CLEAN-UP DAY

HELD ON HILL

Entire Campus Is Put In Order By Students

An eventful occasion on the campus was Clean-up Day held on May 10, for the purpose of beautifying the Hill. All classes were dismissed for the afternoon, in order that the students might participate in the event.

The student body assembled in the auditorium where it was divided into county groups and was assigned places to work. From the auditorium the students went down to the Kentucky Building where a group picture was made of the assemblage. From here the various groups went to their respective places of work assignment, and each performed his task nobly. Miss Woods took her French classes to the Kentucky Building and constructed a beautiful flower bed. The Industrial Arts Department repaired the spoonholder in front of Recitation Hall, which had decayed and had been torn up partly by long years of service.

The many students made short work of all that was to be done, and it was not long until the Hill took on an appearance of freshness and grandeur. Each group strove to make its location prettier than any other, but each did its work to perfection, and there was no room for improvement.

Godmother of Geography Club Dies In Florida

Dr. Ellen Churchill Semple, Geographer of Note, Dies At West Palm Beach

She held the Baccalaureate and Master's degrees from Vassar College, later studied in Germany, and traveled extensively in America, the Orient, and the Mediterranean region. Her most recent contribution to the field of geography is her book, "The Geography of the Mediterranean."

She was a great force and a pioneer in bringing about the new, human aspects of geography.

Camp Party Reaches 39 In Number

Camping Trip To Cave Area Planned For June 2-7

According to Mr. George E. Wood, plans are almost complete for the annual Mammoth Cave Camping Trip June 2-7. Mr. Wood has been sponsor of the trip to the cave area for the last two years, and he says that the arrangements worked out for this year's trip are even more desirable than those planned during the past two years.

Thirty-nine people have signed that they will make the trip this year, and the total is expected to reach a number larger than this. Several graduates of Western who made the trip several years ago have signed up with this year's party. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jenkins will chaperone the party. The rate this year has been set at $10.00; the price was $12.00 last year.

Some of the accommodations afforded on the trip are: transportation to and from the Mammoth Cave, camping around a boat trip on the Green and Nolin rivers, from Mammoth Cave to Kyrck and return; inspection of the Kentucky Rock Asphalt Company mines at Kyrck; hike to Dismal Rock on Nolin river; some half-dozen or more cave trips; hikes in the Mammoth Cave National Park Area; and swimming in Green River, as well as other recreational activities.

The party will leave Bowling Green at 4 p. m. Thursday, June 2, and will return Tuesday evening, June 7. The trip to and from the cave will be made by large motor truck. Arrangements have been made to transport those students who have Friday final examinations to the cave by automobile Friday evening. Those students making the trip who will be in school this summer will have special permission to head the registration line at 1 o'clock Thursday.

French Club Is Addressed By Mr. Rochedieu

The French Club held its annual banquet in the Tea Room on Friday evening, May 13, with Monsieur C. A. Rochedieu of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, as the guest of honor.

The central idea of the banquet which celebrated the birthday of Daudet, a Southern French writer, was carried out in the place cards, decorations, and program.

The program under the direction of the toastmistress, Virginia Robinson, was conducted entirely in French and consisted of toasts by Elizabeth Angle and Arlene Roberts; a song by Lois Claire Reid, and an address by Monsieur Rochedieu. French was also the required language for the conversation of the evening.

The sponsor for the banquet was Miss Marjorie Claggett.

Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Billings spent the week-end of May 13-16 in Bloomington, Indiana.

DR. CHERRY IS PRESENTED WITH FIRST TALISMAN

Presentation Is Made By Sheppard Walker,
Editor

An appropriate climax to the publication and distribution of the 1932 Talisman occurred in chapel on Thursday morning, May 19, when the Senior Class presented Dr. Cherry with a copy of the book. Sheppard Walker, editor-in-chief of the Talisman, made the presentation, speaking briefly of the work done by the president as an educator and of the student appreciation for his leadership and ideals.

Dr. Cherry, in accepting the gift, complimented the annual staff on its work, also expressing his admiration for the spirit in which the task had been done. The book presented was the first copy to come off the press.

