

Western Kentucky University

TopSCHOLAR®

WKU Archives Records

WKU Archives

10-1986

UA3/7/7 Scrapbook File

WKU President - Alexander

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.wku.edu/dlsc_ua_records

Part of the Advertising and Promotion Management Commons, Higher Education Administration Commons, Journalism Studies Commons, Mass Communication Commons, Public Relations and Advertising Commons, Publishing Commons, Social Influence and Political Communication Commons, and the Sports Studies Commons

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by TopSCHOLAR®. It has been accepted for inclusion in WKU Archives Records by an authorized administrator of TopSCHOLAR®. For more information, please contact topscholar@wku.edu.

Jesse Stuart's life, work subject of panel discussion

"His Place, His People," a panel discussion about the life and work of Jesse Stuart, will be presented at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Orientation Room of the Kentucky Building on Western Kentucky University's campus.

The program, sponsored by the school's University Lecture Series and the Jesse Stuart Foundation, is being presented as part of "Passages: A Jesse Stuart 80th Birthday Celebration," a year-long celebration of the late writer's life and achievements.

The celebration consists of programs and presentations from eight colleges and universities in four states.

At Western, four editors of the Jesse Stuart Foundation will discuss the author and his works.

A question and answer session will follow the panel discussion. There will also be a display of Stuart memorabilia, much of which comes from Stuart's W Hollow home in Greenup County.

Panelists will be Dr. Jim Wayne Miller, professor of modern languages at Western and a Kentucky poet laureate; Dr. John H. Spurlock, professor of English at Western; Dr. H. Edward Richardson, professor of American Literature at the University of Louisville; and Dr. Ruel E. Foster, Benedum professor of American Literature at West Virginia University.

All have published works about Stuart.

University lectures are free and open to the public.

D.N. 10-1-56

The Kingston Trio in concert Friday

Special Occasions, Inc. will present The Kingston Trio in concert at 8 p.m. Friday at the Capitol Arts Center. The concert is a part of Bowling Green's 1986 Jubilee celebration.

The Kingston Trio, which performed last winter in Bowling Green, consists of Bob Shane, George Grove and Bob Haworth.

Tickets are on sale at Western Kentucky University's ticket office, the Capitol, Greenwood Mall and American National Bank.

Admission is $9.50 for adults and $7.50 for students, with a share of the proceeds going to the Western Kentucky University Fine Arts Center.

D.N. 10-1-56

(Staff Photo by Mark Workman)

CLAUDIA BRACKMANN (left), a West German journalist, talks with a Western Kentucky University student prior to a press conference Tuesday that introduced Mrs. Brackmann to members of the Bowling Green and Nashville media. Mrs. Brackmann is at Western and WBKO-TV this week through a journalism exchange program sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency and Western.

Media aren't much different, West German journalist says

10-1-56
By THOMAS T. ROSS
Daily News Staff Writer

The media in West Germany aren't much different than America's news gathering operations, according to a West German television journalist.

"I wouldn't see a big difference between the two," said Claudia Brackmann, a producer and anchorperson at West Germany's ZDF (Second German Television) network, which employs 3,500 people.

"Our broadcasters are maybe a little more sophisticated, a little more stiff, while American anchors are a little more chatty, more conversational," said Mrs. Brackmann, who was introduced to members of the Bowling Green and Nashville media during a Tuesday afternoon press conference at Western.

"We have the same rights and obligations as American journalists do," Mrs. Brackmann said. "We have the same freedoms."

She is visiting Western Kentucky University and WBKO-TV this week through a journalism exchange program.

Through the same program, Barb Dubczak of WBKO-TV traveled to West Germany last spring and worked for several weeks at ZDF.

Mrs. Brackmann, in turn, will observe the workings of WBKO as well as other Bowling Green news operations during her stay. She toured the Daily News on Tuesday.

Mrs. Brackmann, who resides in Mainz, West Germany, which lies near Wiesbaden and Frankfurt, said her country is also experiencing an information blitz similar to the one America has witnessed since the explosion of the electronic age in the 1960s.

Dissemination of information is as widespread in West Germany as in America, she said.

"We are avid newspaper readers, but people are more likely to spend as much time watching television now," Mrs. Brackmann said. "It's the same development as in the United States."

Mrs. Brackmann, whose beat includes American politics, said even the criticisms of West Germany's media are similar to the complaints heard about their American counterparts.

For instance, she said the West German media are criticized for focusing too much attention on the negative stories and too little on the positive — a longstanding criticism of the American press.

"Oh, yes, we receive the same kind of criticisms," she said. "Every day our editor asks what is the positive story. That we must not only concentrate on crime and disasters, for instance, but must also focus on the positive stories."

Mrs. Brackmann said that she may file a story to ZDF about her stay here, much the same as Miss Dubczak did when she filed a story from Frankfurt to WBKO, but her tight schedule may prevent her from doing so.

"I may not have time," she said. "We have bureaus in Washington, D.C., and in New York City and they might not appreciate me filing a story. But it's important that you get something out of my stay, too."

Miss Dubczak said one of the benefits of the exchange was that she had the opportunity to visit Europe — where most of our ancestors are from.

A CLASSIC CELEBRATION

A Special Salute to Franz Liszt Sponsored by American National Bank and Trust, The Kentucky Arts Council and Western Kentucky University Department of Music.

In 1886, a musical era ended . . . and a banking tradition began.
Franz Liszt passed away that year. But his music has survived that true test of greatness . . . time. Today, his music still thrills millions around the world.

Time is also the true test of a great bank. On this, our 100th anniversary, American National Bank and Trust is very proud of our financial past. In celebration, and to thank our many loyal customers, we're helping bring to you the music of Franz Liszt performed by the noted concert pianist, Sylvia Kersenbaum and the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra conducted by Michael Luxnes. Ms. Kersenbaum has performed all over the world and is currently a faculty member of Western Kentucky University.

This concert will also feature the music of Weber and Tchaikovsky's
"Romeo and Juliet".

One performance only, Sunday, October 5, 3:00 p.m. at Van Meter Auditorium. Tickets are on sale for $10, $9, $8 and $5 at W.K.U.
Potter College Dean's Office, Fine Arts Center, Room 200 or at the door day of the performance.

We hope you'll attend this night of classical music.

American National Bank and Trust

922 State Street
P. O. Box 718-C
Bowling Green, Kentucky 42101
781-6111

Member F.D.I.C.

D.N. 10-1-86

Coming Attractions

D. N. 16-2-86

EDITOR'S NOTE: Individuals or groups are encouraged to submit items concerning happenings and events in Southcentral Kentucky to the Coming Attractions column, which appears every Thursday. There is no charge and items should be submitted at least two weeks in advance of the event. Deadline is noon Wednesday.

CONCERTS

The Owensboro Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Michael Luxner, will perform at 3 p.m. Sunday in Van Meter Auditorium at Western Kentucky University. Dr. Sylvia Kersenbaum of Western will be the piano soloist, with selections by Franz Liszt in honor of the 100th anniversary of the composer's death. Admission is $10, $9, $8 and $5. Student tickets are half-price. Call 745-2344 for more details.

Western's department of music will present the Western Show Choir, under the direction of Dr. Kenneth Davis, at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Van Meter Auditorium on Western's campus. Admission is free.

The U.S. Army Field Band and Chorus, 150 members strong, will perform in concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Western's Expo Center. Although admission is free, organizers are asking those who plan to attend to acquire tickets, which may be picked up at the Western ticket office and at the Western ROTC office, both in Diddle Arena, Royal Music Co. and Long John Silver's restaurant in Greenwood Mall.

Billy Vaughn and his band will perform in concert 8 p.m.-11 p.m. Oct. 10 at an Elk's Lodge dance. Admission is $10.

The Bowling Green-Western Symphony Orchestra will perform in concert, under the direction of Gary Dilworth, at 8 p.m. Oct. 11 in Van Meter Auditorium on Western's campus. Tickets are $3 for students and $5 general admission. Season subscription is $20 and should be mailed to 416 E. Main St., Bowling Green, KY 42101.

PRODUCTIONS

Western's department of communication and theatre will present Oct. 10-12 a production of "Sleeping Beauty," as a part of the 1986 Children's Theatre Series. All performances will be in Theatre 100 of Gordon Wilson Hall at Western. Admission is 50 cents and showtimes are 4 p.m. Friday and at 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

FILMS, FILMSTRIPS AND STORIES

The public library will show children's films at 1:15 p.m. Saturday and 3:45 p.m. Tuesday in the library program room.

The public library's preschool storytime will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the program room.

EXHIBITS

An exhibit of photographs from PEOPLE magazine will be on display today-Sunday at the Greenwood Mall. "Boomers — At Work, At Play," focuses on more than 100 celebrities.

The sixth Capitol Arts Center Annual Juried Art Exhibition — 45 works by area artists, photographers and craftsmen — is on view 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. through Oct. 15 in the Ervin G. Houchens Gallery at the Capitol.

The Kentucky Museum on the Western Kentucky University campus is open 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and 1 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

The Eloise B. Houchens Center is open to the public Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. or other times by appointment. Call 842-6761 for more information.

WKU student arrested

Salmon Scott Shina of 2520 Pearce-Ford Tower was arrested by Western Kentucky University police Wednesday on charges of possession of a forged instrument in the second degree and theft of property.

Lt. Richard Kirby said Shina lost his billfold, and when police recovered it they discovered three different driver's licenses and other identification belonging to another person.

A member of Western's music department told WKU police a turntable, an amplifier and a cassette tape deck valued at $826 were stolen between Sept. 24 and Wednesday from Room 181 at the Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center.

