We're back

Freshman elections set, A.S. organization begins

Freshmen who want to join in the activities of "Campaign '68" are eligible to begin tossing their hats into the campus political arena beginning today.

Deadline for filing a declaration of candidacy for offices in the Class of 1972 and for freshman cheerleaders is 12:30 p.m. Monday.

Entry fee for cheerleaders and the offices of president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and representatives at-large is $1.50. Cheerleaders must also submit a picture when they sign up. No freshman on probation is eligible to run for cheerleader or class officer.

Cheerleader tryouts will be from 3 to 5 p.m. Tuesday before a committee in Snell Hall Auditorium.

Surviving candidates will be introduced at Freshman Assembly next Wednesday.

Letters of recommendation from a girl's high school cheerleading sponsor, principal or guidance counselor must be turned in to Carmen Willoughby in the office of the dean of student affairs by Sept. 28.

The primary elections will be Sept. 30 from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Pictures will be taken between 7 and 9 p.m. in the Associated Students office, Room 201 of the Student Center, on Oct. 1.

Candidates will speak before Freshman Assembly on Oct. 2 and the general election will take place from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Oct. 7.

The Associated Students has begun its work once again, making plans and laying the groundwork for the coming year's activities.

"We plan to meet and fulfill the student's wishes in every way we can," says Bill Straeffer, president of the organization.

The student congress met on Monday and Tuesday to appoint committees and discuss the upcoming elections of freshman officers and cheerleaders, Homecoming and other events.

A campaign begun last semester for later dorm hours for women has resulted in an additional half hour during the week for upperclassmen; they may stay out until 11 while freshmen must be in by 10. Both freshmen and upperclassmen may stay out until 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday and 11 on Sunday.

Westerners have become accustomed to seeing big-name entertainment on campus and on Oct. 17, the Associated Students will present "The Association" in Diddle Arena.

ATTENTION SENIORS!

If for some reason you have not filled out and turned in your undergraduate degree program forms, do so immediately on the second floor of the Administration Building. Juniors should complete the program forms this semester.

'Herald' again wins top national honors

The College Heights Herald has received the highest rating presented annually by the National Newspaper Service, a college and university rating organization, marking the second consecutive year the paper has won a major national award.

The 1967-68 Herald was granted the A-plus award by NNS, which is given to select college and university newspapers from hundreds submitted in the competition.

Last year the paper received first place recognition in national typography competition conducted by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Ron Lawrence, senior mass media major from Clarksville, Ind., was editor of the Herald for the period judged. Walter D. Richards, Western's director of publications, is faculty adviser of the paper.

In presenting the Herald with this award the agency's judges commented, "Here is a university newspaper of unusual merit, so readable that it could easily be competitive with the city dailies."

The citation continued, "Perhaps your greatest asset is the breadth of your coverage, not only for the student but for any reader."

"Students, of course, are interested in subjects of general interest, such as the state auto safety law, the student code in other colleges, absentee voting, the generation gap, our Vietnam policy, gun controls, student unrest on other campuses, student aid on a national scale and even the Kentucky Derby," all subjects written about in last year's Herald.

The judges also commended the Herald for its "factual and objective" reporting, "structurally sound headlines," picture composition and reproduction and the editorial page. Editorials were called "strong and timely."

Richards commented, "Of course this latest major honor together with last year's

Advice to frosh

Girls, keep your cool

By MIKE McDANIEL
Herald Staff Writer

It's that time of the year again—a time for girls to cram last summer's memories into that scrap book and for boys to make the annual class jump from common laborer to college student.

Ah yes, college life—the days of wine and roses.

Freshman orientation has begun, and the social processes have engulfed male and female in every locale of the college community. Across the country it's "Take a Co-ed to Lunch Week," a time reserved exclusively for attractive female freshmen. Many first-year females go as long as two weeks without spending a cent for food. (And if she works it right, she may be wooed by a new sweater with a stereo album to boot.)

But the poor naive freshman girl is to be pitied. What a fathomless pit she can fall into if she doesn't have the proper guidance. It's really depressing.

So, dear beautiful newcomer, my heart goes out to you, and you should know I have passed up the chance to work as a registration counselor, rejecting the outmoded practice of simply directing from aisle to aisle and section to section. I have made the sacrifice (15 dollars or so) in order to indoctrinate you to college life—my way.

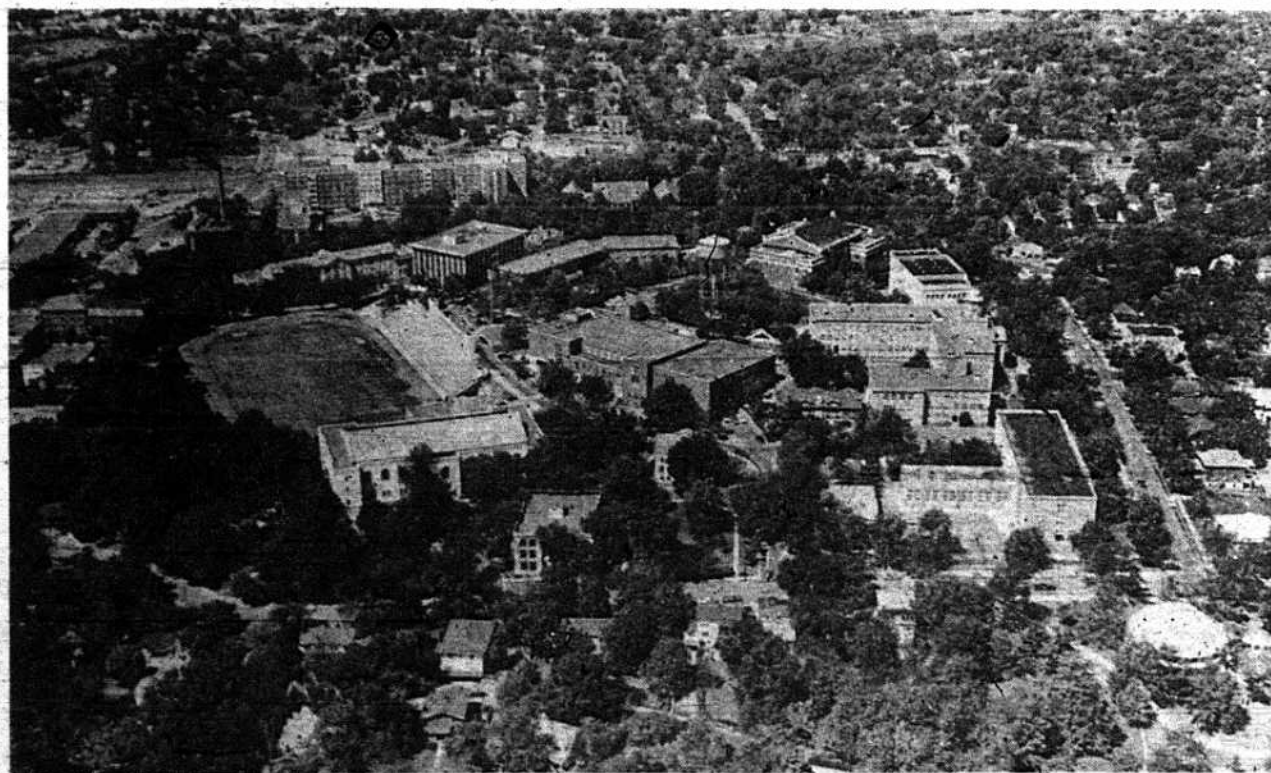

In order to be popular (which, after all is what you continually strive for in high school) one must be socially aware, "cool," as campus colloquialisms go. So here are a few simple instructions for you beginners which, if followed, can lower your temperature by at least 30 degrees.

