Administrative History: The Consumer & Family Sciences is the fifth iteration of the Domestic Science & Domestic Arts Department created in 1911 as part of the education curriculum. The department was renamed Domestic Economy in 1914 and Home Economics in 1924.

The College of Applied Arts & Health was created July 1, 1969 and comprised units that had previously been assigned to the College of Education or had no affiliation. At that time Home Economics became Home Economics & Family Living. In April of 1981 the College of Applied Arts & Health was disbanded with departments moving into existing and new colleges. The Home Economics and Family Living Department was moved back under the College of Education umbrella. The name was changed in 1993 to Consumer & Family Sciences and to Family & Consumer Sciences in 2011

Interior design is a multi-faceted profession with many diverse employment opportunities for enthusiastic and motivated students. The various areas of this field are residential and commercial design. As a consumer-oriented field, Interior Design is becoming increasingly well-disputed. Functional spaces encompass the lives of people who work in offices, hospitals, restaurants, and stores, as well as the home. This profession offers the opportunity to use creativity, knowledge, and communication skills.

The Fabric of Your Future

Textiles and Apparel Merchandising

The textiles and apparel merchandising industry is worldwide in scope and employs an extensive array of professionals, from those who provide direct selling services to those who design and buy apparel. While it is a changing industry, it continues to make a significant economic, social and technological impact globally, nationally and internationally.

The T&A industry is a dynamic global employer. Its many varied career opportunities include manufacturing, marketing, retailing, merchandising, wholesaling, education, entrepreneurship, government and education. Each of these segments has unique qualities but all share a common mission and heritage serving consumers (individuals, families & businesses). They also share a common future as one of the most dynamic career fields available in the 21st and beyond.

Debra Fidler, Garber (CAIS) Fashion, Technomic, Glages, KY

The International Textile and Apparel Association confirms that the T&A industry is the third largest employer in the world.

The U.S. Department of Labor Bureau projects that by the year 2000 more than four of five jobs will be in service, technical and education such as the textile and apparel merchandising complex.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture projects that demand for graduates in the marketing, merchandising, and related careers will continue to exceed supply well into the 21st century.

If you have an interest in fashion and a desire to pursue an exciting career, consider the varied opportunities in textile and apparel merchandising.
