BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Hugh Maxson “Max” Thomason was born on 9 August 1921 to Clyde A. and Amie (Maxson) Thomason in Hopkinton, Rhode Island. His maternal kin were New Englanders (17th century immigrants from Great Britain) and his paternal ancestors were Southerners. Max graduated from Sylvania (Georgia) High School. He then matriculated at North Georgia College, where he received his Bachelor’s degree; his Master’s and Ph.D. degrees were from Emory University. In 1941 Max enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps, beginning a 40-year commitment to the corps. He served in World War II and the Korean War, remaining in the Marine Corps Reserve until his retirement as colonel in 1981. Thomason became a faculty member at Western Kentucky University in 1961, where he served as a professor of government and department head; he retired in 1981. While at WKU he was instrumental in the organization of the American Association of University Professor local chapter. The AAUP served as a faculty form until the Faculty Senate was formed, and Max served as its first vice-chairman. His professional experience also included several years with the U.S. District Court in Atlanta and Gainesville, Georgia.

Thomason was named Distinguished Alumnus of North Georgia College in 1996 and served two terms as a director of the NGC Alumni Association. Max was a life member of the Appalachian Trail Conservancy, having hiked on the trail for many years. He enjoyed classical music, military history and genealogy. He was one of the founders of the Kentucky Trails Association, and served in an adult capacity with his children’s Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops. Max and his wife Jean Healan Thomason, were charter members in 1962 and active participants in Bowling Green’s Universalist Unitarian Church; the main congregational building is named in their honor. They were also charter members of the Landmark Association of Bowling Green and Warren County. The couple had four children: Susan, Alice, Philip, and Richard. Max died in Nashville, Tennessee—where he and Jean had moved to be closer to their children—on 1 February 2014.

COLLECTION NOTE

This eleven-box collection includes projects conducted by students at Western Kentucky University for their courses including, but not limited to, Political Folklore, Government, History of Kentucky and more. The students compiled information from a number of Kentucky counties and several others from adjacent states. Contents included oral tradition and material culture related to politics, particularly political campaigns.
