Manuscripts & Folklife Archives – World War I Collections

This is a list of collections in the Manuscripts & Folklife Archives holdings of WKU's Department of Library Special Collections that relate to World War I. Included are letters of soldiers and civilians, military records and papers, research projects, photographs, scrapbooks and other, mostly unpublished material. Our collections are particularly strong in documenting the experiences of Kentuckians at home and overseas, and of others who found themselves in Kentucky (most notably, at Camp Zachary Taylor, the Army training facility in Louisville) during the war and its immediate aftermath.

Below is an alphabetical list of the collections and a brief description of the World War I elements of each. Clicking on the collection name will link you to TopSCHOLAR®, WKU's online digital repository, where you can download a detailed finding aid for the collection and, in some cases, view materials in the collection. For further information, e-mail mssfa@wku.edu.

To broaden your research to include sources such as published material, additional photographs, broadsides, etc., search KenCat, the Kentucky Library Research Collections catalog.