A member of Western's nursing department told WKU police a $450 movie projector was stolen between May 12 and Wednesday from Room 105 in the Academic Complex.

Russell True McClanahan of 806 Pearce-Ford Tower told WKU police an AM-FM cassette player and an equalizer valued at $210 were stolen Wednesday from his car in the tower's parking lot.

Western receives grants

The College of Education and Behavioral Sciences at Western Kentucky University has been awarded a $105,198 grant from the U.S. Department of Education, according to U.S. Rep. William Natcher.

The grant will be used for training of special program staff and leadership personnel.

Also, Natcher reported that Western's biology department has been awarded a $49,660 grant from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

Dr. Larry Gleason will conduct a two-year study on the defense reactions of arthropods to acanthocephala. The acanthocephala is a parasite that lives in the body cavity of arthropods, including crustaceans.

Brown named 'Man of Year'

A. Franklin Brown III of Bowling Green has been named "Sigma Nu Man of the Year" by the International fraternity Sigma Nu.

Brown, a graduate of Western Kentucky University, is a teaching assistant at Purdue University.

WKU office to open

Western Kentucky University's community college will open its office doors Monday, according to Dr. Ronnie Sutton, dean of scholastic development and coordinator of the college.

The office is located in room 316 of Science and Technology Hall, adjacent to Cherry Hall on Western's campus. Office hours are noon-8:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday; noon-4:30 p.m. Friday; and 8 a.m.-noon Saturday.

Western's Board of Regents voted in May to expand Western's non-traditional programs into a community college system to meet the needs of the growing population of students and to make the school more accessible.

Courses offered in the community college will lead to two-year associate degrees. President Kern Alexander said the community college will be staffed and funded with existing personnel and resources and will not require additional expenditure by the school.

The community college is scheduled to open in fall 1987.

Kersenbaum to perform with Owensboro Symphony

D. N. 10-5-86

The Owensboro Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Michael Luxner, will present a special concert at 3 p.m. today in Western Kentucky University's Van Meter Auditorium to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Franz Liszt's death.

Guest soloist will be pianist Sylvia Kersenbaum and featured works will include Liszt's Concert No. 2 for Piano and Orchestra, Concerto No. 1 in E-Flat Major and Tchaikovsky's Overture-Fantasy from Romeo and Juliet.

The performance is made possible by grants from the Kentucky Arts Council, the National Endowment for the Arts, American National Bank and Western.

The 90-member orchestra, founded in 1965, is a fully-professional ensemble drawn from a three-state area. Luxner is a native of New York with degrees from the Eastman School of Music.

Miss Kersenbaum, a professor of music at Western, has appeared on the concert circuit throughout Europe as well as in the United States, Mexico and Japan.

She has performed as a recitalist and with orchestras including the Royal Philharmonic and the San Francisco Symphony.

Tickets are $10, $9, $8 and $5 and are half-price for students. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

WKU trains mechanics of the future

110-5-86
By SHEILA CONWAY
Special to the Daily News

With automakers predicting that the average car by 1990 will have five times the computing power and memory of today's car, the question arises, "Who's going to fix it when it breaks?"

Western Kentucky University and General Motor dealers in Kentucky have the answer.

Through a cooperative effort between the auto industry and state higher education, Western is now training specialists to handle those new service department problems of today and the future.

Western currently is the only school in the nation training technicians who, upon graduation, will possess computer know-how as well as the needed mechanical skills to repair today's computer-packed car.

The program was implemented this fall after it was approved by the state Council on Higher Education.

The four-year bachelor's degree program in electro-mechanical engineering technology with an automotive option prepares future auto technicians with a combined curriculum in electronics, fundamentals of applied engineering and a study of all the automotive systems.

"It's quite a different picture of the traditional auto mechanic," said Boyce Tate, head of Western's department of industrial and engineering technology.

The department developed the degree program after Kentucky dealers approached the university asking for a program that could help them.

"We were especially pleased to have been approached with this project," Tate said. "The person who can fix a car of today has to be educated similar to an engineer. The label of 'automechanic' can no longer apply."

The program has stringent requirements, including a minimum ACT score in math of 22 and a minimum composite score of 19.

"The change from a mostly mechanical vehicle to a highly complex electro-mechanical vehicle has left an extreme shortage of qualified technical persons to service and repair vehicles," said Robert Newberry, executive vice president of the Kentucky Automobile Dealers Association.

He added that Western's program will also prepare persons to be qualified for other positions in the auto industry, such as factory representatives and dealership general managers.

"Now as dealers begin the search for electronically-oriented technicians, it becomes apparent that this (current) group is without any background in mechanical technology," said L.R. Cooke Jr., a Kentucky auto dealer. "Western's new program bridges the gap just right, and just barely in time."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sheila Conway is news editor in Western's office of public information.

A CHEVROLET CAVALIER donated to Western Kentucky University by Chevrolet will be used by students in the school's new bachelor's degree program in electro-mechanical engineering with an automotive option. From left are, Tom Chenoweth, assistant zone service manager, Chevrolet Motor Division of General Motors Corp., Dr. Charles Kupchella, dean of Western's Ogden College of Science, Technology and Health, Boyce Tate, Western's head of the department of industrial and engineering technology, and Lynn Greeley, assistant dean of Ogden College.

D.N. 10-5-86

This Week at Western

D. IV
10-5-86

MONDAY

11:45 A.M. MORNING BODY RECALL. An independent study personal enrichment course designed to promote lifetime fitness. The course is an alternative to aerobic exercise that helps gain flexibility, strength and muscle tone through slow and gentle movement. Belinda Jefferson and Betty Jane Nash will instruct the course over 30 sessions of 45 minutes each. Contact the office of non-traditional programs at 745-5305.

4:45 P.M. AFTERNOON BODY RECALL. An alternative to the morning class. Jane Burke will instruct the class.

TUESDAY

8 P.M. WKU SHOW CHOIR will perform in Van Meter Auditorium under the direction of Dr. Kenneth R. Davis, professor of music. The show is free and open to the public. Contact Western's music department at 745-3751.

WEDNESDAY

3:20 P.M. A TEACHERS EDUCATION committee meeting will be held in the Dean's Conference Room of the College of Education Building.

7:30 P.M. THE UNITED STATES ARMY FIELD AND SOLDIERS' CHORUS of Washington, D.C. will give a free concert at the Agriculture Exposition Center but by ticket only. Tickets may be obtained at the Western ticket office, military science department, Long John Silver's at Greenwood Mall and Royal Music Co. on State Street. The show is sponsored by the military science department at Western. Call 745-4293 or 745-4294.

THURSDAY

CPR INSTRUCTORS COURSE will be taught by Dr. Mary Hazard, head of the department of nursing. The course will continue through 5 p.m. at the Academic Complex. Call 745-3391.

FRIDAY

8 A.M. GRIEF, DEPRESSION AND SUICIDE will be the topic discussed by Kay Carr, associate professor in the department of nursing. The all-day lecture is sponsored by Western's department of nursing as part of the nursing continuing education program. Call 745-3391.

9:15 A.M. HIGH SCHOOL PRESS DAY. The department of journalism will host high school students until 2:30 p.m. High School Press Day is sponsored annually by the office of university publications. Call 745-2653.

11:45 A.M. THE COOPERATIVE CENTER FOR STUDY IN BRITAIN will be the topic led by Dr. Raymond Cravens, professor of government and director of the center. The informal discussions will take place monthly sponsored by the office of international programs. Call 745-5333.

SATURDAY

8 P.M. THE BOWLING GREEN-WESTERN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA will perform in concert in Van Meter Auditorium

under the direction of Gary Dillworth, assistant professor of music. Tickets are $5 for general admission and $3 for students. Contact the department of music at 745-3751.

* * *
Jerry William Wilson, 21, of Sulphur Well was arrested by Western Kentucky University police after a woman said he tried to run her down with a car.

Karen Hope Clark of 201 McLean Hall said she and Wilson were behind Keen Hall Saturday morning, and when she refused his advances and ran away, he tried to run her down.

He was charged with first degree wanton endangerment and harassment. Wilson was lodged in the Warren County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

* * *
WKU police are investigating fires Sunday in Gordon Wilson Hall. Lt. Richard Kirby said fires were set on a bulletin board next to a ticket booth in the lobby, on a bulletin board in the third floor lobby, and a telephone directory also was set on fire. There was only minor damage.

* * *
Kevin Ray Stinnett of 1718 Pearce-Ford Tower told WKU police a $200 stereo and a $100 equalizer were stolen from his car Thursday or Friday while it was parked outside the residence hall.

* * *
Michael Scott Smith of Campbellsville told WKU police 60 cassette tapes, a tape case and assorted clothing valued at $668 were stolen Saturday from his car parked outside Pearce-Ford Tower.

D.N. * * * 12-6-80

(Staff Photo by Kim Swift)

Home at last!

ALPHA OMICRON PI celebrated its new home with an open house for members, alumnae, and visiting parents Saturday. As part of Parents' Weekend, sponsored by the Inter-Hall Council, parents of all Western students were invited to campus. AOP and Chi Omega recently completed the mountain of prerequisites that go into buying and moving into a fraternal house. Pictures of Chi Omega's open house were not available at press time.

D.N. 10-6-56

▲ ■ ■

(Staff Photo by Mark Workman)

Spreading the Word

JAMES GOLDSMITH (left) and Charles Harpe of Gideons International distribute Bibles on Monday to passing students on Western Kentucky University's campus. Both are from Elizabethtown. Goldsmith said the group hopes to distribute 5,000 Bibles on Western's campus during its stay. The Protestant organization was founded in 1899.

D. N. 10-7-86

Bravo!

