BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Elvis Richard Campbell was born in Bowling Green, Kentucky on 23 February 1898. His father, John R. Campbell (1860-1930) was a farmer who also operated a livery business in Bowling Green and served on the City Council. In 1897, John married Maggie A. Brown (1865-1958), a native of Mt. Olivet in Warren County, Kentucky.

Elvis Campbell was educated at Bowling Green's Ogden College and at the Bowling Green Business University. His first public office was as city clerk of South Fulton, Tennessee, where he worked for the Illinois Central Railroad. In 1931, he returned to Bowling Green from his residence in Fulton, Kentucky to work as manager of the W. Y. McGinnis Garage (succeeded by the Campbell-Jenkins Garage), and for an automobile dealership. Campbell served on Bowling Green's City Council from 1941-1945 and on the Board of Public Works from 1945-1949, the latter position marked by the expansion of the city's water works program. He also represented the city on the Electric Plant Board.

Campbell served as mayor of Bowling Green from 1949 to 1953. During his time in office, he was president of the Kentucky Municipal League (1952) and led a major annexation program that doubled the city's area.

In 1954, Campbell was named personnel director for the new Detrex Corporation plant under construction in Bowling Green. In 1957, he became executive secretary of the Bowling Green Chamber of Commerce, but resigned in 1959 to return to Detrex Corporation, once more as personnel director. In 1963, he ran again for mayor but was not successful. After retiring from Detrex in 1964, Campbell was active in Bowling Green's Rotary Club, serving as its president in 1958. Elvis R. Campbell died in Bowling Green on 3 February 1978 and was interred at Fairview Cemetery. His wife, Lula M. (Johnson) Campbell, who he married in 1921, died in 1993. They were the parents of two daughters, Mary Louise (Campbell) Tincher (1928-2018) and Dorothy "Dottie" (Campbell) Mock (1923-2010).
