The Kentucky Folklife Program received a grant in 1990 from the National Park Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, to document the material and expressive folk culture of five regions along the Ohio River. Folklorists did a series of surveys in twenty-four counties of Kentucky and produced an archive of oral histories, field notes, photographs, and other documentation along with a series of public programs with local folk artists, traveling exhibits, and mini-festivals during the summer of 1991. The Kentucky Heritage Council was a subgrantee on this project with the Kentucky Folklife Program, and they worked in collaboration with the Kentucky Oral History Commission, the Kentucky Historical Society, the Kentucky Arts Council, the University of Kentucky community college system, and local community planning groups to develop the surveys and the subsequent performance and interpretive programs. The Ohio River Survey was proposed in order to add a folk arts component to the already existing "Always a River: The Ohio River and the American Experience," partially funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities and developed through the Humanities Councils of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.