"Dear Andy"

I've always wanted an "Andy Lenders" column, so here goes.

For the females, it's difficult to instruct a 17 or 18 year-old girl to use savoir-faire around the more mature male. There's

AN AERIAL VIEW seems to reduce the steepness of the "hill" to a flat plain. It never seems so compact to students, however, as they trudge straight up in the snow and rain.

WSM to boost local signal

A Nashville television station, WSM, has filed an application with the Federal Communications Commission for a license to locate a translator station on the Western campus.

The translator, or booster station, will be located atop the former library building near the crest of the campus Hill. The project is an experimental venture testing the feasibility of widespread booster systems.

Irving Waugh, president of WSM, Inc., said the Western location was selected because it would provide an ideal geographical spot for maximum reception throughout the city and surrounding area.

The translator, operated from Nashville, would increase the Channel 4 signal by 30 to 100 per cent, according to Waugh, by likely to be a generation gap. Chances are, you're a conservative, and he is a liberal, regardless of whether he can explain why. You'll have a natural tendency to flaunt your intellect. Don't do it. Plead ignorance on all matters, especially on political issues, and if the subject arises try to change it as soon as possible. A good line would be, "Isn't that a Gant shirt you're wearing?"

Freshmen girls, heed advice

If you know who John Kenneth Galbraith is, don't mention the fact. He'll either think you're a brain (i.e. dull) or he'll be embarrassed because he can't place the name. And if you talk religion, tell him you still go to church, but only once a week.

If you have dinner with a fraternity man, your line is "What a beautiful pin," but make sure it has jewels on it and don't mistake it for a badge; he got that free when he paid his initiation fee. Act as though you recognize the Greek letters at a glance; in fact, if you can work it, insinuate that you once had a relative in the same group.

Don't smoke on the first date.

but open your purse and give him a quick shot at your package, preferably Winston, Salem or Taryton. Other brands are considered too strong for a lady, and you don't want him to think you've been smoking all your life.

On beer, tell him you once got deathly sick on it (not drunk) and vow that you'll never touch the stuff again. A good line is, "I can't even stand to smell it." He'll smile and say, "You DO have to develop a taste for it." He knows you're lying, but it gives him a certain "ace in the hole" for further dating.

And girls, remember the little things, for right now a reputation is all you have. As dorm mothers will tell you, "beware of Greeks bearing gifts." And listen to your dean. To her, fraternity men are lechers.

Sift Through Advice

Don't trust guys who will offer to sit in your seat at freshman assembly. He will want you to type something for him at a later date. Also beware of guys who recommend an easy teacher, there's a chance he may have cheated his way through.

The first official date will come soon. A couple of hints: develop a challenge by hinting about a boy back home, and to display your maturity, slip in a couple of curse words (nothing stronger than damn or hell), as this will also keep him interested. You'll learn later that this is substitutional as opposed to subliminal. And don't be shocked if your date passes out. Simply rub his head and whisper softly, "I've never seen a boy who could drink quite as much."

Dorm Awareness Vital

Awareness in and around the dorm is important. First of all, you should have had a young virile male help you with your unpacking. If you have something like 75 blouses, you can impress him by making him carry all of them. After you administer first aid, be sure to tell him somehow that all of the clothes were bought, not made. That's a great enigma, as I will tell you later.

Among your new dorm relationships, you should act shocked at the language, and remember to spread the news about who you are dating. This will encourage the American ideal of fair competition and trade practices.

And girls, after you are settled awhile, you will find one of your fellow co-eds decked out in heels and bawling, her eyes out. Don't distress. Chances are she's out for sorority rush and she has been overwhelmed by the great sentimental display of sisterhood, complete with a beautiful showing including lighted candles and maudlin ballads.

Finally, and most important of all, avoid being labeled as a girl with a "great personality, who makes her own clothes and whom all the girls in the dorm like."

You will find that for the first bi-term, classes are secondary.

national typography award represent a signal honor for the Herald and the students who worked so diligently in its preparations each week. It demonstrates also that the Herald is a top quality publication of which the entire University can be proud."

Richards also singled out Herald assistant adviser, Robert Adams, as making significant contribution to the publication of the Herald and to its winning the recent awards.

Word to Wise: Retake courses now; Point computation to change soon

An academic ruling governing computation of point standing has been approved by the Board of Regents. The ruling is now in effect.

Under the new ruling, any course taken by an undergraduate during the first year of college work with a grade of D, F or WF may be repeated with only the second and third attempts counted in computing the academic average.

For sophomores, juniors and seniors the initial grade plus all repeated grades will be averaged into one cumulative grade for the course.

The maximum number of times a student may attempt any single course is three.

The effective date of the ruling was June 1, 1968, for all students who entered Western for the first time after that date.

For all students who are currently enrolled, the effective date will be Sept. 1, 1969.

Before the approval of this ruling, it had been the policy of the university to record only the last grade in a repeated course.

An appeal for special consideration by a student regarding the retaking of a course in his major, minor or area of concentration will be heard only upon the recommendation of the head of the department involved and then only if special consideration is needed to raise the average in that subject to the minimum required.

Students seeking special consideration in the general education requirements and in free electives must first consult with the registrar.

If, after this conference, an appeal is deemed appropriate, the Committee on Credits and Graduation will consider the students' request.

WSM booster

retransmitting the WSM-TV signal on Channel 10.

The booster station is expected to cost WSM $15,000, the company's president said. WSM is assuming complete financial responsibility for the project.

Western agreed to cooperate with WSM on the terms that, should any problems or adverse transmitting difficulties arise, the experiment could be terminated at the request of Western at any time.

The translator will consist of a 47-foot rod antenna with eight three-foot ears attached to it. Western officials agreed to the project after a study of aesthetic and transmitting factors revealed no adverse implications.

"Western is cooperating with WSM in the spirit of experimentation and research which is compatible with our attitude as a university," said Western President Kelly Thompson.

Thompson added that this venture wasn't designed or accepted in attempt to exclude any other broadcasting stations. He said Western would cooperate with other stations in studying the feasibility and in offering services for similar experiments.

Other news media have reported that a second Nashville television station, WLAC, has filed an application with the FCC requesting a license to construct and operate a translator station on the Western campus.

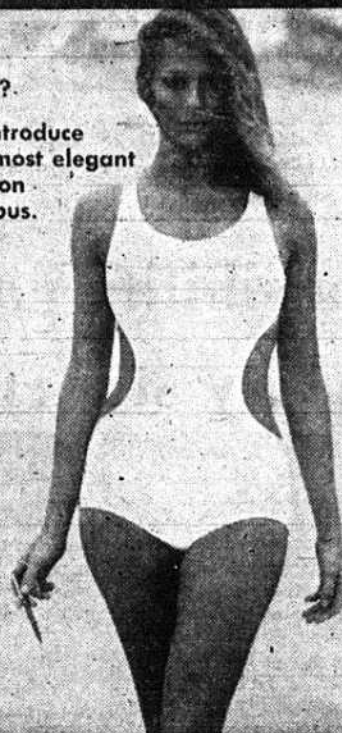

President Thompson said he was "surprised" to learn about the second station's plans. There has been no official agreement mentioned or discussed between WLAC-TV and the Western administration, although representatives of WLAC have reportedly contacted some faculty members in the television department.

