Upperclassmen Will Hold Primary Elections For Officers Tomorrow

Primary elections will be held tomorrow from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Paul L. Garrett Student Center for the purpose of narrowing the field of candidates for class officers. The classes in question are the senior, junior, and sophomore.

This method differs from that of the past in that a primary election will be held outside of the nominating class meeting. Final elections will be held during the same hours on Thursday, October 12.

After accepting a recommendation from last year's student council, the administration feels that this new system will eliminate many of the problems of the past class elections.

Students with a minimum of 26 hours are eligible to vote in the senior primary; students with a minimum of 56 semester hours are eligible to vote in the junior primary; and students with a minimum of 26 semester hours are eligible to vote in the sophomore primary.

In addition to regular class offices, students will have the opportunity to select by vote the respective class candidates for homecoming queen.

All three of these classes met last Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of nominating candidates for the respective offices. Mr. Lisle Sherrill, of the Biology department, Dr. H. L. Stephens, head of the Biology department, and Mr. Hugh Johnson, of the Mathematics department were in charge of the seniors, juniors, and sophomores. These faculty members serve their respective classes as faculty advisors.

Nominated by the senior class

Dr. Whitmer, Former Faculty Member, Dies

Funeral services were held August 19, at 2 p.m. in the Gerard-Bradley Chapel for Dr. Joseph Rutledge Whitmer, who died at City-County Hospital after an extended illness. Dr. Whitmer was a retired member of the Biology department.

Dr. C. R. Matlock, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and Dr. C. Ray Dobbins directed the services, and burial was held in the Fairview Cemetery. Dr. Dobbins, a former pastor, delivered the message. Active and retired faculty men of Western and deacons and elders of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church served as honorary pallbearers.

Dr. Whitmer, 71, was born at Bremen, the son of the late John L. and Nannie Jane Whitmer. He was married to the former Beulah Wiggins in 1914 at Bremen.

Dr. Whitmer received his early

BILL HANCOCK

Winterset, Maxwell Anderson's dramatic masterpiece of the "Depression" years, is the choice of the Western Players for their first major production set for presentation in early November.

It is no secret that America has the youngest national drama of any importance in the world. Although it has been officially in existence since 1787 when an American play on an American subject, Royall Tyler's The Contrast (Western Players 1949), appeared on the local stage, more than a century had to elapse before this country could boast playwrights comparable to the writers of Europe. With Maxwell Anderson, Eugene O'Neill, Sidney Howard, George Kelly, Elmer Rice, Philip Barry, George S. Kaufman, and Marc Connelly, American theatre achieved stature comparable to the other developments of this nation.

Maxwell Anderson oscillated between the past and the present. His desire to create drama of ab-

Cheerleaders Elected For 1961-62 Season

Miss Judith Anne Moore, Western's Dean of Women, announced Friday, September 29 that the cheerleaders for the 1961-62 year had been elected.

When the last ballots were counted late Friday afternoon, six girls became Western's new cheerleading squad. Those elected were Marilyn Cates, Dianne Howard, Martha Jo Johnson, Roberta Johnson, Dianne Robinson, and Sylvia Terry.

Roberta and Martha Jo Johnson, as well as, Dianne Robinson are seniors at Western and will be entering their fourth year as cheerleaders. This will be the second year that Dianne Howard has been on the cheerleading squad and the first year for Marilyn Cates and Sylvia Terry.

TALISMAN EDITORS . . . for the year 1961-62 will be Anna Louise Leach (left), assistant editor, and Richard Coop, editor. Miss Leach, senior chemistry and math major, is from Hartford, and Coop, senior biology and physical education major, is from Campbellsville.

Coop, Leach Will Head 1962 Talisman Staff

Mr. Millard Gipson, Talisman sponsor, has announced that Richard Coop has been chosen as the editor of the 1962 Talisman. Coop, a biology and physical education major, is from Campbellsville.

Serving as assistant editor is Anna Louise Leach, a chemistry and math major from Hartford.

