For forty-eight years Ogden College has stood for thoroughness in Academic training. Its student body is made up of a small, select group of splendid young men; and it strives to give them an intense training—particularly in the classics—that will fit them for cultured leadership under the exacting demands of the day. The successful lives of Ogden's graduates and former students mark the milestones of its years; and with full pride in them, it faces the future hopeful of high achievement. And in doing so, Ogden College is rendering a distinct service to Warren county and southern Kentucky.

STORY OF THE PLAY

Obadiah Dawson, a wealthy old bachelor of sixty-five years, becomes fascinated with a photograph of the beautiful Clarice Dalroy. He at once writes Clarice's father, who owed Obadiah a large sum of money, proposing marriage. Obadiah having little confidence in his own judgment to pick his better half, becomes frightened, sends his nephew, Capt. Robert Rocket, to investigate. Robert, who is handsome, dashing, gay, in response to a question of Timothy Tolman at whose home he is visiting, said, "Well, I went—saw Clarice—found her charming—fell in love with her—proposed on my own account and married her at once."

While Mr. and Mrs. Robert Racket are the guests of the Tolmans they are visited by Obadiah Dawson, the uncle, who, after being rejected by Clarice Dalroy, went to Japan. Robert, having put one over on the old man did not want him to see Clarice, and likewise did not want Clarice to see him. Bob told his wife the old man was a lunatic, and told Uncle Obadiah that Clarice was a maniac. In the course of time they happen to get together. Obadiah learned who Clarice really was, putting Robert in a position that he was compelled to lie wholly without malice.

Bob induced Timothy Tolman to take Clairce to her father's in New York. Tim and Mrs. Racket go to a show and afterwards to the Cafe Gloriana. Mrs. Tolman, being of a jealous temperament was very much disturbed to know where Tim was. But she soon learns when Hobson, a waiter from the Cafe Gloriana, appears at the Tolman home, with an overcoat saturated in champagne and belonging to Tim. It is up to Bob to get Tim out of the fix.

The condition of Tolman being known, Bob immediately wires his father-in-law, Ma. Dalroy, asking the whereabouts of Clarice. Dalroy not understanding the wire comes to the Tolman home. There he finds Robert in a fit of temper and is ejected from the home.

In the meantime Obadiah has told Clarice of a letter that "The Rascal Bob" had written him about her after the investigation. Clarice appears on the scene of action apparently intoxicated but later when it is discovered that Clarice has done this, in order to make Bob confess that he had written the letter to Obadiah. Mrs. Tolman forgives her husband and Clarice promises Bob that she will never, never again go to a theatre and to a supper afterwards without him.

ACT II. PLACE—The same. TIME: The next morning. How one yarn requires another. "The greatest liar unhung." Now the trouble increases, and the Captain prepares for war.

ACT III. PLACE—The same. TIME: Evening of the same day. More "misery." A general muddle. "Dance, or you'll die." Cornered at last. The Captain owns up. All serene.

All in all, the Ogden team was an exceedingly well-balanced, capable combination, even though its ranks were diminished from time to time during the season. This is evidenced by the total score of the season in which Ogden scored 516 points to her opponents' 421, and won eleven out of fifteen games.

CAPT. DOUGLAS SMITH

Ogden played a real basketball schedule this year the strongest that could be secured, and Doug was able to amass 207 points during the season. He also established a record as being the hardest playing man on the team, as his work was in evidence in every play.

He captained the team this year in a very creditable manner and always won the respect of his opponents by the fairness of his dealings. He is an Ogden product and a Bowling Green boy. Unless something unforeseen happens, he will be on the team next year.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS FOR 1925

The football prospects of Ogden College for 1925 are exceptionally bright. With the untiring efforts of our Coach and friends, with the help of our student body as a whole and with the aid of the Pi Beta Chi (Fraternity), Triangle Club and High Y we expect to bring new blood into our school. An exceptionally hard schedule has been arranged.