Responsibility goes with university student status

With the beginning of the new school year and the influx of students, the campus atmosphere is a bustle of excitement and activity.

New students are concerned basically with moving in, registering and adjusting to a new study pattern and social environment. At first they probably do not realize that there is another very important aspect of college life. With the newcomers' statuses as university students comes responsibility as active members of the university community.

New students have the opportunity to assume their new roles as citizens of the university community immediately. They have no valid reason to hesitate in participating in campus politics, policy or activities just because they are, at first, unfamiliar with the social of traditional patterns of campus life. Upperclassmen have no priority, and for the most part no experience, in participation in campus activities.

Don't Ask Upperclassmen

The activity and concern of the majority of Western students in the past is certainly not commendable for students of a university. True, returning students will be able to give freshmen general advice about college and directions to classes across the physically growing campus. But freshmen who are interested in total university life — lecture series, concerts, student government, art exhibits and other cultural and educational opportunities — shouldn't even bother to inquire to the average upperclassman. Chances are he would have a small resource of information.

The facts constitute a story of how a college became a university and of how the mass of students failed to recognize responsibility as university students. A small minority of campus leaders and representatives of the administration organized and initiated a workable student government. Associated Students, in its third year of toddling existence, is the basic mode of student participation at Western.

Involvement Must Come

The student government organization made progress in providing entertainment and services that, for the most, have not been appreciated or used by the majority of students. This, in the main, has been no fault of the past officers or programs of Associated Students.

An awareness of student responsibility and activity has evolved recently on college and university campuses across the nation. This revolution of student concern should and must come to Western and it will require involvement of all students.

Welcome, aid reflect spirit

A friendly greeting is always appreciated, and the welcome that was given to Western students as they arrived in Bowling Green and Western this past weekend should not go unnoticed.

Various groups, including the Bowling Green - Warren County Chamber of Commerce, the ROTC, city police and campus security personnel, provided refreshment and information services for returning students.

More than 50 faculty and staff members and 150 area high school students were out in force carrying luggage for arriving students. Other groups and countless individuals joined with overt gestures of friendliness in greeting Western's student body.

The student newspaper would seem ungrateful if it did not acknowledge the actions of the above-mentioned groups. It is the profound desire of this newspaper that the relationship between Western students and Bowling Green continues to be as cordial as it has traditionally been.

"And so begins another semester of intensive study."

Want to express an opinion?

'Herald' defines letters policy

The Herald welcomes student and faculty opinion on campus matters again this year through its Letters to the Editor column.

Since its inception, the Letters to the Editor column has provided a forum of intelligent and tasteful expression for all members of the Western community.

To provide continued success of the column and to eliminate any confusion of misunderstanding, the staff reiterates the guidelines to be followed by persons desiring to submit letters.

1. Letters should be typewritten, double-spaced and should be limited to 200-250 words.

2. All letters must be signed and should also include the sender's classification or status and address. No names will be withheld from print.

3. Due to editorial page deadlines, letters should be received by the Herald editor, Seminar Center No. 1 by the Saturday preceding Thursday publication.

4. Letters which may subject the writer and — or newspaper to the possibility of libel will be returned to the writer to be rewritten or withdrawn from publication consideration.

5. The Herald is not obligated to print all letters submitted but will endeavor to provide equal space to expressions of both sides of a controversial issue. The column, however, is not open to prolonged or personal arguments.

6. No letters of condemnation will be published when it is impossible for the condemned to reply.

Absentee voters face deadline

All students — the politically involved and the woefully apathetic — are reminded that Oct. 16 is the deadline for applying for an absentee ballot.

You should apply to the county court clerk in your home county. When the ballot is returned, mark it before a notary public, have it notarized and return it to the county clerk so it will be received before election day.

Of course, if you are not properly registered to vote, this reminder is simply wasted space, since that deadline has already passed.

Eddie was an all-American boy until . . .

By MIKE McDANIEL
Herald Staff Writer

Not long ago, an old high school cohort and I celebrated a long-awaited reunion. And, in the style of Irwin Shaw, we discussed the athletic prowess we had once shared, and which had since escaped from both our still youthful, but now slightly obese bodies.

It was clearly a case of too many sausage pizzas, too many Coke substitutes, and too many hours of smoking cigarettes and watching Johnny Carson.

We sat, leaning forward, weeding through empty beer bottles in order to talk above the clatter of the blaring juke box and the boisterous antics of the wet multitudes. And we reminisced about the "80-yard runs" we were still embracing.

Sooner or later, we had to bring Eddie's name into the conversation.

Eddie was somewhat of an All-American kid in high school — he didn't smoke or drink and he was a dedicated football player. His dedication to the game was surpassed only by the determination of his coach to keep Eddie on the second team.

Eddie started to play the game as early as a 10-year-old, when he learned the gridiron philosophy while playing ball for a neighborhood team sponsored by the South End Optimist club.

Eddie cut his football teeth almost in my back yard. At Gottschalk Junior High School, on a make shift field with trees as boundaries, he would romp to his heart's content, knocking over the defense with the accuracy of an exploding shell. He loved the bruising game, as he loved his hometown of Louisville and his country.

Middle Class Influence

He was brought up with middle class influence and he was taught to respect his family, to cherish his friends and to love America, the greatest land in the world.

As a prep, Eddie spent most of the off-season where most of his high school buddies congregated — the local drive-in restaurant. On Tuesday nights, when the social clubs gathered at the "hangout" after their respective meetings, Eddie could be seen where the Cokes were piled the highest.

All the girls respected him, and he loved the admiration. He wore his letter jacket with the pride of an All-American. He was second team all the way, but he earned a letter, and most of all, he was the best-looking of all the prep heroes at duPont Manual High School.

His philosophy was simple: Eddie loved life. He loved driving around in his father's car, and having a beautiful girl sitting next to him put him in another world.

Dream Broken

Upon graduation, Eddie's dream was broken. Most of all he wanted to earn a football scholarship to a state university but a combination of mediocre grades and limited ability soon put an end to his hopes of a "free ride." He worked all summer in a factory to earn enough money to enroll at the state college of his choice.

My friend and I recalled talking to Eddie a couple of years back. Eddie had found college quite a difficult undertaking. I remembered his words: "All I did was sleep away the semester. I couldn't play ball because of eligibility requirements, so I guess I just kinda lost interest in school work."

Then he added, "I'm gonna join the Marines — you know, get my military duty over with then come back to school, compliments of the government."

'See You Later?'

I recalled wishing Eddie the best of luck and he promised he would see me on leave. "We'll get together for a couple of laughs, okay? I'll tell you all about Saigon U."

Eddie would have liked once again to have experienced the smoke-filled atmosphere of Calandrino's. He would have liked to have stuffed himself on pizza and beer. But especially, he would have loved to strut around in his uniform, impressing all the girls at Frisch's. Those adoring smiles seemed to be an integral part of his personality.

Eddie came home two summers ago, much sooner than he expected.

He was draped with an American flag, and even then the red stripe looked like a familiar stain. I don't suppose they ever found his legs where he slipped on that mine.

(Eddie should have been with us that night for that little reunion. He would have enjoyed telling us of that zig-zag touchdown run he never made.