The editor, assistant editor, and Miss Jean Wilson spent several days this summer with Benson Printing Company of Nashville, Tennessee planning the '62 Talisman. Plans call for a larger yearbook which will contain more color than previous issues because of this year's increased enrollment and the desire for complete coverage of campus life at Western.

Other members of the staff are Patricia Richards, mathematics major from Owensboro; Lee Ellen Inman, elementary education major from Louisville; Leslie Young, history and economics and sociology major from Henderson; Janice McAtee, commercial education major from Cadiz. Jo

Western Builds New Security Headquarters

Another addition to Western's campus is the College Security Headquarters, located behind Potter Hall. It was first put into service during the summer term. It contains a desk, chairs, and its own bath facilities. There is parking space beside it for the police car.

The Western Security Force began in 1918 when Aubrey Hoffnel was hired as the first policeman. Aubrey served for 42 years on the Western Police Force. He retired August 15, 1960, on his 65th birthday. At the present time there are three policemen on the force. They are Walter Royalty,

Are You Guilty?

By BERNARD MADISON

With the hum and buzz of campus elections dominating life on the Hill at present, surely no one is unaware that there will be voting taking place. Therefore, if one is ignorant of the elections, give me one good reason why every one of Western's 4792 students will not vote in these crucial elections. There are several reasons, but a limited few good ones.

First we see Uninterested Harry. He just does not care who is elected. Most likely, he has never been to a class meeting.

Next we meet Bashful Barry. He is afraid he will have to meet someone or some candidate might request his vote. This would be tragedy to poor Barry. He came to college to get a degree and nothing else and if he can possibly help himself, he will not be exposed to such awful goings-on.

Thirdly, we spot Miss Popularity. She is avoiding any such scene in which she might display a slight lag in dignity and stoop to marking a class election ballot. After all, she looks her best when she marches through the Snack Bar giving her "charming smile." Horror of all horrors would present itself if she ever gave the slightest inclination as to how she marked that dirty old ballot.

We pass on to Busy Betty. She just doesn't have time. Her escort will be by in just eight short hours and she must be as her room making the necessary preparations.

On we go to Ingorant John. He is in one bad condition. He hasn't the slightest idea where to go or what to do. Sure, he is willing, but the polls close in five minutes and no one is around to draw him a map.

The solution is simple. When class elections or any other campus election is taking place, take time out to dip into this "dirty game of politics" and vote. One may not win every election, but there is one sure bet—there will be no winners who do not vote.

The soreheads will show their faces in a few weeks. "Doe sure is messing up that junior class."

Did he vote in that election? Most likely, no.

"He beat me (or my candidate) so let him do it himself."

Are these attitudes becoming to a college student? Most definitely not, but they will appear.

Vote for the candidates of your choice, but VOTE. If not, say nothing of the work the elected officers do.

Program Expanded For Continuing Education

Western's Continuing Education program has entered its second year with an expanded offering of evening courses. This program which serves the citizens of Bowling Green and surrounding cities and counties enables a person to complete most of the first two years of college in evening courses.

According to Dr. Raymond L. Cravens, dean of the college, this program will benefit three groups of people: the person who cannot attend college full time, but wants to acquire one or two years' work during the evening; the person who wants to acquire college credit in subjects such as typing, shorthand, or drafting, but does not wish to obtain a degree; and the persons who wish to continue education in certain cultural studies such as literature, art, or history.

The majority of students enrolled in evening courses are working on their first year of college. It will be possible for them to get most of their first two years of college work in these evening classes. Some junior and senior courses are available, but a full schedule is not offered at this time.

As a part of the Continuing Education program two television courses in the fields of biology and government are being offered. Biology 101, the new Biology, is being offered at 8:00 a.m. daily over WLAC-TV with a bi-weekly Saturday laboratory at the Kelly Thompson Science Building beginning October 7 at 8:00 a.m. Government 198, American Government, will be offered 8:30-7:00 daily over WSM-TV with a bi-weekly seminar in Ogden Hall beginning September 30.

This semester twenty hours are offered at the cost of five dollars for each semester hour.

According to Dean Cravens, Western plans to expand this program as rapidly as possible in order to better serve the citizens of this area.

