James W. Barker

Faculty Bibliography

James Barker is Associate Professor of New Testament, and he researches the production and reception of the Gospels. He earned his PhD in New Testament and Early Christianity from Vanderbilt in 2011, and in 2014 he received the Paul J. Achtemeier Award for New Testament Studies. His first book was John's Use of Matthew (Fortress Press, 2015; repr. Wipf and Stock, 2022), and his second book was Tatian's Diatessaron: Composition, Redaction, Recension, and Reception, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford University Press, 2021). His current book project is John and the Synoptics: Writing and Rewriting the Gospel (Eerdmans, under contract).
