BIOGRAPHY

James Proctor Knott was born on August 29, 1830, near Lebanon, Kentucky, in Marion County. His parents were Joseph Percy and Maria Irvine (McElroy) Knott. He received his early education in Marion and Shelby Counties. In 1846 he began the study of law which he continued to pursue after moving to Memphis, Missouri, in 1850. The following year Knott was admitted to the bar at Memphis, and he served in the ensuing years in the circuit and county clerk's offices. Knott married Mary E. Froman of Memphis on November 17, 1852; she died in childbirth in August of 1853. In 1857 Knott was elected Scotland County's representative to the state legislature. Then, Governor Robert M. Stewart appointed him attorney general to finish the unexpired term of Ephraim B. Ewing in 1858. Knott married Sarah "Sallie" Rosanna McElroy (1833-1915) on June 15, 1858, and they had no children. She was the daughter of Philip Edward and Lydia (Gibbs) McElroy of Bowling Green, Kentucky. Lydia McElroy's second husband was David Chapman of Warren County, Kentucky, who was supposedly the first white child born in that county. Maria Irvine (McElroy) Knott (b. 1805) of Missouri was J. Proctor Knott's mother and Sallie Knott's aunt (her father's sister). She visited Kentucky in 1861 and 1862.

In 1860, Knott was elected attorney general of Missouri. He had mixed feelings concerning the political camps of the time. He did not favor secession but thought that the Federal Government was trampling on the Constitution and was making excessive demands of the people. After Missouri came under the control of Unionists, a law was passed on October 18, 1861, requiring all state officers to take a loyalty oath to the United States government. Knott contended that he had taken his official oath, and his refusal to take the loyalty oath resulted in his arrest, brief imprisonment, and disbarment from law practice in Missouri. Shortly after his prison release, he and his second wife moved to her hometown of Bowling Green, Kentucky. Later in 1862, the Knotts moved to Lebanon, Kentucky, and Knott opened a law office there. Following the Civil War, Knott was the Democratic elector of the 4th District of Kentucky to the U.S. House of Representatives for six terms, serving from 1867 to 1871 and from 1875 to 1883. He was elected governor of Kentucky in 1883, defeating Thomas Z. Morrow. After his gubernatorial term, Knott was employed by the state to assist the attorney general with lawsuits. Later, Knott practiced law in Frankfort with T. L. Edelen. As a member of the 1890-1891 Kentucky Constitutional Convention from Marion County, Kentucky, Knott again proved himself to be an able statesman. Retiring from law practice in 1892, he accepted the professorship of civics and economics at Centre College in Danville, Kentucky. Also, he assisted in organizing Centre's law department in 1894. Ill health forced Knott to retire from Centre College in 1901, and he returned again to Lebanon. His homeplace, named "Lea Ridge", was destroyed by fire in August 1902; but he continued to live in Lebanon until his death on June 18, 1911.

THE COLLECTION

The collection is formed around James Proctor Knott and includes family and business correspondence, 1850(?) - 1911 (100 items). Very little of it relates to his public life as a member of the U.S. Congress and as governor of Kentucky, although a few letters reveal his views about the Civil War. Holographic, typescript, and printed copies of some of Knott's speeches, 1870-1891 (14), as well as some of his holographic writings, 1877, 1879, 1891 (10), are in the collection. In addition, there are several sketches and drawings (57) by Knott, and two Knott autograph albums: one covering the period of the 44th Congress from 1875 to 1877, and one covering the 1890-1891 Kentucky Constitutional Convention. Also, there are numerous newspaper clippings concerning Knott.

The materials of Sallie Knott include correspondence, 1859-1913 (138 items), with family and friends; some of which concern life in Missouri during the turbulent years of 1861 and 1862 (9). The letters, 1853-1863 (6), and diaries, 1861-1862 (3), of Maria Irvine (McElroy) Knott present a good picture of events in both states.

A few items of the associated families -- Gibbs, 1780, n.d. (2); McElroy, 1833-post 1874 (10); and Chapman, n.d. (1) -- are in the collection with one box being comprised of letters and a diary of the James Franklin McElroy family, 1874-1930 (115), of Bowling Green, Kentucky. Additionally, there are many photographs of the McElroy family and other individuals.