Art Department Moves Into Larger Location

Western's Art department began the fall semester in its new location on the ground floor of Cherry Hall. Creation of a gallery with better lighting and increased wall space and with department offices is a major improvement.

Studios for sculpture, graphics, art education, and design classes are relocated in the new area. The ceramics classes, added this semester, have a studio; and the department has a seminar room on the ground floor.

A large painting and drawing studio with skylights are on the third floor.

Members of the Art department are Miss Ruth Hines Temple, chairman; Dr. E. C. Monroe, Mr. William F. Loy, Mr. Stanley Caywood, Mr. William Weaver, and graduate assistant, Miss Mary Coleman Adams. A varied program is planned by the department in regular classes, Saturday classes, adult education classes, gallery activities, and the Art club.

Religious News

Western's Religious Council held its first meeting of the year in the Memorial Room of the Paul L. Garrett Student Center, September 12.

Under the new system student representatives of the Bowling Green Churches constitute the council. The present number of representatives is twenty-seven.

Four pro tem officers elected by the council are president, Pat Chamberlain; vice - president, James Garrett; recording secretary, Sandra Stuart; and corresponding secretary, Sue Belle Peterson. Dr. Earl A. Moore of the English department is the faculty advisor. He is assisted in his duties by a faculty committee.

Arrangements are being completed for Religious Emphasis Week, October 25, 26, and 27. At that time the Reverend James Lollis, pastor of the Crestwood Christian Church, Lexington, will be guest speaker.

The Baptist Student Center is sponsoring a Freshman Retreat October 13 and 14. Students who are interested contact Mr. Roy Brigrance, director of the Baptist Student Center.

Book Marks

By SALLY JAYNE GREER

Would you like to become acquainted with a very good friend of college students? The Library is this friend. It is housed within an impressive building on the west side of Cherry Hall. The high ceilings, long corridors, and rows of books fill the visitor with curiosity and anticipation, accompanied by a twinge of inadequacy. The uneasy feeling is soon dispelled by the friendly smiles of the helpful librarians and the familiar faces of the student assistants.

The Periodical Room, on the first floor, is just the place to spend that extra ten or fifteen minutes. The relaxed atmosphere is a welcome relief from the tensions of the classroom and the uproar of the snack bar. Here is a refuge for catching up on the world news by reading the metropolitan newspapers or such magazines as Time and Newsweek. Several home town newspapers are available, too.

A little curiosity can reveal the unexpected from the great variety of publications. One student found an article, "Clues to Evaluating Personality from Handwriting," when he became absorbed in an issue of Wisdom. Before this accidental discovery he didn't realize that either the periodical or the article existed.

Unlimited help for assignments is also available through consulting the periodical indexes: Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature, Educational Index, Art Index and others.

The well-lighted reading room on the second floor offers an excellent place to study or read for pleasure. Reading widely is a good habit that must be cultivated. The librarians will help locate the latest novels or suggest titles on a favorite topic.

The many, many volumes seem to challenge the visitor to browse. A student might become absorbed in illustrations of ancient Greek costumes only to be brought back to reality with the sounds of closing time and remember that he hasn't yet found that book on mythology that he needed.

How easy it is to make friends when students are sharing the struggle of learning location of books.

The well-informed college student knows that help is as near as the reference desk when answering such questions as: "What happens to Kentucky high school graduates?" "How many attend college or what percentage of college students are married and how does marriage affect their grades?"

A student who is familiar with the library knows that a mad dash to the stacks isn't always necessary when a large group is given the same assignment. Books containing such frequently used material as Dewey's educational philosophy are shelved in the Reserve Room on the second floor. These books are available for use in the library during the day and circulate overnight only.

The attractive bulletin boards inform and motivate library visitors. The ever-changing exhibits in the cases on the second floor are seldom by-passed. The present display of the Tallman from past years offers an excellent opportunity to compare Western then and now while visiting the library.

HILLTOPICS

By ED HOCKER

The conscientious election of class officers is an important duty of every college student. It is therefore imperative that each undergraduate at Western vote in the primary elections for class officers tomorrow. Go to the Student Center and cast your ballot for the person whom you feel will make the best class officer.

