were away in the darkness.

Not a word was spoken until they were miles away from the school - there was only the steady thud of horse's hoof, many besides their own steeds. Finally daring to look around, she discovered that George was in civilian clothes and surrounded by a Calvary escort of UNION soldiers! She could hardly believe her eyes. Then George explained. "These are friends of mine, neighbors back in Kentucky before war was declared. General Buell's men are scattered all over this country. As a Confederate soldier my life would be worthless if I were caught. These boys will help us thru the Yankee-occupied territory and in two days we can reach Tennessee where a preacher will marry us."

It seemed fantastic to a girl reared in the south that such a plan could succeed. Surely they would be captured by the Union soldiers. But Pink wasn't turning back. She could only pray they would not be arrested as Confederate spies and made to suffer the dreadful consequences.

As the day began to dawn, she thought of poor old Sam and his surprise and humiliation at having failed in his duty and lost his precious lamb, Miss Pink. Discerning her thought, George said, "now Pink, look way behind you." Turning again, she saw another figure some distance behind, nodding for want of sleep and slumped forward on the faithful horse that was finding its way without guidance. No doubt about it - it was loyal Sam!

The whole troop journeyed over the rough roads and trails across a pass in the Cumberland Mountains. At last, crossing into Kentucky they dropped down to the Cumberland River and forded it. They were fed in friendly mountain home, all along the way.

It was about noon of the second day that things really happened. They were getting into territory held by the Confederate Army, and utmost care had to be taken to avoid actual contact with outposts, and guards because of their Union escort. Suddenly they were halted by a band of men in gray uniforms, who demanded explanation of the Union soldiers in the party. It was explained that George was a Confederate soldier and the Union soldiers were his boyhood friends, helping him and bride-to-be out of enemy territory and away from parental wrath.

The romance apparently appealed to Morgan's Men, for so they were! They gallantly ordered the Union troops back from where they came, and from then on it was truly a triumphant wedding party. General Morgan's Men increased in number as they rode down the Cumberland River, fording it time and again, until the accompany party grew to one hundred men! As the company advanced with bugles sounding, trumpets blaring and drums rolling, a gala day was proclaimed by Captain Smith, commanding these soldiers. Popular songs of the day rang thru the hills and valleys, topped, of course, by "Way Down South in Dixie," until are were hoarse with singing and shouting.

Eventually the party crossed over into Tennessee and on New Year's Eve the wedding took place with the entire company of soldiers as witnesses. A Methodist minister performed the ceremony in which George Washington Hinkle and Lantha Frances Josephine Olivia Pocahuntas Phelps were married. A huge dinner was served and revelry of the soldiers followed late into the night. They returned to the Hinkle home in Cumberland County for the duration of the war and moved a short time afterward to Barren County, settling first near Hiseville. In a couple of years they bought the Harbison home to settle permanently and their family. They also bought a two story brick building on the Glasgow Square, part of lot 54 on which the Glasgow National Store now stands. Here George Hinkle made and lost a fortune.

But a home is never held by four walls. There were still many new frontiers and it took only courage to try them again. They cattle ranched in Missouri ... homesteaded and wheat ranched in Oregon, then joined the covered wagon train on to Idaho, where they gold mined, ranched and furnished from their many stalwart sons, doctors, teachers, journalists and lawyers who made their imprint on all this new country.

(This moving story is condensed from the memoirs of Walter B. Hinkle, one of these who were born in this old home,. In 1950, he was the first of the family to return, after seventy years. Under the hospitable guidance of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Coffman, he found all of the landmarks associated with the family's stay here, and returned home to write his delightful memoirs.)

AND, SPEAKING OF LOVE

Contributed by Sandi Gorin

In the story above, love somehow always finds a way and couples in the Civil War era found interesting ways to getting messages to each other! There appears to have been a whole network of codes used which allowed those in love to communicate with each other secretly.

The Language of the Handkerchief was well known and could also apply to a delicate fan.

Drawing across the lips - Desirous of an acquaintance.

Drawing across the eyes - I am sorry.

Taking it by the center - You are too willing.

Dropping - We will be friends.

Twirling in both hands - Indifference.

Drawing it across the cheek - I love you.

Drawing through the hands - I hate you.

Letting it rest on the right cheek - Yes.

Letting it rest on the left cheek - No.

Twirling it in the left hand - I wish to be rid of you.

Twirling it in the right hand - I love another.

