ORGANIZATIONAL HISTORY

The Kentucky General Assembly authorized the creation of Barren County on 20 December 1798, and the county was officially organized on 10 May 1799. At its November, 1799 session, the county court established Glasgow as the county seat. By legislation approved on 31 January 1809, the Kentucky General Assembly authorized a board of five trustees, to be elected annually by the free white male inhabitants, to make bylaws governing the affairs of Glasgow.

By an act approved on 11 February 1878, the Kentucky General Assembly reorganized the government of the city of Glasgow, vesting legislative authority in a mayor and a city council consisting of six members.