HillTopic

Getting a college education is not a leisurely time for growing up from adolescence to adulthood; it is a career that should be seriously planned and carried out. Since most careers require immeasurable effort and attention, it stands to reason that the college career is not a part-time job. Don't make the mistake of becoming a perpetual home-on-weekend-guy or "suit-caser." The weekend is a part of the college career. One cannot hope to make the best of college life if he is off-campus each weekend.

HillTopic

The college security officers are here to help each college student. Your cooperation with each of the campus policemen is greatly appreciated.

The crowded conditions of the library necessitates the full cooperation of each Western student. Remember that the library is a place for study and not a place for discussing the problems and crises of life. May I also remind each Westerner that reserve books are used by a great many people; don't monopolize on a single volume when there may be a waiting list.

Hey, Freshman

"Hey! Freshman! Yeah! You! With the bewildered look."

"What do you want?"

"Why do you look so lost?"

"I'm not lost, I'm just confused."

"About what?"

"Well, all I hear about from the upperclassmen on this campus is, 'Have you seen the new Science Building?' or 'Have you seen the new snack bar or the new girl's dorm?' or 'Have you heard about the new gym that Western is going to build?'"

"So."

"Doesn't anybody care about the older buildings on the campus?"

"Sure they do. But, I can tell you in one word why everybody is so interested in the new buildings."

"What's that?"

"Progress."

Several weeks before the event, the arrival back at Western, fear began to grip my soul. Soon it became an obsession! I was so afraid that I had forgotten how to do those little things such as packing bags, taking part in dorm debates, buying coffee for a nickel, sitting still for an hour, studying, walking up hills, and yelling at football games. So I began to practice. I reasoned that this was the only way that I could be sure of my ability to do as I did a few months ago. And if you think my decision was easy to follow through, well let me just tell you a few things that I encountered.

First of all, I began by practicing packing. As most of my clothes were either dirty or in need of stitches and buttons, my mother, when seeing me in action, secretly — I learned later — began worrying about me. But she not only worried; for she too went into action. Everytime I would try to place any form of apparel into a suitcase, she would try to take it from me as she explained that this skirt has a tear and that one needs to be cleaned. Although I couldn't understand her attitude, now I remember that I had failed to tell her my plan; hence I soon realized that I would just have to wait about packing.

Still there was much to do; so I was not too disheartened. I immediately stepped up to my room where I began dabbling in dorm debates. And as I had no companion to challenge, I was left with two parts — that of the affirmative and negative side of the question. While sitting in my quiet room, I felt confident that this part of my plan would result in success, as I had no one to bother me. But alas, I became so confused as to the direction of the two arguments that I was forced to stop.

A few hours later I found myself riding in a car driven by my father. I decided to go with him as I was in hopes of passing near that one hill which is within ten miles of my home. That we did. "I'll walk from here and you can pick me up down around the bend," I heard myself telling him. Being in a hurry and not entirely understanding the importance of my request, Dad, the car, and I drove on.

I next tried Mom. I knew there was no place within a hundred miles where I could procure coffee for a nickel; so this left only home. As I approached the kitchen, I actually feared that I had forgotten how. "Mom would you fix me a cup of coffee for a nickel?" I asked as I tried to explain what an economic catastrophe it would be if I had forgotten. "I wouldn't take your money and if I did, I certainly wouldn't charge you a nickel." "You wouldn't," I hopefully answered, thinking coffee could be cheaper — "No, I would charge you a dime like everyone else!"

In despair, I left the house. As it was then past 7:30 p.m., I was very perturbed when I discovered I had actually forgotten to sign out. (Oh, yes, I forgot to mention a few hours previous to the night hours, I had placed a "sign-out-system" on the desk in our dining room.)

Nevertheless, in double despair,

I began to try to remember such things as "Give them the red— Give them the white—Fight! Fight! Fight!" Soon I started yelling so loud that all of those neighborhood children ran to their mothers to inquire exactly what I meant.