The staff faced some difficult problems at the beginning of the year, but in spite of all handicaps, it went on with its appointed work. The resulting book has evoked numerous expressions of wonder and gratitude from students and faculty because of the excellent historical value and artistic make-up of the material.

The original order of four hundred copies was sold before the books arrived for distribution, and only thirty additional copies were obtainable. It was unfortunate that more could not be secured inasmuch as several orders could not be supplied.

The following remarks were made by Mr. Walker in making the presentation:

"Dr. Cherry, in behalf of the Senior Class I am given the privilege of presenting the first copy of the 1932 Talisman to you as an expression of appreciation for the opportunities that have come to us as a result of your personal sacrifice, untiring efforts, unsurpassed genius, and consecrated love for human kind."

"We regard you as an educator without a peer. As the founder of a private institution you were a pioneer; as the accident of a state institution for twenty-five years you a promoter; now as a defender of education from slashes and criticisms on every side you are a champion."

"As we go out from College Heights, may this assure you that our lives are dedicated to your great principles: that the civilization and prosperity of a people cannot rise higher than the healthy bodies, mental vision, and moral conception of the masses."

"We know of no better way to wish you happiness than to pledge ourselves to fight for College Heights—which is the worthy cause and vital effect of your life's service."

Joe Lafferty, Managing Editor, Elected President of Press Association For Coming Year; Next Meet At Murray

The College Heights Herald was awarded the Alpha Delta Sigma silver cup trophy for having the paper with the best advertising outlay at the meeting of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association at Richmond on May 13-14. Joe Lafferty, managing editor of the Herald and one of the delegates at the convention, was elected president of the association for the coming year. The Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College and The Eastern Progress were hosts to the tenth semi-annual meeting of the college journalists.

The Alpha Delta Sigma advertising fraternity of the University of Kentucky awards this trophy each year at the spring meeting of the press association. The Herald was already a possessor of one of the cups, it being awarded in 1928. The Eastern Progress won the Lexington Leader cup for having the best all-round newspaper. This cup was won by the Herald in 1930. The Richmond Register and Eastern Progress cup for the next best all-round paper was won by the Murray College News.

After registration at the Administration Building Friday morning, the delegates were guests at a luncheon in Sullivan Hall. Mr. William Martin, co-editor of the Eastern Progress, gave the welcome address. A motor trip was made to Boonesboro and Lock No. 10 on the Kentucky River in the afternoon. Keen Johnson, editor of the Richmond Register, addressed the representatives at a banquet Friday evening. Dr. H. L. Doreman, president of the college, gave a greeting to the association. Miss Mary Jo Lafferty, vice-president of the press association, presented the cups to the prize-winning papers. Immediately after the banquet the delegates were guests at the Junior Prom held in the new Weaver Health Building.

Saturday morning the business session was held, with Miss Lafferty presiding. The Kentucky Wesleyan Undercurrent was a dropped from membership in the association because of failure to send delegates. The newspapers at the University of Louisville, Berea College, and Morehead State Teachers College were extended invitations to join the association at the next meeting. Murray State Teachers College was voted as the site for the next meeting, which is to be held next fall.

Other items of business were the reports of committees and a revision of the constitution. A round-table discussion of college newspaper problems was held after the business session. The convention came to a close with a luncheon in Sullivan Hall.

Those papers making up the membership of the press association are: The Eastern Progress, Eastern Teachers College, Kentucky Kernel, University of Kentucky; The Georgetownian, Georgetown College; Crimson Rambler, Transylvania College; Centre News, Centre College; College News, Murray Teachers College; and the College Heights Herald.

Delegates from the College Heights Herald who attended the convention are: Joe Lafferty, Managing Editor; Marvin Whipple, Editorial Writer; and Charles Patterson, Editor.

The Ellen Churchill Semple Geographical Society held its annual banquet at the Cedar House, Saturday, May 14, with a number of old friends and visitors in attendance.

