ORGANIZATIONAL HISTORY

In 1995, the Landmark Association of Bowling Green, Kentucky began a project to document the rural churches of Warren County, Kentucky. The project was designed in four phases: (1) photographing the exterior facades of the buildings; (2) documenting the structures through sketches and narrative descriptions; (3) collecting historical information; and (4) exhibiting the photographs taken for a contest sponsored by the Landmark Association and WKU's Kentucky Museum. As part of the second and third phases, survey forms were sent to the pastor or other member of the congregation to assist in the gathering of information. Much of the work in the second phase was completed with the assistance of students in WKU's Historic Preservation Program.

COLLECTION NOTE

This collection consists of information collected for the Landmark Association's survey and documentation of rural churches in Bowling Green and Warren County, Kentucky. Although some of the material is undated, the surveys were apparently completed from 1995-1997. The amount of documentation differs for each church, but typically includes a survey form; sketches and narrative descriptions of the building; information such as church histories, anniversary programs, and clippings; and photographs. Photographs are of the exterior, but in rare cases include a few interior photographs. Not every church in the county could be successfully documented, and some survey forms are incomplete; in addition, the volume of information varies—from extensive survey notes and historical sketches or narratives to only a partially completed survey form or, in a few cases, only a photograph. Although some lists of pastors are included, neither church minutes nor membership lists were collected. No cemetery data is included, although some photographs may show the church cemetery.