SDS aims beyond campus says current 'Look' story

NEW YORK. — Students for a Democratic Society, one of the most militant and effective New Left organizations ever to appear on American campuses, aims to "radicalize" not only college students but eventually U.S. servicemen, factory workers and people in the professions.

Leaders of SDS were instrumental in closing down Columbia University last May and local SDS chapters across the country have been the vanguard of the college protest movement. The organization has been blasted by FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover as being Communist led.

An article appearing in the current issue of Look magazine reports that SDS militants have found it easier to sign up high school students as new members than post- or non-college adults, mainly blue and white collar workers.

While college students do not find it easy to convert time-clock punchers to their revolutionary doctrines, SDS is winning numerous converts in its high school campaign, the article said.

"And SDS is drawing more and more servicemen to its anti-war coffeehouses set up near military bases in an attempt to radicalize troops."

A major problem within the SDS itself is getting students to maintain their revolutionary zeal after graduation from college. The pressures of job, marriage and family often combine to sap a graduate's ardor for protest.

"Several organizations have been formed to channel the energies of the post-campus SDSer, but no one has satisfactorily resolved the hang-up of the Movement vs. the mortgage," the Look article said.

HIGH RISE is the newest word around campus—Western will soon sport the third tallest building in the state, a 27 story dormitory for men. The dorm, which is to be located adjacent to Bemis Lawrence and Barnes-Campbell Halls, will house 90 men when completed.

Changes slated

Teacher program expands to include more minors

Under new regulations recently adopted, students working under the teacher education curriculum may now take a second major or one minor in a non-teaching area.

According to the office of the vice president for academic affairs, the new regulation takes effect with the opening of the 1968 fall semester.

In the past students under this curriculum could major or minor only in subjects in which they could be certified to teach.

The new regulation will allow a student who has a 30-hour major in a subject which is certifiable to pursue a minor in a subject that is not certifiable under state regulations.

For example, a student getting a 30-hour major in history which is certifiable, could take a minor in religion or in philosophy which are not certifiable by state education regulations.

Book swaps to continue until Oct. 2

For the first time Western students have the opportunity to buy books for less and sell them for more, through the College Book Exchange Program.

Through the program, begun this semester by the Veterans club, used books will be evaluated as excellent, good or fair; the student will receive a receipt for the book and when it is sold he will receive 60 per cent, 50 per cent or 40 per cent respectively of what the book cost new depending upon its evaluation.

The student buying the book will pay the same price that the student selling it receives.

Books will be bought and sold until Oct. 2 in Room 208 of the Student Center.

Samoa sends 10 students to Western

Ten Samoan students will enroll at Western as a result of a new approach to foreign student recruitment.

According to Steve House, admissions counselor, the University has initiated a new practice of direct contact with foreign countries in drawing a greater number of academically talented students to Western.

The students are all from Samoa which has a communal type government and a consistently warm climate.

In addition to these students, foreign students from Iran, Hong Kong and Okinawa have been accepted on an individual basis and are scheduled to register this week.

A substantial increase in the number of foreign students is expected at Western in the next few years.

Two represent Delta Omicron at conference

Two members of Western's Omicron chapter of Delta Omicron international music fraternity for women attended the triennial conference at Eastern, Aug. 19-23.

Attending were Sara (Sally) Chandler, a senior music major from Bowling Green, who participated in the collegiate concert, and Paula Joe Stice, a senior music major from Louisville, who was an official delegate to the conference.

Social work opportunities are unlimited

One of the six best employment opportunities according to the U.S. Department of Labor is social work.

The shortage of people in the social work field is becoming a national manpower crisis. Estimates have been made that 100,000 additional professional social workers will be needed by 1975 to staff the federal programs alone.

Salaries have been increasing in an effort to fill these vacancies. According to the most recent National Association of Social Workers survey, the average salary for a 1967 graduate from schools of social work is $7,800 annually.

Information about career opportunities in social work, educational requirements, awards, scholarships and related subjects may be obtained from Neal Dockal, recruitment chairman, Breckinridge Chapter of National Association of Social Workers, in care of Department of Social Services, University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, Ky. 40506.

This information may also be obtained from the National Commission for Social Work Careers, Box 4511, New York, N.Y. 10017.

English department initiates changes in course offerings

The English department is initiating several changes in its offerings for the fall semester according to Dr. Willson E. Wood, department chairman.

Beginning this fall freshmen who make a high enough score on the ACT test will not be required to take English 101. In place of this they advance to English 102. Also a new course is being offered to freshmen. This is English 104 which will be a freshman elective and is a course in linguistics.

Upper division courses will also undergo a definite change. Survey of American Literature will be divided into two courses giving more emphasis to the major periods. The Victorian Period, English 383 and Tennyson and Browning will be discontinued and replaced with English 487, Victorian Prose and English 488, Victorian Poetry. Other courses which will be added to the department are Phonetics 405 and American Regional English 406.

English 492, Modern American Literature has been discontinued and replaced with English 493, Major American Writers. Also a new course has been established dealing with major Southern writers. This is English 495, Literature of the South. Most of the courses can be taken for graduate work. Some of these courses are not being offered this semester.

The graduate division has also been enriched and many new courses added. Among these courses are English 520, Methodological Study, Literary Criticism will be separated into two courses. There will also be a re-establishment of the study of Milton, English 585. A new course in the age of Twain and James as well as a graduate seminar in American Literature will also be offered.

By SONDRA LEE
"The costumes, the make up, the scenery, the props..." and all phases of the theater are now being offered in the newly organized speech and theater department.

The department has ten full-time instructors, three part-time instructors and two graduate assistants who are "really enthusiastic about the program," according to Randall Capps, department head.

Previously, drama, speech and theater were included in the English department. Due to the rapidly increasing English department, a separate department for speech and theater was organized. The former library is presently being renovated to house the study facilities of debate, forensics, drama and theater.

Classrooms for the new department are presently located in Cherry Hall, Rock House, Curry House and Seminar Center No. 1.

Theatrical productions will be held in the Van Meter Auditorium, which is presently being renovated. New equipment including improved lighting, air conditioning and an orchestra pit will offer possibilities for unique effects.

The debate teams, under the direction of Gary Bradford, are planning to participate in twenty tournaments on several campuses across the nation.

DeArmond to Head Drama Fraternity

Bill DeArmond, Bowling Green, has been elected the 1968-69 president of the Mu Lambda Chapter of the Alpha Psi Omega drama fraternity.

Other new officers are Donna Mickey, Lexington, vice president; Beverly Gail Barton, Falls-of-Rough, secretary-treasurer; and Georgie Gidcomb, Russellville, public relations representative.

THE NEWLY ORGANIZED Speech and Theater department will be housed in the former library. It is being reconstructed to fit its new purpose.

IFC workshop sets dates for rush, activities

By FREDDIE GOINS

Rush was the main topic of discussion at the annual pre-school interfraternity workshop held Sept. 12 and 13 under the leadership of David Broderick, IFC president.

Dates for closed rush registration are Sept. 25 through Sept. 27. Closed rush involves men who wish to rush all of the campus fraternities.

A registration booth will be set up in the student center; also, the IFC will have special booths set up at night in the lobbies of the men's dorms. It is anticipated that the use of booths in the dorm lobbies will help IFC reach more men and help familiarize all men with the Greek system.

Open rush registration will be Oct. 15 and Oct. 16; this involves men on campus who have definitely decided the fraternity they wish to pledge. The names of open rushers will be turned in to Dean Jack Sagabiel's office with a $3 fee.