Editor, Daily News:

Local musicians performing at this year's Capitol Gala gave their audience a particular sense of pride that we'd like to share with the whole city. The entire evening was a treat, but Oh those hometown musicians!

Rich Little's stage orchestra was made up of superlative performers who live in or returned to Bowling Green to help with this community fundraiser. Some are performing professionally in Louisville, Nashville or Bowling Green. Some are students or faculty in Western's wonderful music department. Some are business people whose love of music makes it their strong avocation.

When they came together after only two hours rehearsal what a "joyful noise" they made. Rich Little and the musicians who travel with him were highly complimentary. So were we local admirers.

Thanks and BRAVO! to: Paul Satterfield, Greg Satterfield, Todd Lowe, David Livingston, Jeff Jansky, Byron House, Webb Hendrix, Steve Grugin, Chuck Curry, Chrystal Corley, Kevin Briley and Philip Bailey.

Regina C. Newell
1320 Park St.
Bowling Green

REGINA C. NEWELL

D. N.

10-16-86

University Gallery, Fine Arts Center,
Western Kentucky University, 8:30 a.m.-
3:30 p.m. Monday-Friday, 1986 invitational exhibit, through next Friday.

Spencer Art Museum

Bowling Green-Western Symphony Orchestra. Tomorrow, 8 p.m., Van Meter Auditorium, Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green. $3-$5. Call
(502) 745-3751. C-3 10-16-86

SOON seeks fraternity house moratorium

D.N. 10-5-86

A group of residents in the neighborhood of a house recently considered as a possible site for a college fraternity house is seeking a moratorium which would prevent any fraternity or sorority here from establishing new quarters.

Save Our Old Neighborhood, a group involved in preserving the neighborhood around the house at 1318 College St., has submitted a request for a moratorium on special zoning exemptions to the board of adjustments.

Kappa Alpha, a Western Kentucky University fraternity, recently sought a special exception permit from the board to allow its members to move into the house.

The fraternity withdrew its request because of a technicality in the contract last month but is still eligible to request another exception.

The next date Kappa Alpha would be eligible to have another request heard by the board would be Dec. 11.

The request would have to be filed by Nov. 20 to be heard then.

SOON's request will be heard at the Oct. 23 meeting.

The imposition of a moratorium on fraternity and sorority housing is not without precedent.

In 1984 a moratorium was adopted by the planning commission in February which lasted through the end of May.

The director of the planning commission, John Matheney, said the purpose of that moratorium was to stop action while a committee reviewed recommendations for locations for fraternity and sorority houses.

That committee endorsed a set of restrictive covenants on sororities and designated a particular area in which sororities were encouraged to locate.

Matheney said a moratorium is "a rather serious action with considerable limitations on the city and county governments."

Matheney said he received a letter from Nancy Gillis, a representative of SOON, requesting that the board consider a moratorium.

He said the group has the right to petition the board of adjustments concerning the moratorium and the board will consider to whom to refer the matter.

(Photo by Mark Workman)

Proposed fraternity house on College Street.

Scholarship winner announced

JULIE KUEHN, a senior at Western Kentucky University, will receive this year's John B. and Clarence M. Gaines Scholarship for a student in advertising. Pipes Gaines made the announcement and presented Miss Kuehn with a plaque at Mariah's Restaurant Monday. She was selected for her academic standing, professional growth and advertising-related activities. She has been a member of Western's Advertising Club for seven semesters, is currently its president, and has served as an officer in the Marketing Club. She recently completed a summer internship with an agency in her hometown, Kalamazoo, Mich.

D.V. 10-9-86

Coming Attractions

D. N.

11-2-86

EDITOR'S NOTE: Individuals or groups are encouraged to submit items concerning happenings and events in Southcentral Kentucky to the Coming Attractions column, which appears every Thursday. There is no charge and items should be submitted at least two weeks in advance of the event. Deadline is noon Wednesday.

CONCERTS

Western's department of music will present Paula Boire, Soprano, in a guest faculty recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the recital hall of Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center on Western's campus. Admission is free.

Western's department of music and Delta Omicron Professional Music Fraternity will present the Delta Omicron Fall Musicale at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the recital hall of Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center. Admission is free.

Billy Vaughn and his band will perform in concert 8 p.m.-11 p.m. Friday at an Elk's Lodge dance. Admission is $10.

The Bowling Green-Western Symphony Orchestra will perform in concert, under the direction of Gary Dilworth, at 8 p.m. Saturday in Van Meter Auditorium on Western's campus. Tickets are $3 for students and $5 general admission. Season subscription is $20 and should be mailed to 416 E. Main St., Bowling Green, KY 42101.

The Blue-Gray Affair will be conducted at Golden Pond on the Land Between the Lakes Oct. 18-19. Visitors can get a rare look at military life during the Civil War. Soldiers from both sides will be portrayed in full military garb of the time. The camps open at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 18. A mock battle will be staged at 1:30 p.m. Sunday (bring folding chairs or blankets for seating). Program fee is $1 per person. Food and beverages will be available on the grounds. Call 924-5602, ext. 233 for added details.

The public library's "Tots and Moms Activity Time" will meet at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the program room.

PRODUCTIONS

Western's department of communication and theatre will present Oct. 13-20 a production of the Shakespearean comedy "Measure for Measure." Contact the department for showtimes and ticket prices. Season tickets for Western's 1986-87 four-event theatre season are still available at a discount rate of $10.

Western's department of communication and theatre will present Friday-Sunday a production of "Sleeping Beauty," as a part of the 1986 Children's Theatre Series. All performances will be in Theatre 100 of Gordon Wilson Hall at Western. Admission is 50 cents and showtimes are 4 p.m. Friday and 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The public library will show children's films at 1:15 p.m. Saturday and 3:45 p.m. Tuesday in the library program room.

The public library's preschool storytime will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the program room.

EXHIBITS

The sixth Capitol Arts Center Annual Juried Art Exhibition — 45 works by area artists, photographers and craftsmen — is on view 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. through Wednesday in the Ervin G. Houchens Gallery at the Capitol.

The Kentucky Museum on the Western Kentucky University campus is open 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and 1 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Zacharias nominated for UK presidency

10-7-86
By THOMAS T. ROSS
Daily News Staff Writer

Dr. Donald Zacharias, a former president at Western Kentucky University, has spent the last 13 months running Mississippi State University in Starkville.

There is, however, a possibility he will be back in Kentucky this time next year running the University of Kentucky.

Zacharias, 51, confirmed Wednesday in a telephone interview that he has been nominated to replace Dr. Otis Singletary as president of Kentucky's largest, and perhaps most prestigious, state university.

Singletary, 64, has announced he will step down as UK's president when his contract expires June 30, 1987. A tenured faculty member, Singletary said he will resume his teaching career at UK.

"That's a fair question but it's a tough one to answer," Zacharias said after being asked if he was a candidate. "It is true that I have been informed that I have been nominated for the position. Beyond that, I shouldn't say anything directly about the search or the job."

Zacharias, who resigned from the Western presidency in August 1985 to take the $78,000-a-year position at Mississippi State, declined to comment further about his candidacy on grounds it might be harmful to UK's search.

"The committee at UK doing the screening is trying to conduct everything with professionalism and privacy because during the early stages of a search it's very possible a leak will mess the whole system up," Zacharias said.

"So what I'm attempting to do is follow those guidelines that were put in place by the committee," he continued. "That way no one becomes embarrassed. So my position is I'll just sit on the sidelines and see what develops."

UK's search committee, which includes five university Board of Trustees, four teachers including Western graduate Timothy A. Cantrell (chairman of division of social sciences and related technology at UK's community college at Madisonville) and one student, began reviewing applications last Wednesday.

The committee plans to recommend more than one candidate to UK's 20-member Board of Trustees sometime this winter.

Zacharias' name was first mentioned publicly as a possible candidate in an article published in The Lexington Herald-Leader prior to the Oct. 1 filing deadline.

Continued On Page 5
Column 5, This Section

Dr. Donald Zacharias

According to Tom McCord, a Herald-Leader higher education reporter who wrote the story, Zacharias is one of six persons most often mentioned as a candidate.

The other five, McCord said, are Gov. Martha Layne Collins, Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander, William E. "Brit" Kirwan, vice chancellor for academic affairs and provost at the University of Maryland at College Park, Charles T. Wethington Jr., chancellor of UK's community college system, and Donald C. Swain, president of the University of Louisville.

"We wanted to list who's being talked about most," McCord said. "And Zacharias was one of them."

Although Zacharias wouldn't say whether he would take the UK job if offered, he did make some observations.

"It's clearly an outstanding position and it does represent a key role in higher education in Kentucky," said Zacharias, who served as Western's sixth president for six years. Dr. Kern Alexander is now serving as Western's seventh president.

"The comparison between UK and this institution is an easy one," said Zacharias, who is known for his mastery in communication. "There are a lot of similarities. With Mississippi State being a land-grant institution, it does have all the agricultural programs as UK. And both have engineering programs.

"On the other hand, our budget was $120 million this year, which is a substantial budget. UK's, however, was $455 million. But then again we don't have a law school, a dental school or medical school."

Some observers in Mississippi have said Zacharias has become frustrated with the budget cuts that have beset higher education institutions in the state — a fact that may prompt him to leave.

During Mississippi's 1986 General Assembly, drastic funding cuts were placed on state agencies, including the state's eight universities.

According to Andy Kanengiser, a reporter with the Jackson Clarion-Ledger who covered higher education when Zacharias first came to Mississippi State, the state schools saw funding cuts this year between 6 percent-28 percent.

"The 6 percent cut is what Mississippi State received," he said. "But Zacharias did a pretty good job in lobbying for Mississippi State to get that because initially the school was going to get as much as a 15 percent cut. He helped get that reduced."