And, Speaking of Love continued:

Folding it - I wish to speak with you.
Flirting it over the right shoulder - Follow me.
Opposite corners in both hands - Wait for me.
Drawing across the forehead - We are watched.
Lifting it to the right ear - You have changed.
Letting it remain on the eyes - You are cruel.
Winding around fore-finger - I am engaged.
Winding around third finger - I am married.
Putting it in the pocket - No more at present.
Crumpling up in the hand - I am impatient.
Tying a knot in one corner - Don't tell too much.
Tying a knot in the middle - There will be trouble; or there are other eyes upon you.
Twisting and then doubling - Let us go together.
Flirting it over the left shoulder - You have deceived me.
Tossing it up and catching it in both hands- Come at once.
Touching right eye twice - Repeat your last signal.
Worn in the belt - Bound to you.
Biting it - I am very angry with you.
Shaking it slightly - You are a flirt.
Holding up, and then dropping in lap - Forgive me.
Folding and then unfolding it - I have something to tell you. Doubling and striking left hand with it - Don't you dare.
Two distinct shakes - Stay where you are.
Clasping it to the heart - I love you to distraction.
Waving from both hands - Signal of distress-Come and help me.
Holding it up without waving - I wait for you,
Touching the lips, and then waving - Good by, dear.
Twisting it around the wrist - I would kiss you if I dared.
Placing it under the arm (at armpit) - I'll dance with you; I'll go home with you; I'll be with you. [This signal, in fact, implies very cordial or close relations of the parties, and as it is easily given in assemblies without attracting attention, is now used freely to make appointments.]

The Language of the Cane was used by the gents and sent messages too!

Throwing it around the fingers in the left hand - I wish to speak to you; or, let me meet you.
Throwing it around the fingers of the right hand - Desire an acquaintance; or, who is he or she?
Putting the head in the mouth - I love you.
Knocking it with great force on the ground- I hate you; or, I hate him or her.
Holding it top and bottom in both hands - Wait for me.
Putting it on the left shoulder - I am engaged.
Putting it on the right shoulder - Follow me.
Dragging it behind, on the ground - We will be friends.
Handing it to a person by the lower end - I will accept you. Handing it to a person by the head - I reject you.
Holding it in both hands and bending it - I love another.
Holding it bottom upward, in front of you - My heart is thine.

Holding it both hands across the shoulders- Look at me.

And finally, the language of the finger-ring:

"In case of a gentleman wishing to marry -literally in the market with his heart - he wears a plain or chased gold ring upon the first finger of the left (or heart) hand.

When success attends his suit, and he is actually engaged, the ring passes to the second finger.

After marriage it passes to the third finger.

If, however, the gent desires to tell the fair ones that he not only is not "in the market," but he does not design to marry at all, he wears the signet upon his little finger, and all ladies may understand that he is out of their reach!

With the fair sex the "laws of the rings" are:

A plain or chased gold ring on the little finger of the right hand, implies "not engaged," or in plainer words, "ready for proposals, sealed or otherwise."

When engaged, the ring passes to the second finger of the right hand.

When married, the third finger receives it.

Now the fair one proposes to defy all siege of her heart, she places the rings on her first and fourth finger - one on each like two charms to keep away the tempter. It is somewhat singular that this disposition of rings is rare!"

EARLY HOMES OF GLASGOW AND BARREN COUNTY

The house on East Washington Street at the corner of Broadway, was the home of Dr. Wilson and his wife, "Aunt Kitty." Above the front door, from the middle of a green oval-shaped shutter, was the face of a lion, some eight to ten inches in length, molded in Terra Cotta, which was the terror of many a children's heart; and many have walked around the block rather than pass it. This is one of the old houses. M. S. Reynolds was married in this house in 1830; it as for several years the home of Dr. Joseph S. Leech.

The house occupied by Brice Leech was the home of Hezekiah Nuckols, afterwards of his son, Col. Joseph P. Nuckols. There is an old brick house on East Main, near the Kentucky Utilities Plant, set back some distance from the street, which was the home of “Uncle Tom” and “Aunt Sally” Jones, loved by the whole community; Obediah Curd also resided there, and later Mrs. Elias Porter, mother of Mrs. Fannie Porter Dickey, the compiler of “Blades of Bluegrass.” On the same street on corner of Lewis, where there is now a filling station, was the home of William Grinstead. Here grew to manhood Dr. Robert (Bob) Grinstead, James Grinstead who became a leading wholesale merchant of Louisville, and was Mayor of the same city about 1900, and William Grinstead, Jr. who was an educator of no mean ability. He was Principal of the Danville City Schools for a number of years.