Rushers will participate in house visitations and parties

House visitation will be mandatory and the schedule is as follows: Sept. 30, 6-10 p.m., Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Sigma and Phi Delta Theta; Oct. 1, 6-10 p.m., Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Lambda Chi Alpha; Oct. 2, 6-10 p.m., Pi Kappa Alpha, Alpha Gamma Rho and Alpha Tau Omega; and Oct. 3, 7-10 p.m., Sigma Nu and Sigma Chi.

Bids will be extended on Oct. 14 between 4 and 7 p.m. at the IFC office.

Other important business was the reading and accepting of the IFC constitution which has been revised by a committee headed by Tom Lewis.

Homecoming plans were discussed and it was decided that the IFC would hold two dances on the Saturday night of Homecoming weekend. It is necessary to have two dances to accommodate the large number of people who will be on our campus that weekend. One will be in the student center ballroom and the other will be off campus.

Sorority rush opening set next Sunday

Fall rush for women begins on Sept. 22 with a Panhellenic Tea from 2 until 5 in the student center ballroom.

To be eligible for rush a girl must have earned 12 semester hours and have a 2.2 point standing.

Rush week will continue until Sept. 28; bids will be picked up on Sept. 30.

Girls must attend the tea to be eligible for rush.

The Panhellenic Council will sponsor a dance on Sept. 21 from 8 to 12 in the student center ballroom.

Music will be provided by "The Oxfords." A limited number of tickets are available at $2 in advance and $2.50 at the door.

AAUP to honor new faculty at annual supper Sept. 28

The American Association of University Professors will hold its annual supper honoring new faculty members at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 28, in the Castner Knott community room.

The AAUP, a professional organization for instructors in institutions of higher learning, is primarily concerned with developing and strengthening ideal conditions for teaching and research.

Dr. George McCelvey, president of the Western chapter, said that projects to be considered by the organization during the year include continued support and encouragement of the Honors Program; study of the legal and practical relationships of the Council of Higher Education and the state institutions of higher learning; broadening academic activities on campus; and studying the implications of Western's status as a university.

More than 100 members and guests attended the gathering last year.

Dr. McCelvey will serve as AAUP president for the first semester and Dr. Eugene Evans will be president during the second semester.

Other officers are Dr. John Parker, vice president; Pauline Griffin, secretary; Lysbeth Wallace, treasurer; and Dr. Hugh Thomson and Dr. Jim Wayne Miller, executive committee.

FALL FASHIONS FOR FRESHMEN at Western tend to be on the "fancy" side—girls can't go wrong with a dressy fall outfit and guys are always ready with a glen plaid suit.

Coeds find flexibility as key to campus fashion

By SKILA HARRIS

Every year just as the leaves are making their main change, girls all over are being transformed from high school "teeny boppers" into college coeds, and this fall, Western will be no exception.

This change brings with it the necessity for fashion planning. To keep expenses down the thing to remember is never buy clothing that is not needed. A small, well-planned wardrobe smartly coordinated can make any girl a big hit on campus.

The key to successful planning is to know what type of clothing is worn at WKU.

Enough fall and spring cotton dresses and winter outfits to last two weeks without repetition should be adequate for any college coed on the go.

To their delight many girls find that dressy clothes are suitable for more occasions than casual or school clothes. Five dressy dresses and three suits will be more than ample to get you through the social whirl of games, more than casual fraternity parties, movies, dinner dates and concerts.

Suits and heels, dressy skirts and sweaters, and dresses are the accepted attire for football and basketball games. If you are wondering about color, you can never go wrong with red at Western!

For those big evenings on the hill, you will need two or three cocktail dresses, one of which could be the ever popular and traditional black. These will take care of your formal wear except in the case of spring formals which usually call for a long formal.

Casual dates, dorm lounging, afternoon wear and certain parties require slacks. You can get double use from your sweaters by coordinating them with both your slacks and skirts.

Through careful wardrobe planning, clothes coordination and plenty of hard studying someday you may be a well-dressed sophomore!

Integration of styles make the WKU man 'in'

Men on Western's campus this fall will generally dress in the groovy or conservative classification of fashions.

The groovy guys are found sporting plaid pants, traditional solid and strip shirts, V-neck sweaters, dark socks and tassel loafers or saddle oxfords for class.

Bermuda shorts, horizontal-stripe knit shirts and loafers without socks are making the groovy scene for casual wear.

On dress occasions these men are seen wearing Glen-plaid, chalk-stripe, twill-cord and double-breasted suits, pin stripe shirts, Harvard-stripe ties, wing-tips shoes and dark socks.

Groovies are exploring into new fashions for formal attire, the middle-length Nehru jacket and pastel or patterned tux jackets.

Conservative dressers are staying basically to stay-pressed pants, pin-stripe shirts, V-neck sweaters, dark socks and loafers for leisure time and classes.

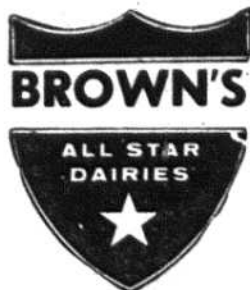

For Sundays, football games and dress occasions, conservatives choose suits with vests; pin-stripe shirts, Harvard stripe or Club ties, dark socks and wing-tip or classical moccasin oxfords.

For formal affairs these guys wear the basic black tux and bow ties.

Western has its share of grubbies on campus. These Bohemian dressers' wardrobes consist of basic jeans, sweatshirts, no socks, desert boots, tennis shoes and sandals.

Optional pieces of grubby dressers include cut offs, Army jackets, turtle-neck sweaters, Mexican ponchos and low-slung, hip-hugging African hunting jeans.

Of course there are overlappings of groovy, conservative and grubby dressers. The Western man who is "in" is likely to be a combination of the three categories with emphasis on either groovy or conservative.

WKU to face Bulldog II on Saturday

By PAUL JUST
Herald Sports Writer

Veteran coach Tony Hinkle and his Butler University Bulldogs invade the Western campus Saturday to test rookie head coach Jimmie Feix and his highly regarded Hilltoppers in the first contest of the 1968 football season.

Whatever the outcome, the game will long be remembered by Western fans as the initial athletic event in Western's spacious 19,250-seat L. T. Smith Stadium, the Ohio Valley Conference's largest football facility.

Hinkle brings his charges into Saturday's contest smarting from a sound thrashing at the hands of Akron last week, 32-7. In addition to entering the win column, the Bulldogs will be out to avenge a 36-14 defeat by Western during the 1967 season. Top returnees for Butler include running backs Larry Gilbert and Jim Wallace, and quarterbacks Dick Reed and Bob Walsman. Reed (16 of 29) and Walsman (four of seven) combined to propel the Bulldogs via the passing route against Akron.

On the home front, Western appears ready for a good season if the inexperienced offensive line can jell and give the Tops' veteran backfield a chance to maneuver. Saturday's game should answer this query.

This weekend's contest pits the head coaching experience of Butler's Tony Hinkle against first-year head mentor Jimmie Feix. Hinkle, who also coaches basketball and baseball at the Indianapolis school, has been at Butler 48 years including 31 as

As season opener neurs

Inexperienced offensive line looms as question for Toppers

By TONY COCHRAN

Western's 1968 edition of Hilltopper football promises to be interesting to say the least. Very little depth and inexperience loom to be Western's biggest woes according to new Head Coach Jimmie Feix.