Kanengiser said that he doesn't think Zacharias will leave Mississippi State unless the state goes through another stage of drastic cutbacks in higher education. That question will be answered sometime January-April when the Mississippi General Assembly meets for its 1987 session.

Kanengiser said Zacharias has received good marks from the state's higher education circle, including the legislature and one-time detractor Gov. Bill Allain.

Zacharias, who brought to Western $3 million in programs sponsored by grants and contracts in 1984-85 — a university record — helped bring in $10.8 million in research grants and contracts to Mississippi State last year.

And during the first three months of this school year, Zacharias said, about $5.5 million has been brought to the university. His work includes helping to bring Honda's research and development center to Mississippi State, which represents a major million dollar research grant.

"That shows a lot of hard work by a lot of people," said Zacharias, who also teaches a communication course at Mississippi State.

WKU community college pieces filled in Faculty Senate given assurances by school administration

10-10-86

By THOMAS T. ROSS
Daily News Staff Writer

Some missing pieces of Western Kentucky University's developing community college were filled in Thursday by school administrators who discussed the issue with the Faculty Senate.

Dr. Robert Haynes, vice president for academic affairs, and Dr. Ronnie Sutton, dean of scholastic development, assured the assembly that faculty members will not be forced to teach at the community college and the university will strive to avoid duplication of courses.

Western's Board of Regents voted in May to expand the school's non-traditional programs into a community college system to meet the needs of the growing population of students and to make the institution more accessible. Courses offered in the college will lead to two-year associate degrees.

In regards to faculty assignments to the community college, Haynes said those teachers wishing to transfer from the university to the new setting will do so voluntarily.

"We will not transfer unilaterally any faculty to the community college," Haynes said. "That will be strictly on a volunteer basis.... And as appointments become available and we have additional funding, we will advertise the positions and the faculty will be free to apply for those positions."

President Kern Alexander has said that the community college, which opened its office doors Monday, will be staffed and funded with existing personnel and resources. It will not require additional expenditures by the school, he said.

"We do not have the funds which to pay for (additional) faculty salaries," Haynes said. "But we've figured if 10 students enroll in a (community college) class, the income of the tuition will permit us to compensate an instructor to teach that course. There will be no new output to teach this course."

He said the community college's student enrollment fees will be identical to the university's student fees. He also noted the General Assembly will not allocate separate funds to the community college.

Haynes added as the community college fully develops, the university hopes to establish a community college faculty as funds permit.

The university, he said, hasn't decided whether to advertise for a director of the community college.

"We haven't opened that one up yet," Haynes said. "We'll advertise in the normal manner if we decide to and then he or she will be

Continued Back Page
Column 3, This Section

Community college

From Page 1

appointed as an administrative position normally is in academic affairs."

Another concern raised was the possible danger that some courses taught to the university's traditional students may also end up being taught to the community college's non-traditional students.

"We hope to avoid serious duplication of courses, primarily general education courses," Haynes said. "We hope to avoid it as much as possible, if not entirely."

He said the university has acquired 140 sections, or courses, that it plans to advertise to be taught through the community college.

Haynes said the university is not asking any of its 18 existing associate degree programs to transfer to the community college.

"We've had discussions with those departments about the future of those programs," Haynes said. "We're not asking any of them to transfer to the community college. If they want to, fine. But if it's not appropriate, we're not anxious to move them."

Sutton said he couldn't project enrollment figures for the community college, but said pre-registration in December and regular registration in January will help give the administration a feel for the demand of such a venture.

Dr. Richard Ayres of Western's management and marketing department is conducting a needs assessment and target market survey to help give the university and faculty an idea of the community college's need.

The report should be completed by Christmas, according to Dr. Jerry Boles, also of the management and marketing department.

"Are we pressuring demand and then going out and trying to find it?" asked Dr. Gene Evans, Faculty Senate chairman. "It's important to know if there is significant demand for this."

Boles, who teaches associate degree courses through Western's Business College, also warned the assembly to stop assuming that associate degree students are substandard.

"I've sensed a faulty assumption that some of you seem to have that associate degree students are automatically substandard or sub-par," Boles said. "I have associate degree students in some programs that have master's degrees, so don't automatically assume. People have a lot of different reasons to take a two-year course."

Sutton said a list of community college courses will be available by spring semester and that the system is expected to open its doors to students in the fall of 1987.

(Staff Photo by Mark Workman)

Dishing it out

LESA HARRIS of Western Kentucky University's physical plant paints one of the satellite dishes outside the Educational Television facilities on campus this morning.

D.V. 10-10-86

This Week at Western

D.N.

10-12-86

MONDAY

8 P.M. 'MEASURE FOR MEASURE' will be presented by Western Kentucky University students in the Russell Miller Theatre of the Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center until Oct. 22. The Shakespearean comedy will be followed by the contemporary comedy "The Miss Firecracker Contest" Nov. 18-20. In the spring, Western's theatre will present "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" April 7-12 and an "Evening of Dance" April 22-26. Curtain times for performances Monday-Saturday are at 8 p.m. and

3 p.m. on Sundays. A season ticket for all four shows can currently be purchased for $10. Contact Western's department of communication and theatre at 745-3296.

TUESDAY

8 P.M. WKU'S DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC presents Paula Boire, soprano, in a guest recital in the Recital Hall of Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center. Admission is free and the public is invited.

WEDNESDAY

8 A.M. 'DIABETES AND HYPERTENSION' will be the topic discussed by Teresa Browning and Sandra Petersen, a team from the Barren River District Health Department and Condit Steil of Trover Clinic in Madisonville. The lecture is sponsored by the WKU department of nursing continuing education program. Contact the department at 745-3391.

* * *

8 A.M. COAL LAB TECHNICIAN TRAINING will be held at WKU's Downing University Center until 5 p.m.

* * *

8 P.M. DELTA OMICRON FALL MUSICALE sponsored by the department of music and Delta Omicron Professional Music Fraternity, will be presented in the Recital Hall of Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center. Admission is free and the public is invited.

FRIDAY

8 A.M. 'ASSESSMENT OF THE LUNGS' will be the topic discussed by Billie Baughman, assistant professor in the department of nursing at Western, in the Academic Complex until 2 p.m. The workshop is sponsored by the WKU department of nursing as part of the nursing continuing education program. Contact the department at 745-3391.

* * *

5:30 P.M. WORD PROCESSING — A HANDS-ON APPROACH. An independent study personal enrichment course designed for those with little or no experience in word processing. WordStar, a popular word processing software package, will be emphasized. Sandra M. Schoultz will instruct the course over six two hour sessions. Contact the Office of Non-Traditional Programs at 745-5305.

SATURDAY

9 A.M. THE THIRD DISTRICT PRE-RETIREMENT PROGRAM will be meeting in the Downing University Center until 1 p.m.

Western sets success record

For the second year in a row, Western Kentucky University set a record of achievement in sponsored program activity.

Grants awarded to the university during the report period exceeded more than $3.2 million, resulting in 122 awards to faculty and staff at Western.

The success rate of 171 proposals submitted to the 122 funded is 71 percent for 1986.

According to Dr. Charles Eison, director of Western's sponsored programs, federally sponsored funds comprise 45 percent of the awards, while state agency funds made up 31 percent; other public agencies provided 17 percent and 6 percent of the total came from private agencies.

Seven of 10 proposals submitted by the university to external agencies are funded, an achievement level far above the national average.

"This is due to the caliber of proposals which are being produced by Western personnel," Eison said. "At a time when the federal budget cuts were still at issue, the ability to secure the project funding in increasing amounts is indeed remarkable."

D.N. 10-12-86

D.N.
10-10-86

Gibbs awarded scholarship

Gary Gibbs, a senior in Western Kentucky University's hotel and motel restaurant management program, was awarded the Kentucky Hotel and Motel Association scholarship at the annual meeting of the KHMA in Lexington.

The scholarships are awarded to encourage individuals to enter the hospitality management field.

Due to stiff competition for the scholarship in 1986, the KHMA awarded two additional scholarships. Thomas Moudry of Leitchfield and a student at Berea College and Kenneth Payne of Transylvania University were both awarded scholarships.

College bulletin available

A schedule bulletin for the spring semester of Western Kentucky University's community college will be out Friday, according to Ronnie Sutton.

Sutton, dean of scholastic development and coordinator of the college, said the bulletin will contain 140 sections of courses.

Advanced registration for next semester, the community college's first, will take place Dec. 8-9 with regular registration the night of Jan. 8. Classes begin Jan. 12.

In the beginning, students will be working toward one of the 18 two-year associate degree programs already available at Western.

"By the fall of 1987, we will have some new associate degree programs in place, and we anticipate developing several new associate degree programs over the next two or three years," Sutton said.

For more information, contact the community college office in Room 316 of Science and Technology Hall.

D.N. 10-16-86

Bowling Green, Ky. — Capitol Arts Center, 416 E. Main. 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday. Portraits by Sarah Gaines Peyton, through Oct. 31.
University Gallery, Fine Arts Center, Western Kentucky University. 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Monday-Friday. Photographs by Anthony Georgieff and John Warren Oakes, Tuesday-Nov. 13. 10-17-86

WESTERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY

L. Y. Lancaster Lecture: Dr. James H. Clark, professor in the department of cell biology at Baylor College of Medicine, will be the speaker at 6 p.m., Thursday, Room 226, Downing University Center on the Bowling Green campus. 10-19-86

WKU team wins

WESTERN Kentucky University's dairy cattle judging team placed first this month in Holstein judging at the National Intercollegiate Dairy Cattle Judging Contest at the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wis. Team members (from left) are: Dr. Jodie Pennington, coach; Margie Baker of Franklin; Craig Givens of Greensburg; Angela Wilcoxson of Horse Cave; Patrick Myatt of Mt. Herman; Brenda Willoughby, assistant coach; and Shawn McPherson of Tompkinsville.