Mr. R. P. Green, former head of the Geography Department, was a guest and the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Green stressed the increased attention that governments are paying to geography in its relation to international affairs. At the beginning of the program Mr. Wood paid respects to the memory of Dr. Ellen Churchill Semple, who recently died.

Dr. Cherry's presence added much interest in his talk on "Our Former Colleague."

Sarah Hagan, former Western student, spent the week-end of May 6-8 with friends on the Hill.

Before partaking of the feast the club sang the Invocation, paying homage to the Roman gods. The menu, consisting of choice Roman dishes, was served by two slave maidens.

Grise, Misses Sibyl Stonecipher, Ruth Driskill, Ethel Jones, Trilby Moore, Mary Frances McChesney, Lillie Wade Bradford, Mary Farver, Verbal Wagner, Ruth Martin, Essie Tompkins, Kate Henderson, Pauline Norris, Eula Mae Flowers, Katherine Tubbs, Lucy Glenn Wood, Mrs. Jennie Upton, and Arvin Upton, Jr.

"A Builder Built a Temple"

Soon there will march from Western's halls another group of graduates. It will be a significant company. First, it will be the last event in the twenty-fifth year of the existence of the school; second, among that group will walk the first men and women to obtain a Master's degree from the institution. The anticipation of such a significant company brings us to reflect upon how it has come to be. Such is not incidental or accidental to life. Back of the drama is always the silent worker; back of the picture, always the unseen painter; back of the building, always the unknown builder.

A touching anti-climax of the year's work and, incidentally, of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the school, was the dedication by the students of the 1932 Talisman to "the Builders of the Hill." Western stands today as a temple of human lives devoted to an ideal. Into this temple has gone the work of many hands and the spiritual mortar of innumerable minds. It is this spiritual mortar that welds the structure into one being and steadies her in bearing her rich cargo of plastic lives and embryonic mentalities.

Back of this sanctuary of learning stands a "Choir Invisible" of noble spirits—Mr. A. W. Mell, Miss Iva Scott, Mrs. Leon Stephan, Dr. A. J. Kinnaman, and ad infinitum—who have laid down their lives to build greater temples in kinder realms. And back of this "innumerable caravan" there stands the lone figure of the Master Builder—Henry Hardin Cherry. "He is like a man which built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock; and when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon that house, and could not shake it: for it was founded upon a rock." Out of a fertile mind and a spirit made strong in fighting he has drawn his plans for helping to build the Commonwealth of the World. Not alone has he wrought, but surely his is the hand that has led, and his is the intellect that has inspired.

The building is not finished, for its foundation is so vast that the workers ever lack material with which to build. A quarter of a century is as but a beginning in its adventure into the realm of higher education. Its faculty are seeing visions, and its alumni and students are dreaming dreams. In the days that are to be, those visions will become physical plants, and those dreams will grow into a philosophy and idealism that will guide the school to succeeding attainments.

Alumni! Faculty! Students! Let us pay tribute and give thanks for a building that stands on a rock and for the strong Builder who still is building—for Western and for its president. And let us go forth to build "more stately mansions" as the years roll on in endless time.

—GLENN MAXWELL.

Memorial Day

The words, "and a little child shall lead them," spoken by Isaiah the Prophet were fulfilled when on the thirteenth day of April, 1862, two small girls knelt above a rough unmarked mound which covered the remains of some Northern soldier boy and decorated its uneven surface with garlands of wild flowers.

Those words and that deed of the little girls were to be the forerunner of the beautiful custom we have today of observing the thirtieth of May as Memorial Day and setting it aside as a day for paying homage to our nation's dead.

This gentle custom, started by two small girls did more to heal the wounds of civil war and to arouse national amity and love than anything else could have done. It was this spirit of tenderness that inspired Francis Miles Finch to write his moving lyric, "The Blue and the Gray."

We are showing our appreciation for their services too late. No show of affection can pierce the gloom to gladden the hearts that have ceased to beat. Their ears are forever deaf to our words of praise; their pale, thin lips have uttered their last earthly sound; the tired drawn eyes have beheld for the last time the glories of nature, and those beautiful flowers which we so reverently place upon their last and resting place can never penetrate those nostrils with their fragrant perfume.