The William Grinstead home on corner of Lewis Street, referred to previously, was also the home of Dr. J. J. Jepson. Rev. Caleb Sewell made his home here during the year of 1860; his daughter Anna born here, was the wife of Charles P. Weaver who was also a Louisville Mayor.

The Helm’s was an old family here. Their home, which burned long ago, was on North Race Street. Travis Cockrill, another of the noted members of Glasgow bar, lived also, on North Race Street, in the house remodeled, now the home of Robert Barton. Joel Depp married Elizabeth Montague in 1815; they made their home in a house on Green Street, where the M. E. Church now stands. Their sons, Harden, Albert, William, James and Clement were born there; this house was then the home of James Wilson. Mr. Depp moved in a house on the square, Race Street., about 3 doors above L. C. Ellis Drug Store. The home of Charles W. Terry was where the brick residence built by the late Dr. D. R. Carr stands on East Washington Street; the rear of this house is part of the old structure. Mr. Terry, one of the town’s first shoe merchants, lived there, probably some time before, and during the Civil War. The house of brick on Green Street, lately known as “The Rainbow Inn” was built by and was the home of Dr. James Hall. He married a daughter of Judge Christopher Tompkins. This was at one time the home of Joseph Garnett, and later his son-in-law, John A. Murray.

The Glazebrook home was out the Jackson Highway opposite the “South Kentucky Fair Association” grounds. A few old cedar trees guarding the crumbling stones where are the graves, alone tell the story of this once prosperous family. The Whitsett home, only recently razed was at the South East corner of Race and Front Street. The Ganter home was on the opposite corner – Mr. “Professor Ganter”, the musician.

Our town has had its story of tragedy. Out the Columbia Road, a mile or two is a weather worn brick house where when the home of Burrell [Burwell] Lawless, occurred the killing of young William E. Musgrove by Mr. Lawless, whose daughter Mr. Musgrave had just married. This place was originally the John McFerran home where the County Courts were held in the early days before the county had a Court House.

The Gorin Home, where Franklin Gorin and later Jeff Gorin lived, recently known as the Porter home, looks as though good for another hundred years, although, except for a small room in the rear, it is built entirely of timber. The home of J. L. Bryan was built by James Bryan, Sr. It was for years the home of D. M. Ashby.

The Albert Crutcher home was out on the “Louisville Pike,” now Jackson Highway, north of town, is now the home of J. C. Hutcherson, near the Samson Hospital. The home of Richard Garnett, first clerk of the County Court (he was the father of James P. Garnett and Joseph Garnett) was of brick, about a half mile out the South Jacksonway, now razed, where he lived, reared a large family, and where he died at the age of ninety years. As was the custom they laid his body to rest in a little reserved lot nearby. In this home in February 1818 there gathered a small group of men and women and “constituted the Glasgow Baptist Church.” The thirteen people, namely: William T. Logan, John Baugh, Joseph Eubank, Jesse Grimstead, George W. Trabue, Susanna Clack, Elizabeth Gorin, Sally Logan, Sally Bush, Mary Baugh, Elizabeth Clack, Elizabeth Eubank, and Michael W. Hall had all been members in good standing and had been given letters of dismissal from the Mt. Tabor Church, the oldest Baptist Church in Barren County. In recent years there stood at the beginning of Broadway on Leslie Avenue. A two story frame building built by John T. Wilson – this later was the home of Milt Williams and also the home of Geo. W. Read. Mr. Wilson also built the brick house occupied now by Mr. Joe Ford, known as the Jo Smith place, sold it to Burrell [Burwell] Lawless who tore it away and rebuilt, afterwards Mr. Jo Smith, coming back to his home town from his wanderings abroad, bought and spent the remainder of his life there. Veachel H. Jones came to Glasgow from Edmonson County in 1858 and made his home on South Green Street. The home now standing is the home of his grand-daughter, Emma Maxey. Judge Jones was a lawyer and Judge and was the father of Judge Samuel E. Jones and John William Jones.

