BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Alice Caldwell Hegan (11 January 1870-10 February 1942), was born in Shelbyville, Kentucky, at the home of her grandfather Judge James Caldwell. Her parents, Samuel and Sallie Caldwell Hegan, resided in Louisville. Alice grew up and spent her entire life in the city. At age ten Alice entered Hampton College, a Louisville private school, to begin her formal education as ill health had prevented earlier schooling. Alice began the pursuit of her main interests, writing and drawing, while at Hampton. After leaving school, she engaged in many socioeconomic activities of the era and participated extensively in the field of benevolent work among the underprivileged, who lived in the Louisville Cabbage Patch District. Her first novel, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, which was published in 1901, evolved from those experiences. The book became a best seller overnight and established Alice as a noted author.

On December 18, 1902, Alice married Cale Young Rice, a Louisville poet and author. This union of authors was an exceedingly happy one; and individually and collectively, they produced many literary works during the next forty years. During most of that time, they resided at 1444 St. James Court in Louisville.

Alice's other works included: Lovey Mary, 1903; Sandy, 1905; Mr. Opp, 1909; Romance of Billy Goat Hill, 1912; Quin, 1921; Mr. Pete & Co., 1933; and The Inky Way (autobiography), 1941. Alice and Cale co-authored the following books of short stories: Turnabout Tales, 1920; Winners and Losers, 1925; and Passionate Follies, 1936.

Cale Young Rice (7 December 1872-24 January 1943), was born in Dixon, Kentucky, to Laban and Martha Lacy Rice. Although prospering as a tobacco planter and businessman in Dixon, Laban Rice moved his family to Evansville, Indiana, in 1879 where he worked in the tobacco market. Cale was educated in Evansville's public schools. At the age of seventeen, he entered Cumberland University in Lebanon, Tennessee, where his older brother Laban Lacy, was a student. Following Cale's graduation from Cumberland, he entered his uncle's mercantile business in Madisonville, Kentucky. Cale left the world of business, which he found unsatisfying and unprofitable, to further his education. Registering at Harvard in 1894, Cale earned the Bachelor of Arts degree in 1895 and the Master's degree in 1896.

The Rice family had moved to Louisville in 1890, and Cale joined them there in 1897. His marriage to Alice brought together two persons with intense literary interests as well as a common love for travel. During their married life, they spent several summers outside the United States. Their writings were influenced by their travel experiences, and Cale's works particularly contained Oriental tones.

His published works of poetry included: From Dusk to Dusk, 1898; With Omar, 1900 (privately published); Song Surf, 1901; Nirvana Days, 1909; Many Gods, 1910; At the World's Heart, 1914; and Songs to A.H.R., 1918. His poetic dramas included David, 1904; Yolanda of Cypress, 1906; and The Immortal Lure, 1911. His poetic dramas received more notice than the prose dramas he wrote in the 1930s. But, as a novelist, Cale did not gain as much fame. Cale wrote: Youth's Way, 1923; Early Reaping, 1929; and Bridging the Years (autobiography), 1939.

A New Approach to Philosophy and The Best Poetic Works of Cale Young Rice were published after his death in 1943. His brother, Laban Lacy, prepared the manuscripts. Cale's despondency, caused by Alice's death, resulted in his suicide in January 1943.
