Dear Faculty Member,

On Thursday, February 4, from 9 a.m. until about noon, your financial security will be on the table. The Board of Regents (meeting in the Regents' Room, WAB) will discuss a salary plan. We do not know the final plan to be presented by Dr. Meredith but recommendations from the salary committee (based on the Daily News) include the following:

- salary adjustments will be made by rank and department.
- productivity will be important.
- no administrators earning over $50,000 (excluding department heads) would receive an increase next year.
- implementation will occur over 7 years and in 3 phases.
- the end results will be salaries comparable to model benchmark institutions.

If you want to influence your future earnings and your retirement security attend all or part of this meeting. Your visibility demonstrates your concern. I hope that Senators, as representatives of the faculty, will make a special effort to attend and to encourage other faculty to be present.

You may come in at any time during the meeting and leave quietly as you need. Your financial security is at stake. Your absence will be felt, your presence will have an impact.

Sincerely,

Sally L. Kuhlenschmidt
Faculty Senate Chair