Anthony Cake’s home was on Maple Driveway, (then Nashville Pike) next door to Mrs. C. H. Hatchett. Giles Y. Buford built and made his home as did Haiden C. Trigg, in what was formerly known as “Garnett’s Grove,” out the pike (Maple Driveway). Mr. Buford’s home is now the residence of his granddaughter, Mrs. J. Lewis Williams. Mr. Trigg’s home was unfortunately burned several years ago. These two houses were built sometime in the late 1860’s or in the 1870’s. (Buford and Trigg homes were just outside the town limits). Dr. Dickey’s place, after his death, the home of Henry Moss, after his death, of his widow, Mrs. Fannie Moss.

James A. Shirley made his home on the Bowling Green Road (Cleveland Avenue), where he lived for several years before he was between the States to about 1883. This was then the home of Judge S. H. Boles and Dr. R. E. Garnett, respectively. “Uncle Billy McQuown” lived on Front Street at the corner of McKinney Street. He was undertaker here from about 1850 to 1885-6. The W. R. McFerran home was on Washington Street, lately the home of Billy Wood, who married a grand-daughter of Judge McFerran. The house, in splendid condition, must date back to 1840’s.

The home of Dr. C. C. Forbes, a son-in-law of Judge McFerran, was on Columbia Avenue. Just beyond and on opposite side of the street is the Harbison home. Dr. Forbes [was] a leading physician in Glasgow from about 1850 to 1875. On the lot, now vacant at the corner of Washington and Race Streets, opposite the Post Office, was a frame building, built by John Matthews, Junior.

Used as a boarding house, this was the fourth tavern in town, and continued to be either a rooming house or an apartment house until torn away when the Terry-Mitchell building lately burned, was built on the same site. This was the home of and kept by John Bybee in 1826, by Obadiah Curd in 1859 and was the home of Mrs. Ann Bybee, widow of William Bybee, in the latter years of her life.

Emanuel Morris came to this county, where he was married in 1853. Some years later he moved to Glasgow. His home for many years was at the corner of Wayne and Broadway, going from there to a house on the square, Race Street, to a brick house built by Geo. Rogers; then to the house on Main Street, where he died. This house was built by Major C. T. Cheek in 1870, where he lived until about 1887, going from there to Nashville, where he died. In 1800 James Culp built a lot house on Main Street, where he lived, to be near his tannery on the "Big Spring Branch." This house opened immediately on the street, was the home of Thomas Feland in 1834. In 1875 it was the home of Stephen Glass. Part of this old house remained, although it had been added to until it was entirely torn away about twenty or more years ago when Mr. A. Rapp, who married a daughter of Mr. Glass, built his home on the same lot.

The Brents Dickinson home (Brents Place) on Maple Driveway, was partially built in 1850 by a Mr. Dodd (William or Thomas); and was bought about the beginning of the Civil War by Alanson Trigg, for his daughter and was the home of Samuel Brents, whose wife she was.

The home of Henry Moss in 1888, afterwards of his widow, was the home of Dr. Joseph Dickey from about 1875 until his death.

Riley Pedigo lived during and for a decade after the war between the States, in a one story brick house on the corner of Green and Washington Streets, on the ground now occupied by the Citizens Bank and Masonic Building and the Felix Bradford Building. This house was the home of Thomas Eubank. This house was very old, probably built by John Mayfield.

On the ground now occupied by the Government building was the home of Fleming Bybee. The first house here was a log house said to have been built by John Matthews who was here in 1799.

Reported In the Glasgow Times

Taken from the Bobby White column (Glasgow Daily Times correspondent), April 1883.

These articles appeared in the Times in April 1883:

Hiseville news: The mumps are still holding forth in our town. The good people at our town organized a Sunday School in this place last Sunday, with J. W. Renick, superintendent.

Dissatisfaction: There is some dissatisfaction over the present corporate limits of Glasgow. There is every reason that they should be extended. There is a thickly-settled portion of south Glasgow outside of the corporation extension, and some of the wealthiest property owners of the place escape payment of town taxes.

New Father: Uncle Billy Page of Horse Cave, is being extensively boomed by the press of the state. Uncle Billy is seventy-two years old and the father of a bouncing baby boy.

Depot Report: Following is a list of memorandum of cash business done at the depot during the month of April: Local tickets - $759.95. Coupon tickets - $1634.90. Freight - $2630.65. Excess on baggage - $11.30.