As we stand in the holy present amid the graves of the dead—a present wherein the past and future may meet and hold solemn communion over the cold still forms that lie moldering in the bosom of mother earth—we have within our grasp the power to influence the future activities of mankind in such a way that it will be needless for future generations to sleep in soldier's graves. We should mark well the evils of the past, and strive for a better understanding among men. Two little girls have pointed out the way and the whole world should walk therein.

—MARVEN WHIPPLE.

Death Of Patsy Brown

In the many years I have taught at Western I have known many children whose parents were in school. I have always taken a real interest in these children, for I realize how much this experience of going to college with their parents will mean in their after lives. Since I have known Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Brown for a long time and have taught them since their first days here, even before their marriage, I felt particularly near to their little daughter when she came back with them this year. I at once got acquainted with her and at every opportunity talked and played with her. Intelligent, sweet in disposition, full of an elf-like cheerfulness, she impressed me as a child to be loved and respected, not alone for the sake of her parents but for her own delightful personality.

She talked as plainly as a grown person, she enjoyed little childish jokes, she took a part in the activities of the school, and she seemed to feel herself as much a part of things as her parents. Whenever I met her, she always knew me, with all the ease of a person many years older. I had come to expect to see her small, smiling face at chapel and to joke and play with her.

The pathetic accident that robbed us of little Patsy has made us question the value of life and of influence. Not all of us, regardless of the length of our lives, can hope to leave a place, as desolate as the one little Patsy lately occupied. She had all that life can bring—love, health, good mind, a bright future. She has left us with a memory of a sweet little girl that brightened everything she came near. In spite of the brevity of her little life, she has made an impression on those of us who knew her well that no amount of time can erase. The very brevity of her life makes us wonder at its sweetness and wish for ourselves and our own friends a life relatively as full and as hopeful.

—GORDON WILSON.

CONGRESS CLUB HAS MOCK TRIAL

The Congress Debating Club presented its annual mock trial in Vanmeter Hall on Wednesday night, May 11.

The case tried was the sensational $10,000 breach of promise suit of the beautiful and popular Roberta Sanders against Ray Russell. There was a breathless hush in the court room as the witnesses for the plaintiff, Miss White and Mr. Cox, outlined the pathetic story of how the tender young maiden's heart was broken. The defense, however, through its witnesses, Miss Thomas, Mr. Howell and Mr. Russell himself described the plaintiff as a painted hussy.

Judge Marven Whipple had great difficulty in preserving order when Miss Sanders told her own story on the witness stand.

After bursts of oratory by defendant's counsel Williams and Taylor and plaintiff's attorneys Neville and Snider the case went to the jury.

Even the iron-bound heart of Mr. Russell was touched by the pity-compelling sobs of Miss Sanders and they seemingly became reconciled while the jury was deliberating.

The verdict allowed Miss Sanders $5,000 for heart balm.

COLLEGE CROSSROADS

By George Burchette

Now that the school year is ending
And we're bidding each other
good-bye,
Our gladness is mingled with sorrow
And a teardrop is threatening
the eye.
Our handclasp are now somewhat
firmer,
The smiles are more frequent
and bright;
The eyes glow a little more kindly,
And our speech is a little less
light.
Too soon it seems that it's over,
As we sense with a pang of regret
That a year of life is behind us;
And from each of us time
claims a debt.
There are those that are parting
forever,
For the trails of life must
divide;
And we leave behind, with a
longing,
The pals we would keep by our side.
A future looms vaguely before us,
There are side trails which turn
from the right;
But the road that leads to the
goalpost
Is miledstoned by battles to fight.
Thus we have come to the cross-
roads,
Where we part with a farewell
nod,
May we each keep faith in the other,
And all of us faith in our God.

The service and associations of the Air Corps gives its members a very real distinction and a very noticeable breadth and poise.

If you have applied and are ready to go, we have compiled information and tips giving you inside angles and dope that will be invaluable when you arrive at the field.
