BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Green Family

Willis Green (1794?-1862) was an early Mississippi River trader engaged in shipping goods from Kentucky to New Orleans. In 1818 he married Ann Allen (1795-1877) of Shelby County, Kentucky, and they moved to Hardinsburg where he practiced law. Willis purchased land, formerly owned by Spanish conspiracy plot participant Benjamin Sebastian in 1823, at Falls of Rough in Grayson County. As time passed, he developed a farming operation, which included the construction of a sawmill and a gristmill. Willis served in the U. S. House of Representatives from 1839 to 1843. He also was very active in Henry Clay's 1844 campaign for the presidency. In 1859, Willis and his wife moved to Texas.

Nephews and nieces of Willis, children of his brother Morgan B. Green (b. 1805), were living with the Greens by 1845. The children were: Elizabeth "Lizzie," who married Colonel William Short around 1853; Malvina, who married a man whose surname was Fleming, probably just prior to the outbreak of the Civil War; Napoleon, who was a railroad employee; and Lafayette (1835-1907), who was educated at Lexington and studied law under J. W. Bickers of Rumsey. In addition, Lafayette worked in various Louisville merchandising establishments, receiving training that helped prepare him to manage the Falls of Rough operations. Because of his uncle's declining health, Lafayette became the family's financial head. He also served in the State House of Representatives from 1859 to 1861. Following his uncle's death in 1862 and while the Civil War was raging, Lafayette went to Texas to accompany his aunt back to Kentucky and to bring his uncle's body back for reinterment.

In 1866 Lafayette married Rebecca Eleanor "Ella" Scott (1841-1896), daughter of Robert Wilmot Scott (1808-1884) and Elizabeth Watts (Brown) Scott (1811-1886) of Frankfort. The Greens had five children: Elizabeth (1868-1869), Willis (1870-1944), Preston Scott (1877-1945), Jennie Scott (1879-1965), and Robert Scott (1882-1943). Lafayette and his sons increased operations and began new ones at Falls of Rough, which included lumbering, flour milling, selling tobacco, raising Shetland ponies, a post office, a bank, and a general store. Because of their transportation needs for business purposes and to provide passenger service, a railroad line was extended to Falls of Rough in 1891. Their house, which was built of homegrown products (stone that was cut on the place and lumber that was cut and dressed at the mill), was a beautiful manor dwelling. Ella and her daughter Jennie were gracious hostesses, entertaining many friends and acquaintances through the years.

The children were educated at home by teachers employed by their parents, and later attended various private schools in Louisville, Princeton, and Danville. All three sons were Centre College students; but Jennie, while in her teens, terminated her formal education and remained at home to assist her ailing mother with management of the house and family. None of the children ever married. After her brothers died, Jennie continued to oversee all the operations of household until her health declined.

Scott Family

Robert Wilmot Scott (1808-1884) was born in Bourbon County, Kentucky, attended Transylvania University, studied law in Frankfort, and established his practice there in 1830. Because of poor health, he gave up his law practice and concentrated on farming in nearby Franklin County at his home place "Scotland," which originally was named "Locust Hill." Scott specialized in stock and sheep raising and was very active in state-wide agricultural matters and in school affairs. In 1831 he married Elizabeth Watts Brown (1811-1886), and they had nine children (seven of whom reached maturity). In his latter years, Scott retired from stock farming and began experimenting with the growing of citrus fruit in Florida.

Their oldest son, Preston Brown Scott (1832-1900) became a doctor, practiced medicine in Mississippi before the Civil War, served as a surgeon for the Confederacy, and settled in Louisville. In 1862 he married Jane E. Campbell (1840-1907), and they had five children. The three children who married were: Jane Porter Scott (1865-1928), who married Frank Woodruff of Atlanta; Campbell Scott (1869-1960), an engineer who married Nellie Mansfield Smith (d. 1949); and Rumsey Wing Scott (1876-1967), who married Eugenia "Jean" Jefferson (1880-1958).

John Orlando Scott (1837-1907), another son of the Robert Wilmot Scotts, also was a physician who began his practice in Owensboro and who served with the Confederates during the Civil War. Later, because of poor health, John moved to Texas. He married Ellen Melvin and they had four children: Louise Graham Scott (1866-1953), who married Edward Joseph Perry (1860-1923); Robert Wilmot Scott (1869-1903); Preston Brown Scott (1871-1955), who married Mamie Cotter; and Stewart Scott (d. 1941), whose wife's first name was Tassie.

Other children of the Robert Wilmot Scotts include Mary Brown Scott (1839-1885) who married Samuel Ire Monger Major (1830-1866), printer of the Kentucky Yeoman in Frankfort. Their surviving child was S. I. M. Major, Jr. (1877-1952). Ella Scott married Lafayette Green (see Green family biography). Elizabeth (1843-1925) never married. Louise Rucks Scott (1845-1920) married Edward Rumsey Wing (1843-1874), a promising young lawyer who was appointed minister to Ecuador in 1870, serving in that capacity until his death. In 1893 Louise's second marriage was to her cousin, William Campbell Preston Breckinridge (1837-1904). There were no children by either marriage. The youngest daughter, Henrietta "Etta" Reese Scott (1849-1929), married David Mitchell (d. 1900), an army doctor.

For the third and fourth generations of the Robert Wilmot Scott family, consult the genealogical data in Series II, Box 1, Folder 5, and in Series IV, Box 13, Folder 11.