"Although we aren't as big as last year, we seem to be a little quicker," Feix claimed. He went on to say, "Our enthusiasm and physical condition looks very optimistic." Feix also feels Western will be physically and mentally ready for their opener against Butler in the new L. T. Smith Stadium at 1:30 Saturday afternoon. "We haven't even mentioned the OVC. It's all Butler."

The big question this fall is the offensive line's inexperience. Only one letterman, guard Ed King, holds a starting berth and King was an end last fall. The rest are freshmen and sophomores. Offensive line Coach Joe Bugel said, "They are young and aggressive and could be good if they don't make too many mistakes."

Western's lack of depth is due to the OVC limit of scholarships which hampers any massive recruiting. Key injuries have already started playing a role in how effective the Hilltoppers will be this fall. Jesse Green, Steve Rusnock, Bob McGrath, and Jim LaSalvia, all figuring in the Topper hopes this fall, are nursing injuries. However, Jim Sprinkle is easing the pain with his versatility. "Sprinkle can fill in at most of our backfield positions simply because of his knowledge of the game," Feix sighed.

As far as the effect the offensive line has had on the effectiveness of the "Big Red" rushing game, Feix claimed, "It has been more than adequate." "All-American Dickie Moore gained 113 yards in 39 carries in our first scrimmage," he said. According to Feix, Moore is "healthy and running good."

Johnny Vance and Mike Egan are battling it out for the quarterback slot. Egan held a slight edge because of his experience until he was injured. Vance returning after a kidney operation last season is now running the offense. "With the tensions of opening the new stadium and the season, I may go with Egan and his experience. As far as physical ability, there is very little difference between Vance and Egan."

Leading the parade of promising freshman is versatile

Isaac Brown, an All-Stater from Owensboro. Bill Sikes from Clarksville, Tenn. could be the starting center. Bob McGrath, an All-Stater and Mike Gee also figure in Feix's plans for the fall.

Defensively, the Hilltoppers

THURSDAY,

Harriers have visions of wearing OVC crown

By PAUL JUST
Herald Sports Writer

There is an old proverb (slightly altered) stating that a young man's thoughts turn to love in the spring and to football (?) in the autumn.

This may be true for many, but for a few young men and two coaches at Western the fall brings visions of running and dreams of an Ohio Valley Conference cross country championship.

The coaches in question are head track coach Dr. Burch Oglesby and his brother turned assistant, Gerald Oglesby. Head coach Oglesby, entering his third year as a Hilltopper mentor, is quite optimistic about Western's chances of capturing its first cross country crown since 1964. "I look for us to challenge," mused Oglesby, "although Eastern, last year's champ, will be hard to beat since most of their squad returns."

Experience will undoubtedly play an important role as Hilltoppers lost only two men, Pete Sullivan and Jim Gossett, from last year's team which placed third in the conference behind Eastern and Tennessee Tech. That same squad was undefeated in dual competition (6-0), won the Union (Tenn.) Invitational, the Kentucky Federation Championships and the Western Kentucky Invitational and finished third in the Harding Invitational.

Returnees include one senior, Craig Stern; two juniors, Darrell Myers and David Holdman; and four sophomores, Ron Timberlake, John Swain, Ron Koker and Mike Reardon.

Adding depth to the squad will be freshmen Hector Ortiz, Chris England, David Baumer, Edward Lane, Ron Carpenter,

COACH BURCH OGLESBY

Harvey Penney and Jerry Gossett, brother of the graduated Jim.

Here is the schedule:
Sept. 28 — at Owensboro Invitational (Southern Illinois, Indiana University, Eastern Kentucky, Murray, Bellarmine, and Western).

Oct. 3 — at Austin Peay
Oct. 5 — Southeast Missouri
Oct. 12 — University of Louisville and Cumberland College at Williamsburg.

Oct. 15 — David Lipscomb
Oct. 19 — at Memphis State
Oct. 26 — at Murray
Oct. 28 — Tennessee Tech
Nov. 2 — Western Kentucky Invitational at Bowling Green Country Club.

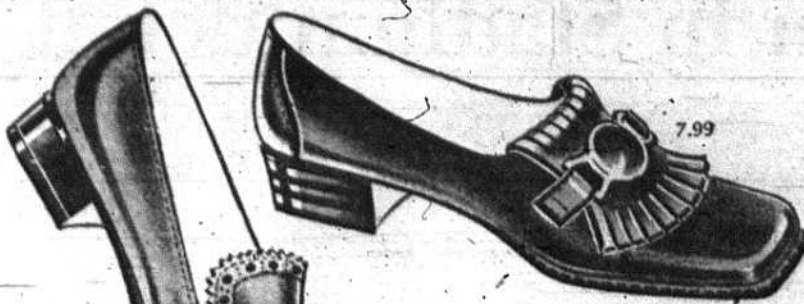

Nov. 5 — at University of Tennessee

Nov. 9 — Kentucky Federation Championships, Louisville.

Nov. 16 — OVC Championships, Johnson City, Tenn.

Nov. 25 — NCAA Championships, New York City.

Intramurals provide sports participation

Sports enthusiasts are invited to take part in Western's intramural sports program.

Intramurals are for men and women and provide students a setting for participation in sports and games.

Activities available to students are those that have been popular over the years; new activities are added when sufficient interest is shown.

Intramurals are divided into three separate programs.

The competitive sports program offers each student an opportunity to compete with other students in sports and games of their choice. The women's competitive program is organized under the Women's Recreation Association.

A second program involves club activities. Emphasis here is given to developing high levels of ability in a particular sport.

Some clubs, such as swimming, gymnastics and judo, compete against similar organizations from other colleges and universities. Interested students should contact the faculty sponsor of the club of interest to them.

The third program in intramural sports involves recreational play of students. Play fields, equipment and facilities of the department are made available for recreational use when possible.

All students at Western are eligible to participate in the program; special eligibility rules have been established for competitive sports and club programs.

The intramural program is conducted by the Department of Intramural Sports. It includes an intramural director; a sponsor for the Women's Recreation Association; a graduate assistant in men's intramurals, Scott Brewer; and student assistants.

New edition, old cheers

"New" is the watchword for the '68 Hilltopper football campaign. New head coach Jim Feix and his young staff will lead their Topper troops against Butler University in the new L. T. Smith Stadium, Saturday afternoon.

Despite the "new" look, many Western traditions will continue. Overflow crowds armed with bright red towels are commonplace on those crisp autumn afternoons. Coach Feix remarked, "We realize the extreme value of total student support. There will be a great amount of pressure on our young men when we open against Butler. With the student body's backing our task will be much easier."

stack up to be very stingy. All but one regular returns with a letterman filling the empty gap. Feix glowed, "They came back this August in good physical condition and they seem to realize that they must prove themselves again this fall. They aren't resting on their laurels." Included in the veteran unit is Captain Walter Heath, a three-year letterman who has looked "real good" Jim Garrett also a three-year letterman, who has been contacted by a professional team, and Lawrence Brame who received All-OVC honors last year as a freshman.

Garden and Sugar Bowl trips highlight basketball slate

Appearances in New York's new Madison Square Garden, the Chicago Stadium and in New Orleans Sugar Bowl are the feature attractions in a 26-game basketball schedule for 1968-69 announced Tuesday by Athletic Director Ted Hornback.