Skillful Operation: Dr. C. T. Grinstead, assisted by Drs. R. H. Grinstead, C. L. Caldwell, R. E. Garnett and J. S. Leech, last week removed a twenty-five pound ovarian tumor from Mrs. Charley Rogers, of the Caldwell neighborhood. Mrs. Rogers is at present doing well, and her ultimate recovery is confidently anticipated. Dr. Grinstead stands in the very front of his profession in this section of the state as a skilled operator and practitioner. He has before performed several delicate operations with a skill honoring to himself and to his calling.

Business Mention: At Ganters – miscellaneous blank and school books of all kinds. School supplies a specialty. Chicken cholera medicine – no cure, no pay. Full stock of drugs and medicine – warranted first class and strictly pure. Bedbug poison, fishing poles, lines and hooks. S. Goodman's house is the place for highest cash prices for hides, wool, feathers and ginseng. Bring your bacon, eggs and butter to O. C. Pace & Co. and exchange for good cheap groceries.

Local & Personal. Butter is now worth twenty-five cents a pound.

Frost was plainly visible one or two mornings last week, and one gentleman reports a razor-breathed coating of ice on his horse trough. Fruit, however, was not injured, and provided no further snap overtakes the trees, there will be dead-loads of apples, peaches and all the small fruits this season.

Mr. John King has started his distillery, some four miles from town, with Mr. S. R. Harrison as storekeeper. The distillery will run with a capacity of about fifteen gallons a day for the present. There are now three stills in the county.

Mr. M. T. Pedigo will go into the life insurance business.

Five handsome race colts are in training at the Redding Bros. Track.

Fifteen and two-thirds pounds of wool were clipped from a sheep by Mr. J. T. Hargrove last week.

General News: Hattie Rowlett, a little five-year-old girl, was shot by Jimmy Shackelford, at Rowletts, Hart County, a few days ago. The children were playing with what was thought to be a toy pistol, when Jimmy pointed the weapon at the little girl's head and pulled the trigger. She fell dangerously wounded, but it is thought she will recover.

From January 2, 1884 issue:

Ed Turner was arrested near Hiseville a few days since on a charge of stealing a gun from Graves Crews. He was sent to jail to await action of the Grand Jury.

Reported in the Times continued:

Oliver Cummings stabbed Jim Anderson in an affray at Old Randolph last Thursday. Anderson was stabbed severely in three places. Whiskey was the cause of the difficulty.

Main Street has a plank walk from Dr. Trabue's residence to Mr. F. M. Laswell's. The walk extends just far enough in a direction of the depot for pedestrians to get their feet well muddied before getting there.

Mr. William Moody of Turkey Neck Bend was drowned in Meschack's Creek Monday, the 24th ult. His body was washed down the creek some four hundred yards before recovery. Mr. Moody was about sixty-five years old at the time of his death.

THE CONDITION OF SAMUEL MINICK'S FAMILY

"Barren County, KY. August 9th 1853.

To the Honorable Judge of the Barren County Court

Dear Sir We the undersigned present to your honour for your consideration, the condition of Samuel Minick's family. S'd Minick left his wife and six or seven Children some time last winter and he carried another man's Wife with him. His wife is afflicted so as to be unable to work for a Support. She has 3 or 4 children in their Minor Age and not able to support themselves and they have nothing to support on (or but very little), only what they beg in the neighbourhood. They have no house to shelter in only as they are permitted to occupy out or Waist houses. We further state that from the best information that we can gather the children seriously suffer for both food and ramint [rainment].

This family is in Bad Repute and public rumor say they Keep a Bad house. Suffice it to say that they Greatly Anoy this neighbourhood, and as the Wisdom and prudence of our Lawmakers has enabled them to enact Laws for the benefit of such unfortunate Children we humbly petition your honor to take some measure for there benefit. That is have them Bound to men that will raise them in credit and to Labour for a support.

BOYS OF OLDER ERA WERE CERTAINLY NO ANGELS and other interesting tales

Written by unknown contributor to the 100th Anniversary issue of the Glasgow Times, 1965. The original date of article is not known but covered the 1885-1895 timeframe.

"I enjoy Carl Miller's write-ups in The Times; also Clarence Alcock's. Think Clarence is getting in the doty age though; he makes all the old boys and girls angels. Wonder why he doesn't write about some of the Halloweens we used to have. Tell who put the jackass in the court house cupola - who touched off the six sticks of dynamite steps one afternoon - who threw the bombs off the roof of the Times office when said office was over Theo. Goldnamer's Gent's Furnishing Store? Ah! They were the good old days. He wrote about Glasgow's first street lights; well there were twelve lamps put up eight around the square and four one block out. I forget who the lamp-lighter was, but the first evening he lit the lamps before dark, and the next morning - not a lamp left! All rocked off the poles! No lights then for several years and Billy Bybee and Henry Masters put in electric light plant in Big Spring Bottom where Bill Payne's pressing club now stands, they were the old arc lights. The boys did not rock them out – were afraid the juice would backfire and put their lights out.

