WESTERN OFFERS M. A. DEGREE

1500 STUDENTS SELECTED FOR PAGEANT CAST

30,000 Spectators Are Expected Here On June 1-2-3

REHEARSALS ARE BEGUN

5000 Additional Seats
Are Placed Near Stadium

The cast has been selected and rehearsals have begun on the stupendous "Pageant of Progress" to be held in the College Heights stadium on the evenings of June 1, 2, and 3. The pageant is the most elaborate ever presented at Western, and will employ a cast of 1500 students. An additional 5000 seats will be placed around the stadium to accommodate the huge crowds expected at each performance. The pageant is under the direction of M. J. Giller, representing the John B. Rogers Producing Company of Fostoria, O.

The pageant is composed of two main parts. The first one depicts America's outstanding epochs from 1492 to 1865. Some of the principle scenes of this part are: Miss Kentucky, Miss Western, Spanish Court Scene, Tambourine Ballet, The Landing of Columbus, Puritan Church Scene, Spirit of '76, Betsy Ross, Paul Revere, Colonial Ballet, Ballet of Beauty and Fertility, Civil War, Abraham Lincoln, The Living Flag, and the patriotic finale in which 1000 people take part.

The second part of the pageant is preceded by a prologue made up of scenes depicting the important events which led to the establishment of Western Kentucky Teachers College at Bowling Green. The main scenes of this part are composed of the following: the arrival of Gov. Sanger and other distinguished visitors, the rendition of "Lord of Hope and Glory" by 100 trained voices, Congress of Nations, five athletic displays staged by the Men's Physical Education Department, finish of the Western Notre Dame football game, exhibitions of all games and sports, two dozen dancers, R. O. T. C. exhibition drill, Western's United States champion rifle squad, Rainbow Wedding Party, Dance of the Cake Cakes, Review of American History, Barn Dance in 1860, Flower Garden Ball, girls' athletic drills, March of Graduates of 1931, rendition of Western's songs and music and The Wheel of Progress, the grand finale composed of 1500 people, during which the audience and cast, numbering 10,000 people will sing The Spangled Banner.

Although the pageant is one of rare beauty, size, and educational value, it is massive in its value and proportions. No one will want to miss seeing "The Pageant of Progress."

"SCENE FROM PAGEANT OF PROGRESS"

Geography Society Has Annual Dinner

The Ellen Churchill Semple Geographical Society held its first annual banquet on the evening of May 15 at New Entrance Hotel Mammoth Cave. There were thirty-five members and guests present. Marvin Coley, president of the recently organized club, served as toastmaster.

After the dinner and a brief program the group was conducted on a cave trip through New Entrance to Mammoth Cave by Prof. George Wood, head of the Department of Geography and sponsor of Semple. The itinerary included Grand Central Station, Crystal River, King Tut's Tomb, Frozen Niagara, College Heights Avenue, and other points of interest.

At Frozen Niagara the group was addressed by Miss Amy Longest, who has taught in Western for the past two years. Her talk was made more interesting by a display of Alaskan clothing and furs, which she had collected while in that country. Miss Longest is a native of Greenville, Kentucky, and is a former student of Western. Her experience as a teacher has taken her to the Philippine Islands, Alaska, and several points in the West.

Work Resumed On Kentucky Building

Work on the Kentucky Building which was suspended during the winter months has been resumed. Plans for construction at present look very optimistic.

The concrete foundation has been completed. Contracts for brick, steel, and other materials have been let. The structure will probably be under roof early in the fall.

Former Editor Has Article Published

In a recent issue of the Philippine Free Press appeared an article by Raymond C. Hornbick, a graduate of Western and former editor of the Herald. The Philippine Free Press, the Saturday Evening Post of the Philippines, is one of the outstanding magazines of the East.

Mr. and Mrs. Hornbick are now teaching in the Philippine Islands, and during a Christmas visit to the coast of Japan they made a trip to the Batanes, a small group of islands off the coast from Formosa, Japan. The article, which is illustrated with several photos, is a description of this isolated country. The Batanes have been visited by very few white men, only six boats per year connecting the islands with the outside world.

Mr. Hornbick says in a recent letter that he had been asked to contribute more articles to the magazine.

Director Of Charleston Museum Here In Interest of Kentucky Building

Miss Laura Bragg, director of the city museum at Charleston, S. C., the oldest city museum in the United States and chartered in 1773, recently visited College Heights in interest of the Kentucky Building.

