COLLECTION NOTE

This collection features information and documentation about the “Making of a Master” exhibit which opened on 15 September 2011 at the Kentucky Historical Society in Frankfort, Kentucky. The exhibition celebrated twenty years of apprenticeship grants and programming by the Kentucky Folklife Program through the Kentucky Arts Council. The initial funding for apprenticeships given from the National Endowment for the Arts have enabled funding for three apprenticeships from 1992 to 2011. The exhibition contained an educational component that encouraged students to visit the exhibit and enabled them to meet regional masters artists in their schools.

The interviews included in this collection were done by graduate students from the Folk Studies Department of Western Kentucky University as part of the credit fulfillment for Dr. Tim Evans’ “Public Folklore” class.
