THE STORY OF THE PLAY

Fifty years ago Jeremiah Wayne, attempting to shoot his successful rival, John Carteret, accidentally kills the woman whom he loves.

Fifty years later, the play begins. Jeremiah's son Kenneth and John's niece Kathleen love each other. John, still bitter with the memory of the past, opposes the match, and tells Kathleen the story of what happened fifty years ago. This story of the past forms the second act. Meantime John has become estranged from his friend Dr. Harding, who takes the part of the young lovers.

The last act after the war shows John saddened by Kathleen's longing for her lover and by his own continued estrangement from his old friend.

Kenneth returns from the war shell-shocked, ready to give up Kathleen, though he still loves her. John, finally conquered by the boy's bravery, gives way, the lovers are happy, and John and his friend are reconciled. Left alone for a moment, John quietly dies in his chair, and his spirit is greeted by that of his dead love Monyeen, who has been waiting for him for fifty years.

A SCENE FROM "SMILIN' THROUGH"

Miss Camilla Herdman plays the part of Moonyeen Clare in "Smilin' Through." This part is a very pathetic one and it is too bad that Miss Herdman could not have played a happier role, yet we doubt if anyone could play the part of Moonyeen Clare more ably than she does.

The management of this production takes this means of thanking all those who contributed to the success of "Smilin' Through."