Miss Bragg, who is in charge of the Kentucky Building museum, and Mr. Will B. Hill made an extensive tour of Kentucky on Apr. 25-27, in the form of a study of the architectural features of the oldest homes in the state. Special attention was given the interior decorations of the homes for the purpose of securing ideas and information for the Kentucky Building.

Among the homes visited were the Barnes and Seeger homes, "The Wickland," home of ex-Governor J. C. W. Beckham, and "My Old Kentucky Home," all at Bardonia; the buildings at Shakerstown; the John Hunt Morgan home, especially interesting because it houses a stairway built by Latrobe, famous French architect, the Frazier home, now owned by the granddaughter of one of Kentucky's famous artists and which contains a number of his paintings, and the Peter home, built on the Virginia style, all in Lexington; and the Scott home in Frankfort, considered by some to be the most handsome early building in existence in Kentucky.

In Frankfort the old State Capitol was visited to view again the circular, self-supporting, stone stairway, created by Shrock, eminent Kentucky architect. At Louisville the party visited the Department of Education Building, the Court House, and the old Southern Bank Building, now used as a clearing house by the Bank of Kentucky, all of which Shrock planned.

Education Group Makes Inspection Tour Of Schools

A very interesting and instructive educational research trip was recently sponsored by the Department of Education under the leadership of Mr. W. M. Willey. The party, composed of about twenty-five students in the field of secondary education, left Bowling Green at 4:30 o'clock on Friday morning, Apr. 10, visited Louisville and returned by way of Brandenburg and Owensboro. The object of the trip was to study the buildings, equipment, personnel, organization, and activities of the high schools visited in Louisville and Owensboro.

The first stop was made at the Western Junior High in Louisville. The students were welcomed by Miss Kornhorst, the principal. Members of the party had the opportunity of observing classes at work in all departments of the school, and were guests at a special chapel program rendered by the Drum and Bugle Corps, and by the Louisville Dramatic Club which presented an interesting dramatization of the uses of a library.

While in Louisville, a number of the members of the party visited the new Shawnee High School, where, under the personal escort of Mr. Binford, director of secondary education for the Louisville Public School System, and of Mr. Clem, principal of Shawnee High, they were shown over one of the country's newest and finest school buildings.

After having lunch at the Western Junior High cafeteria, the party passed down the beautiful scenic drive along the Ohio River to Owensboro. There they were greeted by Mr. Sam Morton, principal of Owensboro High, and by a number of the teachers. The visitors were escorted over the building and were shown every courtesy by Mr. Morton and his staff.

letters, one of which is a paper dated January 18, 1813, signed by Thomas Insawell, Miss Claybrook's great-grandfather, the purpose of which was "to turn over forever" to Thomas W. Claybrook, her granddaughter, negro girl named Sopha. Another is a permit granted to J. R. Claybrook in 1862, allowing him to pass from Lebanon, Ky., to Washington County on "railroad or otherwise."

The value of such papers in studying slavery and other eccentricities of the times is inestimable, and people possessing such collections are urged to donate them to the Kentucky Building.

Another rare collection is a group of letters turned over to the Kentucky Building committee for inspection by David McEwen of Sacramento, Ky. The letters were written by E. S. Baker to his mother from Nicaragua from 1854 to 1859 and deal with the career in Nicaragua of the filibuster, William Walker, who was tied up with the slavery expansionists of the South.

Prized Quilt Donated

One of the most gorgeous heirlooms in the entire museum collection is a hand-made silk quilt given by Mrs. T. C. Mitchell, 1153 State Street, this city. The quilt belonged to Mrs. Mitchell's mother-in-law, Mrs. Albert Mitchell, who spent seven years in the making of it. Mrs. Mitchell created and designed the quilt from flowers in her own garden, which was located near the present site of the American National Bank, and connoisseurs have pronounced it to be one of the most beautiful and remarkable specimens of needlework ever created. quilt, although some seventy years of age, is in a wonderful state of preservation. During its history the quilt has been exhibited widely, everywhere meriting the admiration of the crowd and never failing to be a prize-winner. It once won a scholarship in the old Southern Normal School, a predecessor of this institution.

Old State Documents Wanted

The Kentucky Building museum committee is extremely anxious to locate old state documents, especially acts passed by the state legislature, old Congressional Globes, published before the Congressional Records up to 1876, Western Records, Christian Herald, Christian Advocate and any other denominational papers. People who can get Kentucky shrubs and rooted wild flowers are urged to notify Miss Florence Ragland or send them to her at 1319 State Street, this city. These will be started growing, later to be transferred to the wild flower garden on the Kentucky Building grounds.