In addition to 14 games against Ohio Valley Conference competition, the Hilltoppers will open the season at home with five straight non-league opponents, including highly regarded Southern Methodist University and St. Francis (Pa.). Western will also play some of the nation's top-ranked teams in later road trips to Dayton, LaSalle and Butler.

Western will face Toledo in Madison Square Garden in half of a double header, with St. Louis and Rutgers tangling on the same bill Dec. 12. Only two nights later the Hilltoppers play in another doubleheader at Chicago Stadium. Western clashes with Michigan State in that one, while Loyola of Chicago meets Minnesota.

Pairings for the Sugar Bowl tourney have not been announced yet. Other participating teams are Houston, Duke and Iowa.

Western's date with Toledo in Madison Square Garden will be the Hilltoppers' first in the new arena. They last played in the old Garden at the end of the 1964-65 season in the National Invitation Tournament. Their last regular season appearance in New York was in December, 1959, when Western dumped Seton Hall.

The game will mark the first time Western and Toledo have met, although both participated in the NCAA Mid-East Regional Tournament in 1967.

The Chicago Stadium clash also marks the first meeting between Western and Michigan State. Western and SMU have never met in regular season play, although the Hilltoppers hold a 2-0 edge over the Mustangs in tournament competition.

Western heads into the 1968-69 campaign with a crop of highly heralded sophomores and two holdover starters from last season, 6-1 guard Rich Hendrick and 6-9 center Walker Banks. The sophomore crop will include 7-0 Jim McDaniel, 6-3 Jim Rose, 6-3 Jerome Perry, 6-4 Jerry Walsh and 6-7½ Clarence Glover, who were the top five scorers from the past season's frosh team.

"The strength of this schedule will certainly let these young players of ours know in a hurry what they can expect from the toughest kind of collegiate competition," said Johnny Oldham, Western's head coach. "Playing teams of that caliber is a real challenge to us."

Here is the 1968-69 varsity basketball schedule:

Nov. 30 — Louisiana College.
Dec. 2 — Southeast Louisiana;
5 — Union (Tenn.); 7 — Southern Methodist University;

Did you know?

"Did you know that the first of five Western Little All-Americans in football was Jimmy Feix, new Topper head football coach? In 1952 he was a nifty little quarterback passing Western to a 9-1-0 slate, a victory in Western's first bowl game (the Refrigerator Bowl), and a tie for the OVC championship. Other Western Little All-Americans have been Jim Hardin (1957), John Mutchler (1963), Dale Lindsay (1964) and Dickie Moore (1967).

"Did you know recently retired football coach Nick Dehes is the only man to have coached teams to Kentucky state championships in three different sports: in football at Louisville Male in 1951, in basketball at Corbin in 1933 and in track several times at Male?

"Jim Pickens, Western baseball mentor, was named All-OVC quarterback from Western on the first conference all-star squad in 1948.

"Did you know that former Topper assistant football coach Turner Elrod once held the Western school record in the mile run?

"Did you know that Western once whipped the University of Miami, 19-0? (1930).

College Heights Herald kaleidoscope

Then . . . now . . .

EVEN AFTER 53 years of progress, the famous "hill" is nearly the same. The top picture, taken around 1915, shows the beginning of Western's skyline. The lower view, however, emphasizes the more recent structural developments on campus.

Thompson, Straeffer welcome students

Welcome to Western! We hope your life on our university campus will be prosperous both academically and socially. The 1968-69 Associated Students will do all within its power to make your collegiate days an experience of memorable achievement. It is with this enthusiasm and spirit that the Associated Students' Congress welcomes you to a year of unlimited possibilities.

Student Congress has many varied and exciting activities planned, including dances, lectures and "big-name" entertainment. Our plans, no matter how extravagant or detailed, will be no more than "good intentions" without your support and participation.

We invite your suggestions, criticism and participation in the administration of the Associated Students. Our doors are always open to students who wish to actively participate in the functions of the Student Congress.

Again, welcome to Western — it's great to have you here!

Bill Straeffer

President, Associated Students

Pres. Thompson

Bill Straeffer

This is a message of greeting to every student of Western Kentucky University. It is, in a way, an invisible handshake from Western to you, as you begin what should be a most challenging year in your educational career.

You are the purpose of the work of the past and of the efforts of today. It is our desire that the year will be one of great achievement and satisfaction for you. Therefore, it is our hope that your stay at Western will be a happy and educationally exciting period of your life and that it will be most fruitful in terms of accomplishment. Western's goal is to make it so.

All indications point to another excellent year in Western's history. A substantially expanded faculty and staff, increased physical facilities and an inspiring general attitude give promise of what can be. Aspiring together, working together — there is no limit to how far we can go.

Through the columns of the College Heights Herald, we take this opportunity to express the hope that the 1968-69 school year may be the finest one that you have ever known; and may it be the greatest year for Western in its entire history.

Sincerely,
Kelly Thompson

Introducing . . .

the new faculty and staff

As the 1968-69 academic year begins, students will find many changes when they enter the classrooms. One of the most significant and far-reaching is the addition of new faculty members, who bring with them to Western the widest range of experience and education in the University's history.

According to Dr. Raymond L. Cravens, vice president of academic affairs and dean of the faculties, approximately 41 per cent of the faculty have earned the doctorate degree while more than 50 per cent have completed at least two years beyond the master's degree.

In addition to the expanded teaching faculty, the administrative staff has been enlarged to handle the increasing responsibilities of a rapidly growing university.

'Talisman' plans photo schedule

Instead of using the pictures that appear in the student identification cards in the Talisman, Western's yearbook, arrangements have been made for freshmen, sophomores and juniors to have new pictures taken.

Pictures will be made in the student center ballroom according to the following schedules:

| First initial of last name | Date              |
|----------------------------|-------------------|
| A-C                        | Monday, Sept. 30  |
| D-G                        | Tuesday, Oct. 1   |
| H-M                        | Wednesday, Oct. 2 |
| N-R                        | Thursday, Oct. 3  |
| S-Z                        | Friday, Oct. 4    |

According to Dottie Hild, editor of the yearbook, pictures will be taken from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

There is no charge for the picture to appear in the yearbook. However 12 wallet size pictures for personal use may be purchased for $3 plus tax, payable at the time the pictures are taken.

Friday, Sept. 27, has been announced by the Talisman staff as the deadline for Western seniors to make appointments for their yearbook photographs.

Draft drains graduate pool

The Selective Service law which abolished draft deferments to all graduate students not involved in medicine, dentistry or the ministry will have an immediate effect on Western's graduate program.

According to Dr. John Minton, dean of the Graduate School, the school will suffer approximately a 50 per cent loss of its young male graduate students this fall.

There will also be a loss of many young male teachers from the surrounding area who would be attending graduate school on a part-time basis during the coming school year.

RECITATION HALL, which housed Western's first classrooms, was torn down and replaced by Cherry Hall in the early thirties.

Young man's 'pioneer project' grows into state university

Editor's note: In order to better acquaint new students with Western's heritage, this article is being reprinted from the Feb. 25, 1966 'Herald' which commemorated university status. The article was written by Margaret Ann Gentry, now a staff writer for the 'Park City Daily News.'

An idealistic 19-year-old youth established a school in Glasgow in 1875, little dreaming his pioneer project would rise to the heights of a great university.

The young man was A. W. Mell, employed as principal of the Urania Common School. An enterprising fellow, Mell foresaw the end of his income when the school closed in February. He also saw the need for a school in the Southern Kentucky area to train teachers. So he started one.

