ORGANIZATIONAL HISTORY

Arriving in Bowling Green, Kentucky from Scottsville in 1953, Aubrey Johnson purchased the interest of Wood E. Dawson in Satterfield-Eakin-Dawson Funeral Home, located at 1123 College Street and established in the 1940s. Upon the retirement of Lewie T. Satterfield, the business became known as Eakin-Johnson Funeral Home. In 1955, Johnson purchased the interest of Wade Eakin and the business became known as Johnson Funeral Home. In 1963, Johnson Funeral Home moved to 901 Fairview Avenue, where it operates today as Johnson-Vaughn-Phelps Funeral Home.

COLLECTION NOTE

This collection consists of records dating from 1948-1969 of the Johnson Funeral Home, Bowling Green, Kentucky, and its predecessors Satterfield-Eakin-Dawson Funeral Home and Eakin-Johnson Funeral Home. The records consist of a card approximately 10 X 9 inches that typically shows the name of the deceased; date of birth; residence; occupation; date and circumstances of death; place of burial; name of parents and spouse; church affiliation; names of survivors; names of pallbearers; and expenses of the funeral. Not all of this information necessarily appears on every card. In rare cases, additional documents may accompany the card, most commonly an invoice, letter from the family, or data concerning the deceased's military service and/or eligibility for a burial allowance from the Veterans Administration. Additional record sheets for 1969 (Box 3, Folder 11) largely duplicate the information found on the corresponding card.