D.V. 10-14-86

Faculty salaries, voice among issues for regent hopefuls

10-14-86

By THOMAS T. ROSS
Daily News Staff Writer

Faculty salaries, a more active representation of the faculty, improving communication on campus and revamping general education requirements are issues that candidates vying for Western Kentucky University's faculty regent post are talking about most.

As of today, three faculty members have filed candidacy papers with the Faculty Senate's Bylaws Committee. They are:

—INCUMBENT Mary Ellen Miller, an English teacher with a bachelor's degree from Berea College and a master's degree from the University of Kentucky. She has nearly completed her doctoral studies at Vanderbilt and is a member of the Faculty Senate.

—DR. Richard Weigel, a history teacher with a bachelor's degree from Dickinson College and master's and doctorate from the University of Delaware. He is a former Faculty Senate chairman and is currently serving as a faculty senator.

—DR. Henry Baughman, associate professor and coordinator of emergency care instruction with a bachelor's and master's degrees from Murray State and doctorate from Indiana University.

The filing deadline is Friday, according to committee chairman Nancy Baird. The election for the three-year post will be conducted Oct. 30 and 31.

"Everybody expects me to say, and I expect myself to say it, too, that the priority the faculty regent has to keep at the forefront is faculty salaries," said Mrs. Miller, who was elected to faculty regent three years ago after Dr. William Buckman resigned late in his term. The regular election was held soon after, and Mrs. Miller was elected to the post again.

"We went so many years with pitiful, inadequate raises and because of that we're considerably poorer, despite the much better raise (5 percent) we received this year," Mrs. Miller said. "But we have to keep working on it. I don't think we'll accomplish anything by just complaining among ourselves."

Mrs. Miller, who abstained from voting on the faculty salary issue in Weigel, who is chairman of the university's General Education Task Force that has been charged with paring down the school's general education requirements and coming up with a core curriculum, said the faculty regent post should be a rotating position so the university and board can benefit from different views and perspectives.

He said he also wants to make the board less "isolated" from faculty views than it has been in the past.

"The board has a tendency not to be terribly interested in what the faculty has to say," Weigel said. "We need to cut down on that isolation and find different ways to look at problems."

Weigel said he would also seek board support in increasing contact between the university faculty and secondary education teachers. "We're faced with the same problems and I think we would do well to work together."

Baughman said his platform includes seeing that the university follows through on its plan to change the course requirements for general education.

"There are a core of general education courses that educators, in general, believe that students should have," Baughman said.

"We have several hundred courses now and we're trying to narrow it down," Baughman said. "But among the core curriculum, I would like to see that a personal health course be required as well as a first-aid course. I'm very much supportive of those courses."

Baughman, who served on the search committee that helped name Dr. James Davis as vice president of academic affairs in the late 1970s (Dr. Robert Haynes now holds that post), said he also wants to help the university attract qualified minority faculty and lobby for capital construction funds to keep facilities up to date.

"I realize I'm only one voice, that I would be there to make suggestions, look at the information available and base my decisions on that," Baughman said. "But I think any competent, tenured faculty member is qualified to do the job. There are no additional qualifications one has to have."

Mrs. Miller, who says she has been a "good ombudsman" between the faculty and the administration, said one of her goals if re-elected is to improve communication between the faculty

University of Kentucky. She has nearly completed her doctoral studies at Vanderbilt and is a member of the Faculty Senate.

—DR. Richard Weigel, a history teacher with a bachelor's degree from Dickinson College and master's and doctorate from the University of Delaware. He is a former Faculty Senate chairman and is currently serving as a faculty senator.

—DR. Henry Baughman, associate professor and coordinator of emergency care instruction with a bachelor's and master's degrees from Murray State and doctorate from Indiana University.

The filing deadline is Friday, according to committee chairman Nancy Baird. The election for the three-year post will be conducted Oct. 30 and 31.

"Everybody expects me to say, and I expect myself to say it, too, that the priority the faculty regent has to keep at the forefront is faculty salaries," said Mrs. Miller, who was elected to faculty regent three years ago after Dr. William Buckman resigned late in his term. The regular election was held soon after, and Mrs. Miller was elected to the post again.

"We went so many years with pitiful, inadequate raises and because of that we're considerably poorer, despite the much better raise (5 percent) we received this year," Mrs. Miller said. "But we have to keep working on it. I don't think we'll accomplish anything by just complaining among ourselves."

Mrs. Miller, who abstained from voting on the faculty salary issue in a show of protest at the May regents' meeting, said the faculty has to continue seeking support from the state General Assembly for better pay and working conditions.

"I think the kind of efforts we had, for instance, with last year's rally for higher education at each state university had a big affect on our legislators," Mrs. Miller said.

"We pleaded our case," she continued. "And if we are to better our own lot, we have to talk to people in power who can do it. And then we have to talk to people here who manage our own budget."

Weigel, however, said Mrs. Miller hasn't represented the faculty in an open and public manner at regents' meetings.

"The faculty regent should be willing to speak out publicly at the regents' meeting and right now we're not getting active and open representation," Weigel said. "At the board meetings she is relatively silent and there's no real discussion of faculty positions."

"I don't believe the faculty regent should be an agitator, but at the same time he or she should see that views are discussed publicly so that people know that their views have been heard."

look at problems."

Weigel said he would also seek board support in increasing contact between the university faculty and secondary education teachers. "We're faced with the same problems and I think we would do well to work together."

Baughman said his platform includes seeing that the university follows through on its plan to change the course requirements for general education.

"There are a core of general education courses that educators, in general, believe that students should have," Baughman said.

"We have several hundred courses now and we're trying to narrow it down," Baughman said. "But among the core curriculum, I would like to see that a personal health course be required as well as a first-aid course. I'm very much supportive of those courses."

Baughman, who served on the search committee that helped name Dr. James Davis as vice president of academic affairs in the late 1970s (Dr. Robert Haynes now holds that post), said he also wants to help the university attract qualified minority faculty and lobby for capital construction funds to keep facilities up to date.

"I realize I'm only one voice, that I would be there to make suggestions, look at the information available and base my decisions on that," Baughman said. "But I think any competent, tenured faculty member is qualified to do the job. There are no additional qualifications one has to have."

Mrs. Miller, who says she has been a "good ombudsman" between the faculty and the administration, said one of her goals if re-elected is to improve communication between the faculties, administration and the regents.

She said she's proud of her record, including her ombudsman role and her work as chairman of the board's International Education Committee.

Through her work there, she has helped initiate a Canadian Studies curriculum at Western this year.

"I have some things still pending," Mrs. Miller said. "I want to continue my work with the international programs. And we have a new president (Dr. Kern Alexander) that I'm just beginning to know. I just feel like I still have something to offer."

Weigel said he is running in the election simply because he wants to give the faculty a choice. "I know it's going to be an uphill battle because I'm running against an incumbent who is very popular. There are a lot of issues to be addressed and I would like to try and help the university in a time of transition and change."

Baughman said he's running for the seat because "that individual has more input of the operation of the university than any other position here. And I think I have a good idea and insight on how the univer-

Coming Attractions

O. N. 11-16-86

EDITOR'S NOTE: Individuals or groups are encouraged to submit items concerning happenings and events in Southcentral Kentucky to the Coming Attractions column, which appears every Thursday. There is no charge and items should be submitted at least two weeks in advance of the event. Deadline is noon Wednesday.

PRODUCTIONS

The Shakespearean comedy "Measure for Measure" is being performed daily through Monday by Western's department of communication and theatre. Curtain time for performances Monday-Saturday are at 8 p.m. and at 3 p.m. on Sunday in the Russell Miller Theatre of the Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center. Season tickets for Western's 1986-87 four-event theatre season are still available at a discount rate of $10.

The American musical classic "Mame" will be performed by The Fountain Square Players at the Capitol Arts Center. Susan Lechner has the title role. Showtimes are 8 p.m. Oct. 23-25 and 3 p.m. Oct. 26. Tickets are $5 and $3 and all seats are reserved. They are available at the Capitol or at the door.

"The Men's Cottage" will be presented by Western's department of communication and theatre Oct. 24-26. The production is part of the 1986 Children's Theatre Series. All performances will be in Theatre 100 of Gordon Wilson Hall at Western. Admission is 50 cents and showtimes are 4 p.m. Friday and at 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

CONCERTS

Recording artist Ray Stevens will perform live in concert at 8 p.m. Oct. 25 at Western Kentucky University's Agriculture Exposition Center. The concert is sponsored by the Bowling Green Junior Woman's Club and WBVR radio. Proceeds will go to Parents for Drug Free Youth. Irlene Mandrell and The Stan Hitchcock Band will also perform. Tickets are $10 for general admission and $20 for reserved seating, which includes admission to a meet the stars party after the show. Tickets are available at Western's ticket office, Snyder's, the Capitol Arts Center, Citizens National Bank, Bowling Green Bank & Trust and American National Bank.

The Kentucky Museum is sponsoring a "Fall History Field Trip" to Shakertown at Pleasant Hill on Saturday. The trip also includes an adventure on a paddlewheel riverboat on the Kentucky River. Departure from the museum parking lot is at 8 a.m. and participants will return home by 10 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling Dianne Watkins at 745-6082. Cost is $25 for members and $30 for non-members.

FILMS, FILMSTRIPS AND STORIES

Capitol Classic Films will present Bette Davis in Robert Aldrich's "Hush, Hush Sweet Charlotte" at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Capitol Arts Center. Admission is $2.

