ORGANIZATIONAL HISTORY

In 1970 a group of concerned citizens formed the Warren County Environmental Action Society to promote public awareness of environmental issues and to support long range planning for solutions to environmental problems. The South Central Kentucky Audubon Society was developed from this group in 1973. It was felt that affiliation with the National Audubon Society, a group dedicated to the preservation of the natural environment, would increase membership, funds, and the ability to carry out more effective programs. During this period the society's activities included educational field trips, summer scholarships for students, and Christmas bird counts. Among topics of concern during this period were land use in Mammoth Cave National Park, acid rain, and ground water pollution. The Society supported the College View Park in Bowling Green and advocated the development of a Green Belt Park along Jennings Creek.