Congress Club Has Annual Mock Trial

"Not Guilty" was the verdict returned by the jury in the recent sensational case of the "Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Robert Boyd," held in the Western auditorium on the evening of May 9, was nothing more or less than the annual mock trial of the Congress Debatin Club.

Although the Commonwealth Attorney, Marven Whipple, and the County Attorney, Charles Neville, made every effort to prove that Robert Boyd, the defendant, killed a Louisville traveling salesman, the defending attorneys, Herbert Foster and David McEwen, succeeded in proving that Wilson Wood, a witness for the state, was insane and that the prosecution's star witness, Goodwin Thomson, committed the crime himself.

The witnesses for the defense were W. N. Taylor and James Duncan. The sheriff was Clifton Cook, the clerk, John Peters, Judge R. L. Graff presided.

The woman in the case, the mysterious "Charlene," was Charles Holt.

Group Picture Made Of Western Students

A picture of the aggregate student-body at Western was made on Wednesday, Apr. 29, on the lawn in front of the Administration Building.

Preceding the event of the picture a very unique chapel was held in the Physical Education Building. The program might aptly be called the "Wild Goose Parable." Portrayed on a huge board was a flock of wild geese. Those in the van were symbolic of the seniors; those just behind represented the juniors. A number of each group had been overwhelmed by the strenuousness of the flight and had given up the flight. Those represented the strugglers and the inviolate college student. On this spacious cardboard was a striking and picturesque scene of the Sunnysouth, which was symbolic of all that constitutes College Heights.

After all of the mothers present had been introduced to the audience, Dr. M. H. Millings made a short speech in praise of Father, paying tribute to the fathers who were also present. The chapel program was concluded with community singing.

Commencement

Western has arranged a very attractive commencement program for this year. Several famous men will appear on the program, and will, no doubt, come to the Hill with inspirational addresses.

The feature event of all will be "The Pageant of Progress," which will be presented on three consecutive evenings in the College Stadium. Fifteen hundred students will appear in each presentation, and the largest band ever assembled on College Heights will furnish music for the three evenings. Thirty thousand people are expected at the performances.

In view of the fact that there will likely be more visitors here during the 1931 commencement than during any previous one, all College Heights should join in an effort to leave a favorable impression upon all guests during the next two weeks.

Hundreds of alumni of Western will again visit the Hill for commencement this year. Present students of the institution should try to make the progress which Western has made since those alumni were in attendance here.

The Cedar House

Too small a number of students avail themselves of the opportunity to use the Cedar House as a social center. Possibly this happens because students do not know the hours at which the House is open.

The hours are from five to seven-thirty each afternoon, Saturday evening, and Sunday afternoon and evening. Miss Elizabeth Strayhorn is official hostess at the Cedar House.

Students are invited to visit the Cedar House and use the piano and radio at any of the hours mentioned.

As A Newcomer Sees It

We who have lived in Bowling Green all our lives have gotten so used to the beauties and character of our community that it is well sometimes for a newcomer to tell how some of these things appear to him.

It is for this reason that we give below a communication which was handed to us by a gentleman who recently came to our city and who was charmed and delighted with the scenic and building grandeur of College Heights.

A few days ago I was whisked to the top of College Heights in a taxi. Alighting in front of the majestic Administration Building, I drew my breath in amazement. I had not dreamed, I had not anticipated such grandeur and such beauty as that which greeted my eyes. Below me lay one of the fairest cities not only of the South, but of the whole country. Around me spread the wonderful campus on which stand the beautiful buildings of one of Kentucky's greatest institutions.

Since then I have had the opportunity to ramble about the Hilltop always to discover new beauties and new interests awaiting me. With joy I stand on the crest of the Hill at numerous vantage points and gaze out across the beautiful valleys and find my eyes on the distant wooded hills. With reverence I walk with uncovered head through the halls of the buildings which lend themselves to the enchantment of these lovely slopes. The newer ones, because of their stateliness and symbolism, and the older ones, because of their traditions and memories, which are in evidence on every hand.

It is indeed an ideal place to train men and women who are to go to guide the education and destinies of the youth of this Commonwealth. No man or woman can tread these Heights and watch the mellow glow of this Hill's golden sunsets without receiving an inspiration that will cause the words and teachings of their leaders to have a deeper significance and a richer meaning. Blessed are those teachers who can call Western Kentucky State Teachers College their Alma Mater.