A graduate of the school, J. Tom Williams, later became associated with Mell in the administration of the school. When the student body outgrew the school and in fact outgrew its hometown, Glasgow, the educators proposed to move the school to another location.

The city of Bowling Green promptly came up with the necessary financial support. After a bitter struggle the move was made in late summer of 1884.

Southern Normal School

The Mell and Williams school, subsequently called the Southern Normal School after establishment in Bowling Green, was founded on the principle of an inexpensive education for everyone who wanted it.

Unfortunately, the principle led to the decline of the institution. When its administrators both married, they found a family could not live as cheaply as one.

Professor Williams became interested in other business concerns.

Professor Mell took a position in another educational organization to support his family.

Passing through a succession of administrative hands, the Southern Normal School remained in a decline until two energetic brothers, Thomas Crittenden Cherry and Henry Hardin Cherry, saw the great possibilities lying in waste on the Hill.

Rebuilt College

The two brothers, educated spasmodically and by their own efforts, finally had the opportunity to attend a normal school. After becoming teachers and doing a little traveling, they decided to come back to Bowling Green and rebuild the town's college.

In 1884 they restored the school and restated its emphasis on the training of teachers. The Cherry brothers knew the principles of advertising. They knew they were going to have to talk long and hard about the Bowling Green school in order to interest a great number of students in attending. Their advertising campaign was successful.

Also in 1884, the growing school changed its name to the Southern Normal School and Bowling Business College. Henry Hardin Cherry was president of the joint organization. The school achieved official status as a state college by act of the 1906 Legislature. Dr. Cherry became the first president of the Western Kentucky State Normal School, Jan. 1, 1907.

In 1922 the Kentucky Legislature changed the name to Western Kentucky State Normal School and Teachers College and granted the college the right to confer degrees on its graduates.

In the same year a four-year course of study beyond high school was approved. Four-year degrees were first conferred in 1924.

Twentieth century changes include the 1931 milestone when master's degrees were conferred. Though discontinued from 1936 to 1941, the graduate program has continued since.

The Bowling Green College of Commerce, once a part of the Cherry school, continued operation as a private institution until 1963 when it was absorbed as Western Kentucky State College, the school's name from 1948 until February 1966.

The tenacious founder of a pioneering school in Glasgow 93 years ago was younger than most Western students of today. But he had a dream and he had to make a living. He put the two motives together to form a school which, though he didn't foresee it, became a great university.

THE "RED BARN," Western's first gymnasium, was wrecked in the late twenties and replaced by a newer structure, since reconstructed as Margie Helm Library. Diddle Arena was dedicated in 1963.

A small start leads to a booming present

Editor's note: Athletics has enjoyed a long and glorious tradition at Western. This article which appeared in the Feb. 25, 1966 'Herald' briefly sketches that tradition.

"Informal" is perhaps the most appropriate, as well as the most generous, term to use in describing Western's earliest athletic program.

From an era that saw a part-time coach whose team played an irregular and haphazard schedule with extremely limited facilities, Western athletics have evolved into a widely recognized, well-rounded program.

As a university, of course, its opportunities and abilities to carry out this training are enhanced to a degree greater than ever before.

Different interpretations can be found as to precisely when athletics at Western had their origin. The earliest probable date would be 1905, when Southern Normal School, a predecessor of Western, hired Vanderbilt's Dan McGugin to build a football team.

The Southern Normal team held its practice sessions on a field now occupied by Bowling Green High School. It won one game, lost four and played in a disputed game with Cumberland that ended with each team claiming a 12-0 victory. The latter contest may be at least initially responsible for there having been no further intercollegiate competition at either Southern Normal or Western for the next five years.

The first contest for the school under the name "Western" was a baseball game played in Bowling Green on May 2, 1910. The Western Kentucky State Normal pitcher, unnamed in any available account of the game, set a pattern for excellence that has been the goal of Western ever since. He hurled a no-hit shutout in pacing his teammates to a 6-0 win over Eastern Kentucky.

One of the greatest steps toward athletic maturity came with the hiring of E. A. Diddle as coach and athletic director in 1922. His determination, dedication, ability and concern for his young charges have dominated the Western athletic scene ever since his arrival on the campus.

His coaching success — 759 basketball victories against only 302 defeats in 42 seasons — helped the school gain national prominence and acclaim, a solid stature in achievement.

At the present, the responsibility for carrying on Western's enviable athletic traditions belongs to 12 men who make up one of the most dynamic and energetic coaching staffs to be found anywhere. It is headed by Ted Hornback who now serves as athletic director and tennis coach.

The basketball staff consists of Head Coach Johnny Oldham and assistants Buck Sydnor and Jim Richards. Jimmie Peis heads a football staff made up of Joe Bugel, Robbia Franklin.

"How To Be Happy 'tho' Married"

Dr. E. J. Daniels has written four books on love, courtship, sex and marriage problems. He has been a marriage counsellor for years. Tens of thousands have found new happiness in marriage as a result of the truths he will present Saturday night. He will give a sure-cure for divorce and a guaranteed recipe for perpetuating the honeymoon.

For the first and only time Dr. Daniels will offer to married people his book on "SEX TECHNIQUE IN MARRIAGE." You must have on a wedding ring, or "that married look" to get this book. NOT SOLD TO SINGLES! Book praised by ministers, lawyers, marriage counsellors, and thousands of married couples whose marriages have been saved by the truths presented.

Dr. Gibson challenges graduates

Dr. Raymond Gibson, a Western alumnus who is one of the nation's leading authorities on higher education and an Indiana University professor was the speaker for summer commencement, Aug. 9.

At the ceremony the University graduated 507 students. There were 234 bachelor's degrees granted and 273 master's degrees awarded.

Western's 1968 summer school enrollment set a new record with 3,573 students taking classes.

This was an increase of 21 per cent over the enrollment of 2,965 for the summer of 1967, according to Rhea P. Lazarus, registrar.

CONSTRUCTION HAS BEGUN on the new Education Complex which will house the departments of Elementary Education, Secondary Education and Psychology of the College of Education. The Complex will consist of two buildings—one four-floor circular structure with two matching semi-circular wings and one one-floor circular structure.

Small start

Art Zeleznik and Jackie Pope, Birch Oglesby and Gerald Oglesby guide track and cross country, Jim Pickens is baseball coach and Frank Griffin, formerly of the football staff, handles golf.

Western teams have appeared in the most notable events the nation has to offer, including the NCAA and National Invitation basketball tournaments, the Tangerine and Refrigerator Bows and some of the country's most outstanding spring sports meets and tournaments.

Evidence of the present coaching staff's ability to maintain this pattern of success came in last year's winning of the Ohio Valley Conference's All-Sports Trophy, symbolic of all-around athletic excellence and achievement.

Many of Western's former athletes have entered the coaching profession, passing on the same sound philosophies and doctrines they originally learned as Hilltoppers. Included in this category are eight members of the current coaching staff.

There have been many notable physical milestones along Western's trail of athletic progress. Among the most memorable were the building of the old football stadium in 1927, the completion of the Physical Education Building (now the Margie Helm Library) in 1932, the inauguration of play in the Academic Athletic Building and E. A. Diddle Arena in 1963 and this Saturday the beginning of a new football season in the L. T. Smith Stadium.

The next step in the development of Western sport facilities will be the completion of the Athletic Complex II which will include classrooms for physical education classes, offices for the coaches, baseball field and tennis courts.
