1. Identification of program:

- 1.1 Current program reference number: 0446
- 1.2 Current program title: MA in Religious Studies
- 1.3 Credit hours: 35

2. Identification of the proposed program changes: Reduction of credit hours from 35 to 32.

3. Detailed program description:

Current program

The M.A. program in Religious Studies requires a minimum of ~~35~~ graduate credit hours. No more than 12 hours may be in 400G courses. Students may take up to six hours in graduate courses in other departments. Students must complete a thesis or a culminating project. Students considering further doctoral study in religious studies are encouraged to take the thesis option.

Required Courses: All students must complete RELS 500 (Theory and Method in the Study of Religion, four credit hours), two offerings of RELS 601 (Graduate Seminar in Religious Studies, four credit hours), RELS 602 (Thesis and Project Development Seminar, one credit hour), and RELS 603 (Thesis and Project Colloquium, one credit hour). These required courses total 14 credit hours.

Thesis : Students on the thesis track may take up to six credit hours of Thesis Writing (RELS 599). Students completing an alternative project will take additional coursework in lieu of RELS 599. Students must petition to not complete a thesis, and provide a proposal for the alternative project by the end of their second semester.

Electives: The student's remaining credit hours may be taken in further RELS 601

Proposed program

The M.A. program in Religious Studies requires a minimum of 32 graduate credit hours. No more than 12 hours may be in 400G courses. Electives: The student's remaining credit hours may be taken in further RELS 601 courses, other RELS graduate courses, RELS 400G courses, independent studies, or graduate courses in other departments (with consent of adviser).

Research Tool: Appropriate language work in the student's area of emphasis is recommended (e.g., Hebrew for students doing work in Jewish scripture). Graduate level language courses may count for as many as six credits toward completing the degree. Research methods courses in other departments may be used to meet this requirement upon approval of the Department Head of Philosophy and Religion. If not completing the research tool requirement in any other way, students must pass a reading examination in either French or German.

4. Rationale for the proposed program change: There are two central reasons for this change. First, the reduction in total credit hours frees up more time for students at the end of their program to finish the thesis. Most of our students write a thesis, and finishing the thesis while taking two or more standard courses is difficult (even more so for Graduate Assistants with various course responsibilities). Second, reducing the total credit hours reduces by three hours the number of hours for which they have to pay tuition. In addition, since this change frees up some time during their last semester, they are more likely to finish their thesis on time and avoid having to pay an hour's worth of tuition for "Maintaining Matriculation" during the summer or even the following fall.
