LOCATION

This school is located at Adairville, Kentucky, forty miles north of Nashville, Tennessee, and thirty miles southwest of Bowling Green, Kentucky. It is the southern terminus of the Owensboro and Adairville branch of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad.

ADAIRVILLE

is a beautiful town situated in the rich agricultural district of southern Kentucky, and is the highest point between Owensboro and Nashville. It is unsurpassed in its advantages of good water, pure air and freedom from all local causes of disease.

The moral character of the people is seen in the fact that they support four churches, and they have recently gained a decided victory over intemperance, and all the saloons are now closed. The social life here would do credit to a much larger place, with the advantage of being free from the common vices of larger towns. The people are largely college bred, giving them culture and refinement in the highest degree.

HISTORY

For some years the course of study pursued in the Adairville School was limited to the free school branches; but as the town has grown and the people progressed, the course has advanced; first to a graded school of high rank; then to a training school course equal to that of any preparatory school. Upon presentation of certificate of graduation, its graduates will be admitted to Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee; the Southwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tennessee; Southwestern Baptist University, Jackson, Tennessee, and other colleges.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this school is mainly three-fold. First of all, to make useful men and women by placing before the pupils high ideals, thus awakening a healthy ambition to attain to the highest sphere of usefulness in life for which their mental and physical endowments fit them. Second, it is our aim to give to our students such a course as will best prepare them to enter any college that they may desire. And third, to give to those who do not intend to take college work, a course of instruction that will best fit them for a life of usefulness. To be fitted for either they must be trained in habits of study and diligence.

"The child is father of the man," and realizing this every effort will be put forth to have the pupils form habits that will be most useful to them in any vocation of life.

DISCIPLINE

The greatest freedom that can be had is under a government—not without it—whose citizens recognize its authority, submit to its laws, respect the rights of others, and desire to protect their own rights. It is the recognition of this mutual dependence of laws upon citizens and citizens upon laws that we desire to instill into the minds and hearts of our pupils.

The highest aim of discipline is good citizenship; hence its importance. The pupils are encouraged to do right from principle; they are placed upon their honor and it is insisted that their conduct be only such as becomes a lady or gentleman. This system we believe develops the highest and noblest types of manhood, and womanhood.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

There are two literary societies in connection with the school, one of which we urge every student to join. The officers are elected by the students from their own members, thus giving them the much-needed training in parliamentary usage. This work is strongly emphasized because we believe that no other work is more beneficial than that done in a good literary society.

All pupils of the Academic Department are required to take part in these societies.

LIBRARY

It is well known that no education is complete which does not include a good course of reading. And it has been well said that "Perhaps the most essential feature of a good school is a well selected library." It is constantly needed in class work of all kinds, and especially in the study of literature, so we are glad to announce that a number of new books will be added to those already in our library. A number of new books have been purchased and a number donated during the past year.

SCHOLARSHIPS

For the encouragement of those students who wish to pursue their studies in some good university and in recognition of the class of work done by the Adairville Training School, two scholarships have been offered by schools to which it is affiliated. These scholarships are to be awarded at the discretion of the teachers, to members of the Senior Class each year.

1. Cumberland University offers a scholarship, which consists of one year's tuition in the Literary Department of that school. 2. The Southwestern Presbyterian University makes the same liberal offer of one year's tuition in its Literary Department.

MEDALS

The Lundy Medal will be awarded by Dr. W. E. Lundy to the student who shall write the best paper upon the general construction, growth, decay and care of the teeth.

A medal will be awarded to the pupil making the best report for the year, considering: scholarship, grades, deportment, and amount of work done during year.

A five-dollar medal will be given by Dr. Venable to the student getting the highest grades for the entire year.

ATHLETICS

Realizing that the health and vigor of the mind and heart depend very largely upon the physical condition, much attention will be given to exercise. Baseball, basketball and other out-door sports will be encouraged, not to the neglect of other work, but ever with good health as the end.

EXAMINATIONS

Examinations will be held quarterly during the session and a final examination at the close of the year for promotion. Students failing to make an average grade of seventy per cent. for the entire year will not be promoted. Those making satisfactory grades will receive certificates of promotion to the next higher grade, and those of the Senior Class whose record will justify it, will receive certificates of graduation in this school.

INSTRUCTION

Realizing that competent instructors are absolutely essential to the success of any school, the utmost care has been exercised in selecting our faculty. Not only have the teachers made special preparation for their respective departments; but they have proved by experience their aptness to teach. In their selection, character was first considered, then scholarship and ability to teach. The methods used are modern, and those best suited to the grade of the class and the individual need of the pupil. Believing one great aim of school studies to be the development of the power and habit of correct thinking, and the furnishing of material for thought it is insisted that each pupil be master of every subject studied.

COURSE OF STUDY

The course of study has been very carefully selected with the objects of this institution ever in view. There are three departments, the Primary, Intermediate and Academic.

In the study of elecution the development of the powers of each individual is of the highest importance. The intellect should be quickened, the imagination cultivated, the feelings deepened and guided. The course in elocution will include voice culture, physical culture and rendering. Throughout the course, special attention will be given to the literary analysis, that the student may be led to experience the thoughts and feelings of the author. The study of elocution means more than the ability to recite a few selections well. It is not a training for exhibition day, it is a training of all the agents of expression used in every day life. It will give one the ability to stand before others and express in a natural, forcible, and entertaining manner what he has for them. It will give him an added power in whatever field his future work may be.

Requirements for graduation are three years' work in elocution and the first three years of the English course in the Academic Department or a course equivalent to that.