Something greater than landscape scenery and majestic piles of brick and stone seems to hover about this Hill, however. To describe it is impossible. It is evidenced by the simplicity of administrative control, by the wonderful daily chapel gatherings, and the lack of mechanization and distraction that seem to be sapping the life from many of our colleges and universities.

As I view the building program that is being carried on and the marvelous development of the institution, I realize that some master mind has had a vision. As I sense the democratic but lofty ideals that pervade student body and faculty, I am convinced that a great personality has had an inspiration. As I discern and as I perceive, I am convinced that the vision has only begun to unfold and to radiate. Could you and I glimpse what remains of that vision or feel a single thrill of that inspiration we would stand in awe of the great mind that is guiding the destinies of College Heights.

Men and women who are interested in the success of their great school, let me add our faith, our courage, our hopes, and our doubts to those of one great leader and President, in order that this great vision and inspiration be, at last, but that our present institution may evolve into the University of the Southland and that boys and girls of this Great Commonwealth may "have life and have it more abundantly."

Western Students Hear From Susie Again

The Hill, May, 1931.

Dearest Ma:

I was so sorry you didn't get to come to Mother's Day. Everyone thought it was a great success and the mothers enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

Even if there had been no special program to come up for, I wish that you could have come up and seen the Hill. The old gym has been soddied at the corner of garden is being made there. It gives promise of being very attractive when it is finished. Grass has been soddied at the corner of the stadium near West Hall, and Brady has the appearance of being quite at home here. And new shrubbery seems to be springing up over night.

On Sunday nights now, we are given our supper in a paper bag. That saves us the trouble of going after it, but people do look rather funny dressed in their Sunday best and carrying bags!

West Hall girls have had a little trouble getting all of their beauty sleep, lately. At first, there was a pack of dogs that decided our windows would be appropriate to howl under. Then a few nights after they had gone in quest of other victims, a crowd of boys decided to serenade us.

We have been working on the senior banquet, which is to be held very soon. We went down to see about menus but no one would give us samples of anything they listed, so I guess we will just have to take their word as assurance that the food will be good.

Tell all of the folks hello for me. Love, SUSIE.

Mississippi Valley Historical Society Holds Meeting At Lexington

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Historical Society met in Lexington on Apr. 30-May 2. Dr. Louise Phelps Kellogg, director of the Draper Collection of the University of Wisconsin and of the Wisconsin Historical Society, presided.

Several eminent men were on the program during the session. Among those were: R. S. Cottle, formerly from the University of Louisville, now in the Florida State College for Women; J. C. Malin of the University of Kentucky, who has done some elaborate research work relative to the Indian policy in our country; and Willard R. Jolson, state geologist of Kentucky, who was one of the dinner speakers.

Dr. Jolson took as his subject "Early Literature of Kentucky." President Kellogg discussed "France and the Mississippi Valley." R. C. Ballard Thurston, president of the Filson Club, Louisville, gave an interesting talk on Filson's maps of Kentucky, showing copies of different editions. J. T. Dorris of Eastern State Teachers College led the discussion at the luncheon.

He was followed by Otto Rothert, secretary of the Filson Club.

The leading address of the meeting was made by Frederick L. Paxson, head of the History Department of the University of Wisconsin. His subject was: "A Generation of the Frontier Hypothesis." He was followed by J. D. Hicks of the University of Nebraska. Beverly W. Bond, Jr., of the University of Cincinnati, was selected president for the coming year. Lincoln, Neb., was agreed on as the next place of meeting.

The History Department at Western was represented by Dr. A. M. Stickle, head of the department, and the entire corps of history teachers.

Mrs. Wallace Smith and Mrs. Hallie S. Baumbarger, representatives from the Bowling Green High School, attended. The Training School was also represented. A number of students who are history majors also attended.

Jimmy says that Ruth is his major subject; Ruth answers by calling him her extra-curricular activity.

Now that it has been proved that Columbus did not discover America, that no such man as Shakespeare ever lived, and that Paul Revere never took a ride of any kind in his life, why doesn't some one prove that term reports are one of the greatest weights now oppressing down-trodden humanity, and so, should be discarded.

"Out of the depths of Purgatory," she wrote in her diary. But she only meant that her Dante class had had an exam over "Purgatory."

