

8-22-1941

UA3/2/4 Keys Which Open Doors

Paul Garrett

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.wku.edu/dlsc\_ua\_records

 Part of the Higher Education Administration Commons, Mass Communication Commons, and the Speech and Rhetorical Studies Commons

Revised

To give the keys which open the doors of knowledge; to train in accuracy and exactness; to teach the advantages of democracy and the sacrifices through which it became our heritage; to introduce to the wonders of the universe and the thoughts and achievements of past ages; to constantly push back horizons; to instill a love of books and so banish loneliness; to build and increase faith in the preeminence of the spiritual and by so doing to increase happiness and usefulness for those whom you teach, is your task and privilege.

After twenty-five years in school work, fully cognizant of all the discouragements and disappointments which come, I heartily congratulate you that you are engaged in the most challenging and delightful of all tasks. I wish for you the happiness that you should find in your work.