Oath of the American Dental Hygienists' Association

Whereas, ages ago in their quest for supernatural aid, the Greeks swore by Aesculapius, son of Apollo, god of health, and by Hygeia, goddess of health, and whereas, the Romans in the Christian era placed themselves under the protection of Apollonia, who is held as Dentistry's patron saint, they besought, so now do I — humbly acknowledge my human limitation — in accepting this parchment of my Alma Mater, solemnly swear to render health service to those who seek my ministrations, hereby enjoining upon myself the sacred duty of teaching the public, particularly children and young people, the value of dental health as a priceless possession; and further, bind myself to future study to broaden my knowledge that I may share with others such information in my special field as will tend toward the ideal of dental health sought by Dr. Alfred C. Fones, the founder of the profession of Dental Hygiene.