Back to the house to sit for an hour. Still no success; but I rationalized and concluded that I will succeed there in the warmth of my chair. But no! After five minutes of such inactivity, I was called to the front door by several mothers who actually wanted to know the meaning of those outbursts of school spirit.

And so, I was forced to stop having not succeeded in anything.

As of now, I sit in the dorm with these little bits of the past, which are now in typewritten form; I now only know that I have not forgotten to pack. But perhaps, you the reader, wish I had.

Three views of an average, healthy girl

LESSON 1 - How to recognize a girl

It is not surprising, in these days of constantly changing fashion standards, that girls are often mistaken for men.

Certain popular items of apparel, such as slacks, baggy sweaters and boxy suits, contribute to this unfortunate situation. Therefore, we suggest that new students of girl watching start with the fundamentals (see above diagram). As you can see, girls are easiest to identify from the side. However, even the beginner will soon achieve proficiency from front and rear as well.

Advanced students can usually tell a girl from a man at five hundred paces, even when both are wearing asbestos firefighting suits. (You might try offering the subject a Pall Mall, but you won't prove anything. It's an extremely popular brand with both sexes.)

Speaking Of Society?

By ALLEN PARDON

I agree that there are many new ideas in the college fashion world. But if you girls think you have any trouble choosing whether or not you want to go along with this year's fashions, it is nothing compared to what I had to go through just to find out about the new look for college girls.

For instance: I had never heard of a culotte, and after having found out that it was just a skirt sewn up the middle, I have only seen one on campus. But then, one just doesn't go around the hill looking for culottes.

I'm sure many of the men around campus have noticed the new kilts that the girls are wearing. For those of you who don't know what kilts are, they are, to put it bluntly, short skirts. Also becoming popular with the Western coeds are the shorter berunda skirt. Yes, I said skirt.

Another trend that I have noticed taking hold around the campus is the long sweater. Then there are some that are short. These, I have noticed, come in many colors and are usually titled as the boxy cardigan or the boxy slipover. Many of these long sweaters may be worn with short skirts, as well as a slim or pleated skirt.

For those of you that do not want to wear any of the popular short pants, such as bermudas, pedal pushers, shorts, or short shorts, there are the even popular slim jims. From the latest that I have heard, they are perfect for leisure time and are available in solids, prints, and checks.

Some of the more popular colors are what might be called the kaleido-scope colors. They are aquatone, aspen green, kumquat, and truffle taupe. Another popular color is plum.

To get off the subject just a little bit, perhaps you might think that the life of society editor might be a little dull. However, this is not the case. The other day a birth notice was given to me to write up for the Herald. The notice reads as follows:

THE JONES COMPANY, 919 Howard's Village, Bowling Green, Kentucky. INTRODUCES a new 1961 "JONES SPECIAL." James E. Jones, "Designer and Engineer," and Jane H. Jones, "Production Manager."

Doctor Malone, "Delivery Supervisor," & "First Handler of '61 Model."

The described "Special," "Jim Johnson" was released September 21, 1961, at Stork County Hospital.

The notice ended with this after thought:

When Better Babies are Built . . . We'll let You Know!"

Oh! Yes! Names and addresses were changed to protect the innocent.

THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME

It happens every day. A young man goes off to college, leaving his home town sweetheart with vows of eternal love, and then he finds that he has outgrown her. What, in such cases, is the honorable thing to do?

Well sir, you can do what Rock Sigafos did.

When Rock left Cut and Shoot, Pa., he said to his sweetheart, a simple country lass named Tess d' Urbevilles, "My dear, though I am far away in college, I will love you always. I will never look at another girl. If I do, may my eyeballs parch and wither, may my viscera writhe like adders, may the moths get my new tweed jacket!"

Then he clutched Tess to his bosom and planted a final kiss upon her fragrant young skull and went away, meaning with all his heart to be faithful.

But on the very first day of college he met a coed named Fata Morgana, a girl of such sophistication, such poise, such savoir-faire as Rock had never beheld. She spoke knowingly of Frans Kafka, she hummed Mozart, she smoked Marlboros.