EDITORIAL

"All's Well That Ends Well"

This age old saying kept running through mind as I sat pondering over an appropriate subject for this, my last editorial to you classmates of 1931. And who can deny that it is fitting for an occasion such as this when we are standing at the end of that road of high school life, undecided as to what will be the next step?

This journey along the road of youth, love, and happiness has meant for most of us a deeper appreciation of the sacrifices made by those at home that we might have these innumerable opportunities. It has meant a partial understanding of the patience and kindness of our instructors who have toiled unceasingly that this journey might not be in vain. We have been heartless wretches and we know it, but deep down in our hearts, dear teachers, we hold you in the highest esteem. We will, perhaps, appreciate you to the fullest extent when we become entangled in the situations from which there seems no escape, and when to us on the wings of Mercury there come your words of advice and counsel.

Then this journey has meant for us the wearing of the invaluable golden chain of friendship. Some one has said, "True friends are like diamonds, precious, but also rare." Thus have we made College High School a veritable diamond mine. May we strive to keep it so throughout the years to come, and be the same kind of friends then, when our fortunes are quite diverse, as we are now basking in the sunlight of graduation.

No journey along any road is complete without a knowledge that by it we ourselves have profited. No, not selfishly, but that by this profit we have become better equipped for understanding the life that awaits us. Surely this journey that ended so well has done this and much more for us.

Yes, it has been a long road, this road of high school life, and it has been a weary one; but every cloud has a silver lining and there were many moments of great happiness and pleasure before we reached the journey's end. As I stand looking back over these four years in the arms of our Alma Mater, a mist of tears blinds my eyes as I hear her say in a gentle voice, full of love, "My children, life holds greater things for you, greater prospects, greater achievements, success, glory."

Junior High Graduation

The following people are members of the graduation class: Carmel Ashloch, Cecil Bunch, Robert Davenport, Haro Durham, William Francis, Maxey Hallan, Harold Hoffman, Walter Houghland, Malcolm McKinney, Gearen Murray, Elvin Owen, Billy Payne, Kenneth Phillips, Leslie Reeder, Robert Schell, Don Simmons, Earl White, Fulton White, Lucille Adams, Mary Hulda Allen, Anna Ashloch, Geneva Baldwin, Katherine Brown, Gwen-dolyn Christie, Ruth Fischer, Vera Hunter, Rufine Hills, Marjorie James, Virginia Manning, Ruth McElroy, Blanche Morris, Verna McKennie, Ethel McPherson, Louise Evelyn Ross, Mary Frances Hendley, Violet Scott, Katharine Slinker, Eulene Taylor.

The program will consist of four short talks on Junior High School and its benefits by Anna Ashloch, Don Simmons, Mary Hulda Allen, and Robert Schell.

Seniors Visit Nashville

The Senior Class of College Heights was entertained with a banquet at the Hotel Belmont on Wednesday evening, May 13. Leonard Hudson, president of the Junior class, presided as toastmaster. The guests to the Vanderbilt University, the Hermitage, and other places of interest in and about Nashville.

The visit to the Parthenon was unusual interest because the models of Greek sculpture and the $200,000 art collection were both opened for inspection. The Hermitage, the entire class was privileged to watch the process through which the Canadian spruce changed from wood to pulp, into liquid and from liquid into endless threads of beautiful rayon. The Hermitage, Peabody College and WSM broadcasting station were all points of outstanding interest.

The day's educational visit was climaxed by a visit to the Medical College of Vanderbilt School of dentistry, a dance by the University. Here, the class, the kindergarten, two numbers by the sponsor and director were received by Dr. Connell, director of the Medical College of Vanderbilt School of dentistry, a saxophone solo by Leonard Hudson, a violin

Passing Institutions

By GORDON WILSON

Long we have called it a barn; long we have apologized for it when we have shown visitors around the Hill; long we have looked with disdain on its architectural faults. Now, as the workmen have completed removing the very last vestiges of it, there comes a strange lump into our throats, for it has served a useful purpose. When it was first erected, back in the days of the oil boom, when rooming places were hard to find and very expensive when found, it was used as a temporary rooming place. The summer it was built Miss Woods chaperoned fifty girls there, in "No-Man's Inn," as it was called. Storms during that summer created quite a terror, lightened by the humor the girls displayed when the roof leaked in a hundred places. When a second storm caused the same misfortune, the girls presented a paper in chapel that began with this line: "Lightning does not strike twice in the same place, but water does." Later in the same year, when the first houses of Chocerry were under construction, several families of future residents of the village used the gymnasium as a home for a few days while their houses were being finished.