The public library will show children's films at 1:15 p.m. Saturday and 3:45 p.m. Tuesday in the library program room.

The public library's preschool storytime will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the program room.

EXHIBITS

The 1986 Invitational Art Exhibition is on view in the University Gallery of the Western Fine Arts Center through Friday. Gallery hours are 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Eighteen original oil paintings by Bowling Green artist Lola A. Joiner are on display at the Bowling Green Public Library through October.

Two photography exhibitions will open Tuesday in the University Gallery of the Western Fine Arts Center. Photographs by Bulgarian photographer Antony Georgieff and sabbatical works by John Warren Oakes will be on view through Nov. 13.

On view beginning Monday in the Ervin G. Houchens Gallery at the Capitol Arts Center will be "A Selection of Portraits" by Sarah Gaines Payton. A reception will be held 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Nov. 2. The show runs through Nov. 5. Gallery hours are 8:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

The Kentucky Museum on the Western Kentucky University campus is open 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and 1 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

MONDAY

6 P.M. AREA HIGH SCHOOLS HOST COLLEGE NIGHT until 9 p.m. at Downing University Center. Thirty-45 colleges and universities will be represented. Beginning at 7:15 p.m. there will be two 30-minute sessions for students to attend presentations by individuals colleges. From 8:25 p.m. until 9 p.m. parents and students will have an opportunity to talk to the various representatives. For additional information, contact one of the host schools (Warren East, Warren Central and Bowling Green High). Edmonson County and Simpson County will also participate.

TUESDAY

11:45 A.M. 'AFFIRMATIVE ACTION UPDATE' is the topic addressed by Judy Owen, director of career planning and placement, at the Women's Alliance Meeting in the Executive Dining Room of Downing University Center.

WEDNESDAY

6:30 P.M. INTRODUCTION TO THE TECHNICAL ANALYSIS OF THE STOCK MARKET. An independent study personal enrichment course that emphasizes study of charts to determine buying and selling points. Technical Analysis determines the psychological need of the market. Upon completion, participants will be capable of stock-transaction decisions based upon detailed analysis of charts. Participants enrolling in this course should have a basic understanding of the stockmarket. Clifton Mitchell will instruct the course over five sessions of two hours each. For additional information contact the Office of Non-Traditional Programs at 745-5405.

THURSDAY

6 P.M. WKU GRADUATE DR. JAMES H. CLARK will speak at the seventh Lancaster Lecture Series in Downing University Center, room 226. Dr. Clark, professor in the department of cell biology at Baylor College of Medicine, has served as the principal investigator for more than $2.5 million in research grants dealing with "Estrogen Receptors and Reproductive Function" and "Effect of Estrogen on Normal and Abnormal Cell Growth." For additional information contact the Ogden College of Science, Technology and Health at 745-4448.

8 P.M. A POETRY READING by Marvin Bell will be held in the auditorium of Garrett Conference Center. Bell is professor of English at the Writer's Workshop at the University of Iowa and is author of 11 books. He is visiting Western today and Friday. At 3 p.m. today he will conduct a workshop for writers in the Memorial Room of Garrett Conference Center.

FRIDAY

8 A.M. INTERNATIONAL DAY will be held all day in Downing University Center. This year's theme is "The World My Neighbor." For additional information call 745-5807.

1 P.M. DR. JAMES H. CLARK will be the guest speaker for the department of biology graduate seminar in room 224 of Thompson Complex North Wing. Dr. Clark is a professor at Baylor College of Medicine. For additional information call the department of biology at 745-3696.

4 P.M. 'THE MEN'S COTTAGE' by Moses Goldberg will be presented by WKU's Children's Theatre in Gordon Wilson Hall. Admission is 50 cents. The play, written especially for a middle school-junior high school audience, deals with the coming of age rituals of a boy in a primitive culture. The play will also be presented at 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. For additional information contact the department of communication and theatre at 745-3296.

10 A.M. POET MARVIN BELL will meet with individual writers in

This Week at Western

Gentry attends leadership conference

Western Kentucky University Talent Search Participant Cheryl Gentry attended a leadership training conference held recently in Atlanta, Ga.

Gentry was one of 10 students chosen to represent 10,000 Kentucky youth served each year by the Kentucky Trio program -- Talent Search, Upward Bound and Special Services.

The conference included sessions on leadership and the history and purpose of Trio programs nationwide.

Miss Gentry is a senior at Caverna High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Gentry of Horse Cave.

D.N. 10-19-66

(Staff Photo by Mark Workman)

It's legal now!

GOV. MARTHA LAYNE COLLINS signs the deed to the house Chi Omega sorority recently acquired at Western Kentucky University. With Gov. Collins are Rloann Ridley, (seated right,) Mary Jane

Hensley, (standing left,) and members of the Western chapter of Chi Omega. The governor is a former member of Chi Omega.

D.N.
10-20-86

(Staff Photo by Mark Workman)

STUDENTS from area elementary schools try out farm equipment this morning at Western Kentucky University's Ag Expo Center. About 1,600 students were expected to attend Western's "Food for America" program today and Thursday.

Program shows role agriculture plays

D-11.
10-22-56

About 1,600 elementary school students were expected to converge upon Western Kentucky University's farm beginning today in participation of the school's "Food for America" program.

The program, which began through the Future Farmers of America, is an annual event at Western and educates youngsters on the vital role agriculture plays in their lives, according to Pete Dreisbach, an assistant professor of agriculture at Western who is also coordinating the program.

"We're expecting to bring in 800 kids today and another 800 on Thursday," Dreisbach said. "The tour is a follow up of what has been going on the last few days at the area elementary schools."

He said members of FFA at Warren East and Warren Central high schools have presented "Where our Foods Come From" talks at area elementary schools and through the tour of the university farm the students will now be able to apply those classroom discussions through "hands on" participation.

"They'll see a horticultural display at the ag center; we'll have industry people here showing the kids how bread is made and how flour is made," Dreisbach said. "We'll show them step-by-step how a cheeseburger is made, from where the beef to make the patty comes from, where the wheat to make the bun comes from, where the cucumber to make the pickles comes from, where the tomato and lettuce come from, and so on."

Dreisbach said the students, who include first- and fourth-graders, will view a short film about "how food comes from the farm to you."

"We picked first- and fourth-graders to participate because it gives us an opportunity to talk to the same students twice before they leave elementary school," Dreisbach said.

He said the students will get a chance to look at and sit in a wide range of farm implements on exhibit at the ag center as well as view several species of livestock, including sheep, goats, chickens, dairy cows, dairy calves and beef cattle. He said the students will also have an opportunity to see a sow and her piglets.

The students will tour the university farm where a plot of wheat has just been planted, Dreisbach said.

"We'll explain to them the workings of a farm," he said. "And they will also get a chance to see the new Natural Resource Study Center, which is a cooperative project between us and the Tennessee Valley Authority. We'll talk about pond ecology and they'll also get to see our wildlife feeding plots. They'll be able to see that we do plant with wildlife in mind."

The Bowling Green Junior Woman's Club

and the Present . . .

RAY STEVENS

Also Featuring

IRLENE MANDRELL

and The Stan Hitchcock Band

SATURDAY, OCT. 25—8:00 P.M.

Western Kentucky Agricultural Center

TICKETS—$10 RESERVED SEATS—$20

(Includes "Meet The Stars" Reception)

For Tickets: Send Check or Money Order to:

P.O. Box 357, Bowling Green, Ky. 42101

Tickets also available at these locations:

American National Bank, Citizens National Bank, Snyder's
Bowling Green Bank, WKU Ticket Office, Capitol Arts Center

Proceeds to Benefit Parents for Drug Free Youth

D.K.
10-22-84

one not in le y

O.N. 10-23-86

EDITOR'S NOTE: Individuals or groups are encouraged to submit items concerning happenings and events in Southcentral Kentucky to the Coming Attractions column, which appears every Thursday. There is no charge and items should be submitted at least two weeks in advance of the event. Deadline is noon Wednesday.

CONCERTS

Recording artist Ray Stevens will perform live in concert at 8 p.m. Saturday at Western Kentucky University's Agriculture Exposition Center. The concert is sponsored by the Bowling Green Junior Woman's Club and WBVR radio. Proceeds will go to Parents for Drug Free Youth. Iriene Mandrell and The Stan Hitchcock Band will also perform. Tickets are $10 for general admission and $20 for reserved seating, which includes admission to a meet the stars party after the show. Tickets are available at Western's ticket office, Snyder's, the Capitol Arts Center, Citizens National Bank, Bowling Green Bank & Trust and American National Bank.

The department of music at Western Kentucky University will open the Edward J. Pease Memorial Faculty Concert Series at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Van Meter Auditorium. Pianist Sylvia Kersenbaum will perform an all-Liszt recital. Admission is $3 at the door or $15 for entire series. Call 745-3751 for added details.

The first Cumberland Coffee Concert will be presented at 11 a.m. Oct. 30 at the Capitol Arts Center. Featured trumpet soloist will be Gary Dilworth of the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra and Western's music faculty. Program includes Alexander Goedicke's Concert Etude, Sonata by Halsey Stevens, Concert by J.B.G. Neruda and Animal Ditties with music by Anthony Plog and words by Ogden Nash. Tickets are $3.50 and are available at the door.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Little ghosts and goblins, ages 12 and under, are invited to "trick or treat" 5 p.m.-7 p.m. Oct. 31 in the Greenwood Mall.

A Halloween Skate Party, sponsored by The Fraternal Order of Police and Greenwood Skate Center, will be held 7 p.m.-10 p.m. Oct. 30 at the center. Admission is free. Call 843-3394 for added details.