Oh yes, I remember a circus came to town. At afternoon show, Curby Jamerson tried to crawl under the tent, and some of the show crew inside his head with a club and knocked him back. So the gang got together and before the night show started they rocked the tents until the show was called off. They dismantled the tents, hauled their paraphernalia to depot, loaded up and left. But at that time there were no street lights, so at court house pump corner someone climbed on the tent wagon and rolled off a big roll of canvas, which proved to be the side show tent top. It was carried to Big Spring Bottom and hidden in an old barn. Next day the manager of circus came back and offered a $50.00 reward for it. The third morning the top was found on corner of square where it was pulled off wagon, by some boys. They notified police (Mr. George Read) who took charge, but boys only got $5.00 out of Mr. Read. Anyhow, they got ten pints. Ha! Ha! Ask Al McQuown. There could be quite a book written to prove to Clarence that we were not all angels in those days.

5 Ways to Jumpstart Your Kentucky Research

J. Mark Lowe, CG, FUGA © 2009

1. Consider the evidence in hand

Jumpstarting continued:

2. Ready to be a creative thinker
3. Understand context (history, neighbors)
4. Document each step
5. Examine a variety of records

Develop a detailed profile for research focus.

Determine what information is missing.

Propose several solutions

Recent Speakers at the Society

David Lyons, Mayor of Park City, KY presented an interesting program on the renovation of the Mentz Hotel in Park City. This old hotel served many functions over the years including housing the Baulch School for Boys. On display were many pictures of the hotel when it was used as a school showing the beautiful woodwork, staircases and intricate details. Lyons also discussed brick making, caulking and matching the old materials.

Recent Speakers, continued:

Chuck DeCroix, Park Ranger at Mammoth Cave, gave a Power Point presentation on the old carvings and smokings inside the cave. He has done extensive research on the history of cave exploration and specifically place names and names of old explorers noted on the 1908 Max Kemper map.

GENERAL INFORMATION

MEMBERSHIP is open to anyone interested in the history of the South Central Kentucky area, centering around Barren County. Annual dues are $12.00.

TRACES, the Society's quarterly publication is received by all members. It is published seasonally; Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter. Members joining during the year will receive the past issues of that year in a separate mailing.

CONTRIBUTIONS are earnestly solicited. Family genealogies, marriages, Bible, will and probate, cemetery, court and other records are all acceptable. You will be listed as the contributor.

QUERIES are accepted only from members, without limit, and will be published as space permits. Queries should be limited to about 50 words.

EXCHANGE of Traces with other Societies or publications is acceptable and welcome.

BOOKS to be reviewed in Traces must be sent with information as to cost, including postage, from whom the book may be obtained. They become the property of the Society library. Books should have Kentucky interest. Reviews will be published as space permits.

MEETINGS are held monthly, except December, at the South Central Kentucky Cultural Center (Museum of the Barrens), 200 Water Street, Glasgow, KY, on the fourth Thursday, 7:00 p.m. Interesting and informative programs are planned for each meeting and your supportive attendance is always welcome.

BACK ISSUES of Traces are available. Our supplies of the following are gone: Vol. 1, Nos. 1-4 (1973); Nos. 1-4 (1974); Vol. 4. (1976); Vol. 5, No. 1 (1977), Vol. 3, Nos. 1 and 4 (1981); Vol. 10, Nos. 1 and 2 (1982), Vol. 12, No. 2 (1984). All others can be purchased as long as the supply lasts at $4.00. Back issues will be mailed with our regular quarterly mailing.

CORRESPONDENCE of any type that requires a reply must contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address to: South Central Kentucky Historical and Genealogical Society, P. O. Box 157, Glasgow, KY 42142-0157.

BOOKS AND MATERIALS of a genealogical nature that you no longer need - would you consider donating them to the Society? They will be preserved for other researchers and are deeply appreciated. Contact the editor, Sandi Gorin, 205 Clements Avenue, Glasgow, KY 42141-3049.