Then came the actual use of the building as a gymnasium, with exciting games by college teams and intercollegiate contests. Until the Training School was finished, it was our only gymnasium. Every plank in the structure was vibrated to college yells, vigorously given. Numerous receptions for students and

As the years passed, the "old barn," as many called it, grew more and more disreputable in appearance but continued to do its work on the Hill. Some months ago the excavation for the new Physical Education Building started. Still the old gymnasium seemed as permanent as the very rocks on which it was securely planted. A few strokes with the wrecking bars, however, revealed how very insecure the whole structure was, how it rooled in a little space, and kept out a few of the breezes. And now it is gone, gone the way of many another useful but temporary building on the Hill, such as the barracks, the old heating plant, and even Cabell Hall. The space will soon be transformed into a rock garden; new walks and drives will take their places as if nothing had ever been there before them. Remembering how rapidly things happen in this world, one cannot help wondering whether some future teacher of student here may look back on some of us pioneers, who, like the old gymnasium, did not look very imposing but did in our way some useful and fundamental work in days that were as heroic as any days, even ever be.

Winlock, Captain Turner Elrod, Blain Coffman, Bill Shattles, Virgil Chapman and Wiley Chapman.

On Saturday, Apr. 11, the coaches selected two teams and staged one hard fought and evenly matched game. Approximately three hundred students and teachers witnessed the game. The two eleven players on even terms for three periods, which resulted in an exchange of many beautiful punts. However, in the last few minutes of play, "Moore" Moore, quarterback for Coach Terry's team, caught a short pass and advanced fifteen yards for the only marker. Johnson made a successful drop-kick and the game ended 7-0.

GRID TEAMS IN PRACTICE GAME

Teams Of Elam and Terry Tangle In Spring Scrimmage

As a result of daily workouts since the signing off of basketball, Coaches Elam and Terry have had no trouble in selecting two teams for scrimmage. Forty healthy Hilltoppers have been in training for the past month. All available prospective players have been tried at many of the eleven positions and it looks as though Western will have another winning combination for the 1937 season.

On Saturday, Apr. 11, the coaches selected two teams and staged one hard fought and evenly matched game. Approximately three hundred students and teachers witnessed the game.

The two eleven players on even terms for three periods, which resulted in an exchange of many beautiful punts. However, in the last few minutes of play, "Moore" Moore, quarterback for Coach Terry's team, caught a short pass and advanced fifteen yards for the only marker. Johnson made a successful drop-kick and the game ended 7-0.

Seniors Capture Indoor Track Meet

In the first indoor inter-class Track Meet held at Western, the Senior Class proved superior in practically every event. They piled up a total of 51 points. The nearest rivals, the freshmen, scored 20 points and the Sophomores finished third, with 18 points. The Junior class failed to have a single entry in the meet.

The chief point makers for the seniors were Lloyd and Taylor, Lloyd scoring 16 points with two first places and two seconds; Taylor being placed first in two events and second in another. Taylor's time of 4.6 seconds in the forty-yard dash is a record which will probably stand for some time to come, while the seniors' time of 1:33.3 in the 540 yard relay was also given the incoming classes something to shoot at.

It is planned to make this meet an annual affair, and much keener competition is expected next year.

Congress Debating Club Has Banquet

The Congress Debating Club held its annual banquet on Friday evening, May 1, in the Cedar House. Senator M. M. Logan addressed the club, giving a discussion of "Government and the State." Herbert Hoover and Marvin R. Whipple, president of the club and chairman of the banquet committee, respectively, presided and introduced the speaker.

The program other than the speech of the evening, consisted of greetings from the special guests, President H. H. Cherry and Dean F. C. Gries.

Dean Gries organized the club twelve years ago. A few former members were present and were introduced for brief greetings. This is a new feature of the club banquet. It is expected that the participation of former members in the annual banquet will become a club tradition.

Potter College was formerly located in the building at the head of College Street, which is now used as a recitation building by the Teachers College. For many years Potter College was one of the most famous girls colleges in this section, and students from all parts of the United States were in attendance.

Article By Dr. Wilson In Filson Quarterly

An article entitled "Some Old Letters About Kentucky in 1810" from the pen of Dr. Gordon Wilson will appear in the October issue of the Filson Club Quarterly.
