Former swim coach does 81 laps on 81st birthday

Former WKU swimming head coach Bill Powell took to the pool early Friday morning to celebrate his 81st birthday by swimming 81 laps.

He was cheered on by his wife Joanne Powell, as well as former swimmers of his who were helping to document the event and keep track of his laps and time.

The tradition first began on Powell's 46th birthday. He showed up to the pool as he does most mornings but didn't have a plan in mind for his workout.

"I don't always know exactly what I'm going to do when I start swimming, I make it up as I go along," Powell said. "And I said 'ah heck I'm going to swim 46 lengths.'"

Woman reports burglary, assault to BGPD

Bowling Green Police are investigating a burglary and assault that happened about a mile away from WKU's campus on the 700-block of East 14th Avenue.

A 19-year-old woman told police that upon returning home from work around 5 p.m., she discovered a man in her home. The woman told police she struggled with the man, and both individuals fell to the floor. The woman stated that something startled the man, and he ran out of the bedroom.

The woman found help on High Street and was later transported to the Medical Center. Any information about the crime can be directed to the Bowling Green Police Department.

Alumnus brings charger vending machines to campus

New vending machines installed across WKU's campus dispense disposable, one-time use chargers for iPhones and Android phones.

The Power Drop vending machines are located in Jody Richards Hall, Cravens Graduate Center and Library and Downing Student Union. The cost for a charger is $7.49 plus tax. Marcus Korba, a WKU alumnus who invested in the Power Drop franchise, said the idea to bring the chargers to WKU was his.