Now, Rock didn't know Frans Kafka from Pancho Villa, or Mozart from James K. Polk, but Marlboros he knew full well. He knew that anyone who smoked Marlboros was modern and advanced and as studded with brains as a ham with cloves. Good sense tells you that you can't beat Marlboro's exclusive selectrate filter, and you never could beat Marlboro's fine flavor. This Rock knew.

So all day he followed Fata around campus and listened to her talk about Frans Kafka, and then in the evening he went back to the dormitory and found this letter from his home town sweetheart Tess:

Dear Rock,

Us kids had a keen time yesterday. We went down to the pond and caught some frogs. I caught the most of anybody. Then we hitched rides on trucks and did lots of nutsy stuff like that. Well, I must close now because I got to whitewash the fence.

Your friend,
Tess

P.S.—I can do my Hula Hoop 8,000 times.

Well sir, Rock thought about Tess and then he thought about Fata and then a great sadness fell upon him. Suddenly he knew he had outgrown young, innocent Tess; his heart now belonged to smart, sophisticated Fata.

Rock, being above all things honorable, returned forthwith to his home town and walked up to Tess and looked her in the eye and said manlyly, "I do not love you any more. I love a girl named Fata Morgana. You can hit me in the stomach with all your might if you like."

"That's okay, hey," said Tess amiably. "I don't love you neither. I found a new boy."

"What is his name?" asked Rock.

"Frans Kafka," said Tess.

"A splendid fellow," said Rock and shook Tess's hand, and they have remained good friends to this day. In fact, Rock and Fata often double-date with Frans and Tess and have heaps of fun. Frans can do the Hula Hoop 8,000 times.

Book From Library Of Civil War General Given To Ky. Library

Received recently, by the Kentucky Library is a confederate general's book.

It is a book from the library of the late Gen. George W. Johnson of the Confederate Army.

General Johnson was elected Provisional Governor of the confederate state of Kentucky by the sovereignty convention held in Russellville, November 18-20, 1861. Also at this meeting Bowling Green was selected as the capital.

The headquarters which he occupied in Bowling Green was the large brick home owned at that time by Mr. Henry Grider. It is still standing and now the home of Mrs. J. Murray Hill, 1320 Park Street.

The book, Press Writers of Germany by Frederic H. Hedge, was a gift of his granddaughter, Mrs. William Henry Coffman of Georgetown and Louisville. Mrs. Coffman was a founder of the Public Library of Georgetown.

Another gift was presented by Miss Gabrielle Robertson, former instructor in the History department of Western. The book A Seed Was Sown by Maysie Brooks was autographed by the author. She was formerly Maysie Garvin, of Cammer, Hart County, a former student of Western.

Mrs. Brooks writes about Kentucky people whom she knows so well.

She and her husband, James E. Brooks now live on a forty-two acre farm at Fern Creek, Jefferson County.

The Kentucky Library is open daily including Saturdays.

Diddle Looks Toward Promising '64-'65 Season

"I don't aim to 'graduate' in last place, I'm going to sign some boys who can win," said Coach E. A. Diddle last spring as he started recruiting the freshman who will be seniors in 1965, the year when he reaches the mandatory retirement age from his career job as basketball coach.

Who will be the seniors who will be bowing out with Coach Diddle in the multi-million dollar academic-athletic building which is scheduled to be started this fall? It hasn't been proven yet that they can win. But they all have good size and Coach Diddle feels it is favorable that "almost all of them have big feet and big hands."

"B" Is For Defensive All In A Row

Speaking of M-Men (and who isn't these days?) Western has a "B-Team", but it's not a second team.

Manning the Hilltoppers' defensive secondary this fall, in all likelihood, will be six "B-Boys." Booker (Bill), Best (Buzzy), Boone (Winton) and Brunson (Gary) returning from the air defense which ranked sixth among the nation's non-majors last fall, limiting the opposition to but 40.4 yards per game. They may be joined by Barrilo (John) and Berthold (Dudley). Other "B-Boys" who could step in are Bugel (Joe), Barwick (John), the Burt brothers (Jim and John) and freshmen Boyd (John) and Blackburn (Glenn).