Elementary age children are invited to listen to stories, play games and have treats at a Halloween Party at the public library. Please wear costumes and program begins at 7 p.m. in the program room.

The third annual Bowling Green-Warren County Hotel-Motel Association and Restaurant Association will present "Big Night Monte Carlo" at 7 p.m. Nov. 5 at the Greenwood Executive Inn. Games, prizes and food from Bowling Green's finest restaurants will be featured. For ticket information, call 781-3460 or 782-0800.

The public library's "Tots and Moms Activity Time" will meet at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the program room.

PRODUCTIONS

The American musical classic "Mame" will be performed by The Fountain Square Players at the Capitol Arts Center. Susan Lechner has the title role. Showtimes are 8 p.m. today-Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $5 and $3 and all seats are reserved. They are available at the Capitol or at the door.

"The Men's Cottage" will be presented by Western's department of communication and theatre Friday-Sunday. The production is part of the 1986 Children's Theatre Series. All performances will be in Theatre 100 of Gordon Wilson Hall at Western. Admission is 50 cents and showtimes are 4 p.m. Friday and at 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Auditions for "Once Upon a Christmas" will be conducted at 7 p.m. Nov. 3-4 at the Capitol Arts Center. The Fountain Square Players' production will be presented Dec. 18-21 with Jeff Moore directing.

FILMS, FILMSTRIPS AND STORIES

The public library will show children's films at 1:15 p.m. Saturday and 3:45 p.m. Tuesday in the library program room.

The public library's preschool storytime will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the program room. Children are invited to wear Halloween costumes.

EXHIBITS

An exhibit of more than 60 Ivan Wilson paintings will open Tuesday at the Kentucky Museum. A reception will be held Nov. 1 honoring the late watercolorist who was a member of Western's art faculty for 39 years. John Warren Oakes, associate professor of art at Western and a student of Wilson, will be the exhibit's guest curator. The museum, located Western's campus is open 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and 1 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Eighteen original oil paintings by Bowling Green artist Lola A. Joiner are on display at the Bowling Green Public Library through October.

Two photography exhibitions are on display in the University Gallery of Western's Fine Arts Center. Photographs by Bulgarian photographer Antony Georgieff and sabbatical works by John Warren Oakes are on view through Nov. 13. Gallery hours are 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

On view in the Ervin G. Houchens Gallery at the Capitol Arts Center is "A Selection of Portraits" by Sarah Gaines Payton. A reception will be held 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Nov. 2. The show runs through Nov. 5. Gallery hours are 8:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

The Eloise B. Houchens Center is open to the public Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. or other times by appointment. Call 842-6761 for more information.

Concert to air Sunday

The opening concert of the Bowling Green-Western Symphony Orchestra's 1986-87 season will be broadcast at 1 p.m. Sunday by Western Kentucky University's public radio service (WKYU and WDCL).

The service recorded the concert on Oct. 11 at Van Meter Auditorium with Gary Dilworth conducting the orchestra.

Joining Dilworth and the 51-member ensemble was noted hornist Michael Hatfield in a performance of the Richard Strauss Concerto for Horn, opus 11.

The concert opens with the sprightly "Russlan and Ludmilla" Overture by Glinka. The strings are featured in the Elegy by Elgar.

D. N. 10-27-86

British study tour planned

An opportunity to study British theater, international business, music and nursing/health education in London is being offered to students and adults by the Cooperative Center for Study in Britain.

The courses provide three hours of college credit, and adults may participate on an audit or continuing education non-credit basis.

Each course provides field trips such as back-stage visits to theatres, concert halls, museums, Lloyds of London, Bank of England, London Stock Exchange, hospitals, hospices and health clinics.

Other excursions have been planned to Stratford-upon-Avon, Windsor Castle, Canterbury and tours of the city.

The cost of the study tour is $1,245 and includes air transportation and hotel accommodations.

If interested, contact the Cooperative Center for Study in Britain at the Office of International Programs at Western Kentucky University or call 745-5070.

D. N. 10-26-86

Kentucky Museum's learning series to begin

The Kentucky Museum's Fall 1986 Lunchtime Learning Series will feature "A Local History Potpourri."

The five-part series, coordinated by Dr. Carol Crowe-Carraco of Western Kentucky University's history department, begins Tuesday and continues each Tuesday through Nov. 25.

The one-hour sessions all begin at 11:45 a.m. in the Kentucky Building on campus.

On Tuesday, the first program in the series will feature Civil War history. Vicki L. Slocum will present "The Homefront: Bowling Green-Warren County Women and the Civil War," followed by Susan Lyons Hughes' presentation on "Lucinda Garrard: One Woman's Role in the Civil War."

Ms. Slocum, a local historian, is employed in the department of psychology at Western. Her presentation will deal with the effects of the Civil War on the "women who stayed behind."

Ms. Hughes, a Bowling Green native, is the director of junior historians of the Kentucky Historical Society in Frankfort.

All the programs are free. Participants may bring a lunch.

Higher education advocates say their job isn't done, vow to continue lobbying

10-25-86
By RICHARD WILSON
Staff Writer C.J.

LEXINGTON, Ky. — A citizens' group that helped higher education win major financial support from the 1986 General Assembly decided yesterday that it needs to send a similar message in 1988.

Amidst accolades for its efforts and strong urging by state university presidents not to disband, the Kentucky Advocates for Higher Education Inc. decided to continue stressing the need for more money for the state's universities.

The stroking was unnecessary because the board of directors of the private, non-profit corporation of business and professional leaders obviously was not considering going out of business.

"If we choose to disband, we'd be sending the signal we believe the job is done. The signal we need to send is that there's a whole lot more to be done," said director Jim Wiseman, executive vice president of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce.

Revising an old political axiom, former state Sen. Walter Baker of Glasgow, another director, said, "The wheel that doesn't squeak is the one that doesn't get the grease."

Lawmakers, he said, respond to pressure. "If this type of force is not there, I don't think you'll see that (kind of) response in the future."

The group spearheaded a massive, grassroots lobbying campaign to outline the universities' financial problems before and during the 1986 legislative session.

Besides a series of regional rallies, the group sponsored a statewide pep rally for higher education Feb. 5 in Frankfort that drew about 5,000 supporters.

As several educators noted at the panel's annual meeting yesterday, the group's efforts were instrumental in the schools' winning a record budget increase from lawmakers.

Gary Cox, acting executive director of the state Council on Higher Education, noted that the advocates captured the attention of the Collins administration. The legislature's 1986-88 appropriation for higher edu-

See HIGHER
PAGE 3, col. 1, this section

Higher education backers vow to continue lobbying

Continued from Page B 1
O.D. 10-25-86

citizen leadership for education improvements.

Besides its impact on the funding issue, he said, the panel's activities provoked one other result.

Before yesterday's decision, Eastern Kentucky University President Hanly Funderburk noted that higher education's role in the state was addressed before the legislative session by the council and a legislative panel.

"You helped provide the climate which made possible the unity among these institutions which I think was unprecedented in the time I've been here," said Singletary, UK's president since 1969.

"But you added credibility to the whole thing. I'm begging you, stay with us. We need you," he said.

Robert Bell, of Lexington, re-elected chairman of the advocates yesterday, said the group's tactics may have to change for the 1988 General Assembly. But its first priority, he said, will be to recruit 25,000 supporters.

Kudos also came from other campus chiefs.

Despite higher education's victory in this year's session, Bell, a retired Ashland Oil vice president, said the panel's agenda is unfinished.

Kern Alexander, Western Kentucky University's president since January, said he was amazed to find the business community leading the effort for better education in Kentucky.

Since its 1985 inception, the advocate group's three goals have been "full funding" for the universities, money for campus "centers for excellence" and endowed chairs and better funding for student financial aid.

But Kentucky will not shed its low ranking of financial support for schools and colleges if improvements do not continue, Alexander said.

"We've tasted the wine now," Bell said. "It's going to be hard to get us away from the cup."

"We urgently request that you not give up the fight at this point," he said.

With promises of help by the universities, he said, the panel and its supporters will "move on, not just willingly, but aggressively."

Acting Morehead State University President A. D. Albright said he could not foresee "any group that's interested in the furtherance of education in the state discontinuing its efforts."

The group's directors yesterday endorsed the proposed amendment to the state constitution for appointment of the state superintendent of public instruction. The superintendent is now elected to a four-year term.

Otis Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky, said the advocates had joined the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence in giving the state an informed, concerned and influential

NATIONAL HIGHER EDUCATION WEEK

Western Kentucky University celebrates National Higher Education this week, an annual celebration designed to focus public and media attention on the contribution colleges, universities and their graduates have made to society.

Western combines Homecoming 1986 activities with the opening of a new Canadian Studies program in celebration of Higher Education Week and invites visitors to the campus to participate in the university's many activities of the week.

MONDAY

10 A.M. "OH CANADA! OH KENTUCKY!" Canadian Consul General Sidney Harris, Kentucky native Thomas Niles, the U.S. ambassador to Canada, and Gov. Martha Layne Collins will open a week-long celebration of WKU's Canadian Studies program and Homecoming week. Room 226 of the Downing University Center.

2 P.M. PLENARY SESSION about "Canadian-U.S. Relations" "Canadian Studies at WKU" and a slide presentation about "Canadian-American Companies in Kentucky" will be held in room 305 of Downing University Center. Ambassador Thomas Niles, Canadian Consulate Norman London and WKU associate professor of English Mary Ellen Miller will speak.

8 P.M. "THE MUSIC CONNECTION," an evening of Kentucky and Canadian music, will include performances by Canadian Folksinger Connie Kaldor and Russellville's deGraffenreid Chorale.