Western Faced With Problem Of Seating Basketball Fans

Among Western's real problems with its 4,792 enrollment is where to put the basketball fans this winter.

The gym's official capacity now is listed as 4,500.

The college had 3,599 enrolled last year. Better than a third of the gym's seats were allotted to students.

A meeting is slated within a few days to resolve the seating situation.

In the meanwhile, the plans remain to start work on the multi-million dollar athletic academic building in November. It will be ready for occupancy in 1963.

Best Sideline With Bad Elbow

Coach Nick Denes learned Wednesday that veteran halfback Buzzy Best will be lost until the Tennessee Tech game Oct. 14 with a dislocated elbow suffered September 26. On one of the final scrimmage plays of the session, the 190-pound-junior cracked across the goal-line from 10 yards out and fell on his elbow, dislocating it.

Best has teamed with Winton Boone to give Western the best deep pass defense in the Ohio Valley Conference during the last two seasons.

Best, a transfer from the University of Kentucky, was just starting to come into his own as a runner. He piled up 71 yards in just three runs and scored two touchdowns against East Tennessee.

Mickey Brown, 6-4, Campbellville; Ray Kenton, 6-5½, Portsmouth East High, Ohio; Ralph Baker, 6-3½, Wayne County; Glen Markham, 6-7, Southern Pines, North Carolina; Bill Parson, 6-1, Calhoun, (He's brother of ex-Hilltopper ace Don Parson); Sherill Howard, 6-2, Todd County; Ray Rhoer, 6-2, Bryan Station; Eddie Hoppood, 6-6½, Nebo High; Gene Haskett, 6-4, Swift City, Ind.; Larry Rightmeyer, 6-1, Calhoun.

There will be a few other candidates to complete the freshman team.

As an Alpha Psi Omega project, the various technical jobs are being handled by the pledges for the current semester. ## Players Begin Year With "Winterset" solute beauty nevertheless shared interest with a keen awareness of contemporary realities. As a former journalist, he was inclined not to forget these. He was concerned with the stylistic problem of how to create poetic drama in a prosaic age. Since it is comparatively easy to write poetic plays when the subject is set in the past, his romanticism was highly successful with Elizabeth, the Queen; Mary of Scotland; Anne of the Thousand Days, and Valley Forge. He castigated Congress with the prose satire of Both Your Houses. Night Over Yaws more than hinted that the old order must make room for the new. Valley Forge was a reminder that the tree of Liberty is a precious plant nourished by the blood and dreams of the American people. High Tor exorcised business ethics; The Masque of Kings stressed the futility of revolutions; and Knickerbocker Holiday satirized dictatorialism.

Winterset pointed to an old sore in the American body with a scathing attack on the perversion of justice by class prejudice. Here Anderson took a bold leap with his dramaturgy as he applied poetry to a contemporary background of gangsters, East Siders and the desolate scene of the great depression.

Director Russell H. Miller has for his cast of Winterset a group of players practically balancing the most experienced with the attractive new talent in this year's membership. The large cast at present includes Bill Hancock, Frank Hammond, Al Young, Judy Criswell, Charlie Logsdon, Benny Vickous, Gloria Cooper, Robert Alexander, Don Mayfield, Tommy Higgason, Polly Jacques, Millicent Demling, Hub Lowery, Ed Curtis, Junior Howard, J. Roger Smith, Elaine Harmon, Mel Schuler, Mason Plotch, Bill Laviano, Danny Howell, J. D. Matthews, Peggy Houchin, and Sandy Griffin.

Thirty five members have volunteered for the technical crew for the production of Winterset. New members of the English department staff, Mrs. Francis Dixon, Mr. Terry Otten, and Mr. Robert Wurster, have joined the Western Players' production committee for this season.

AAUW Meets in Faculty House

Heck of Danville, president of the state division of the organization, spoke to the group about the various aspects of AAUW. Mrs. A. G. Vaughn of Danville accompanied her on her visit. Both women were the overnight guests of Miss Sybil Stonecipher, a member of Western's foreign language department.