TUESDAY

8 A.M. KARST CONFERENCE will be held today-Thursday in the Garrett Conference Center. University professors, scientists, consultants and government agency personnel concerned with water problems in the Karst Region will attend Second International Conference hosted by Western Kentucky University and sponsored by the Well Water Association.

9 A.M. DISCUSSIONS about Canadian-U.S. Business Relations will be held by corporate executives who are currently or have worked in both Canada and the U.S. Downing University Center room 305. Call 745-5721.

8 P.M. FACULTY CONCERT SERIES opens with a piano recital by Sylvia Kersenbaum, professor of music at Western in Van Meter Auditorium. An all-Liszt program to be repeated Nov. 8 as part of a program of the American Liszt Society in Miami, Fla. Tickets are $3 at the door or $15 for the entire series. Call 745-3751.

WEDNESDAY

9 A.M. "CANADIAN FILMS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE" will be presented at Downing University Center

Theatre for area elementary and junior high school students. Call 745-5721.

3:30 P.M. "NATIVE CULTURE: CANADIAN AND KENTUCKIAN" will be the topic discussed by John Ed Pearce, columnist with the Louisville Courier-Journal and David Anido, department of external affairs. Call 745-5721.

8 P.M. "HILLOWEEN," an annual campus Halloween celebration will be held at Downing University Center. There is no admission charge.

THURSDAY

8 A.M. "FUN DAY," leading into Homecoming Weekend. Film festival continues in the Downing University Center Theatre.

7 P.M. BIG RED'S ROAR, an event for all ages, features the Big Red Band, the football team and coaches, the crowning of the 1986 Homecoming Queen, a fireworks display, Big Red and a pep rally in E.A. Diddle Arena.

FRIDAY

1 P.M. DR. J.G. RODRIQUEZ of the University of Kentucky will speak at the department of biology's graduate seminar in Thompson Complex North Wing, room 224.

4:30 P.M. THE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY CLUB RECEPTION will honor 1936 WKU graduates in the Executive Room of Garrett Conference Center until 6 p.m.

8:30 P.M. THE ALUMNI BANQUET will be held in Garrett Conference Center. Call the Alumni Association for reservations or additional information at 745-4395.

8 P.M. OPERA THEATRE and the WKU department of music present "Cox and Box" and "Trial by Jury" in the Recital Hall of the Ivan Wilson Center for Fine Arts. No admission charge. Call 745-3751.

9 P.M. ALUMNI HOMECOMING DANCE will be held at the Greenwood Executive Inn in Bowling Green until midnight, featuring music by the Buzzy Orange Band.

SATURDAY

9 A.M. IVAN WILSON WATER-COLOR EXHIBIT opens featuring John Warren Oakes, guest curator at the Kentucky Museum. A reception will be held at 5:30 p.m. For more information, 745-2592.

9:30 A.M. NATIONAL ALUMNI RECEPTION will be held at the Craig Alumni Center. The Golden Anniversary Class of 1936 will be special guests at the reception.

10:30 A.M. HOMECOMING PARADE. Through downtown Bowling Green, terminating at the campus.

10:30 A.M. JOIN FRIENDS FOR LUNCH at the "Barbecue Under the Big Top," which will be held in a tent near the Downing Center. Lunch is $4 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and under. Reservations can be obtained by calling the Alumni Center at 745-4395.

1 P.M. HILLTOPPERS TAKE ON division 1-AA National Champion Georgia Southern at L.T. Smith Stadium. After the football game the Red-White men's basketball intrasquad scrimmage will be held in Diddle Arena. Admission to the basketball game is free.

For other information regarding Homecoming Activities contact the WKU Office of Alumni Affairs at 745-4395. For additional information about the Canadian Studies Program at Western call Mary Ellen Miller at 745-5721.

D. U. This Week
10-26-86
at Western about Japan than about Canada

Why are Canadians so inscrutable?

12-26-86

By KATRINA LARSEN
Daily News Women's Editor
Canada.

It's up there, and it's big. And if you're like most of Americans, that's about all you know about it. You think of it in images of snowy mountains, mounties and sled dogs.

They do still have snow, sled dogs and mounted police in Canada — but they also have tremendous natural resources, including their people.

Canada, not Japan, is our number one trading partner.

If you play Trivial Pursuit, remember that. The question is probably in there because Trivial Pursuit was developed by Canadians.

This coming week, Western Kentucky University will celebrate our relationship with Canada by announcing the beginning of the first Canadian Studies program in Kentucky.

The first course of what will eventually be a certificate program is scheduled for the spring semester.

It makes sense. We speak the same language; we can drive across the border without passports. It's much easier to do business with Canada than it is to do business with Japan. And hundreds of American corporations do it every day.

"In Kentucky alone," said Mary Ellen Miller, organizer of the program, "16 industries do business with Canada. We aren't developing this program in a vacuum: businesses are very interested in graduates who have a certificate in Japan is the wheel we oil. Canada's economy is similar to our own, their workforce is paid wages similar to ours, so their product prices don't reflect cheaper labor costs.

"The U.S. is our greatest friend, neighbor and ally...the fact of the matter is," Prime Minister Brian Mulroney said recently, "that if I were president, I would wake up every morning and thank God for Canada. And say, what can I do for Canada?"

The point is well taken: imagine what it would cost to patrol our border if we were on hostile terms. Imagine a Great Wall of Minnesota, erected somewhere north of Lake Wobegone, and defended at great expense begrudged the North Dakotans by the southern Floridians.

What Western Kentucky University can do for Canada began Friday (International Day on campus) with the distribution of material on Canada from a booth in Downing University Center.

Monday, in room 226 of the Center, Canadian Consul General Sydney Harris, Kentucky native Thomas Niles, our ambassador to Canada, and Gov. Martha Layne Collins will open the celebration at 10 a.m.

"The governor may not get here until Tuesday, but she said she was definitely coming, and unless something comes up, we expect her Monday. If she can't get here Monday, she'll send her representative." Mrs. Miller said.

President Kern Alexander will be there to accept Consul Harris' presentation of Canadian resource

DID YOU KNOW that Rich Little was Canadian? While he was in town for the Gala, he took time to pose with Ann Robson, a member of the WKU Canadian Studies steering committee. Little and Mrs. Robson are both from Ottawa, where they knew each other before he began his career as an entertainer — and she married into an international corporation that sent her husband to Russellville.

ward, Mrs. Miller will speak on Canadian studies at Western.

Monday evening there will be a concert of Canadian and Kentuckian music at 8 p.m. in Downing Theater. The deGraffenreid Chorale from Russellville will perform the music of Stephen Foster, and Canadian folksinger Connie Kaldor be speakers. Ronald Ralph, president and CEO of Brown-Forman, and Fred Durdan, vice president of Alcan Rolled Products in Cleveland, Ohio, will speak on corporate culture. Sessions will last about an hour, and will include time for questions from the audience.

Canada. It's up there, and it's big. And if you're like most of Americans, that's about all you know about it. You think of it in images of snowy mountains, mounties and sled dogs.

They do still have snow, sled dogs and mounted police in Canada — but they also have tremendous natural resources, including their people.

Canada, not Japan, is our number one trading partner.

If you play Trivial Pursuit, remember that. The question is probably in there because Trivial Pursuit was developed by Canadians.

This coming week, Western Kentucky University will celebrate our relationship with Canada by announcing the beginning of the first Canadian Studies program in Kentucky.

The first course of what will eventually be a certificate program is scheduled for the spring semester.

It makes sense. We speak the same language; we can drive across the border without passports. It's much easier to do business with Canada than it is to do business with Japan. And hundreds of American corporations do it every day.

"In Kentucky alone," said Mary Ellen Miller, organizer of the program, "16 industries do business with Canada. We aren't developing this program in a vacuum: businesses are very interested in graduates who have a certificate in Canadian Studies along with their degree. Duke University's program has been so successful that we're going to copy it shamelessly — because it works. It makes our degrees more marketable."

The source of our ignorance of Canada probably lies in our good relations. This is also known as the irony of the squeaking wheel. Japan gives us problems by being very competitive in our markets, so similar to ours, so their product prices don't reflect cheaper labor costs.

"The U.S. is our greatest friend, neighbor and ally...the fact of the matter is," Prime Minister Brian Mulroney said recently, "that if I were president, I would wake up every morning and thank God for Canada. And say, what can I do for Canada?"

The point is well taken: imagine what it would cost to patrol our border if we were on hostile terms. Imagine a Great Wall of Minnesota, erected somewhere north of Lake Wobegone, and defended at great expense begrudged the North Dakotans by the southern Floridians.

What Western Kentucky University can do for Canada began Friday (International Day on campus) with the distribution of material on Canada from a booth in Downing University Center.

Monday, in room 226 of the Center, Canadian Consul General Sydney Harris, Kentucky native Thomas Niles, our ambassador to Canada, and Gov. Martha Layne Collins will open the celebration at 10 a.m.

"The governor may not get here until Tuesday, but she said she was definitely coming, and unless something comes up, we expect her Monday. If she can't get here Monday, she'll send her representative," Mrs. Miller said.

President Kern Alexander will be there to accept Consul Harris' presentation of Canadian resource materials to the University.

Ashland Oil's slide presentation, "Kentucky," will be shown at 11:30 and throughout the celebration on the mezzanine of Downing Center.

At 2 p.m., Ambassador Niles will speak on Canadian-American relations, and Dr. Norman London of the Canadian Embassy in Washington will speak on Canadian studies on U.S. campuses. Afterward, Mrs. Miller will speak on Canadian studies at Western.

DID YOU KNOW that Rich Little was Canadian? While he was in town for the Gala, he took time to pose with Ann Robson, a member of the WKU Canadian Studies steering committee. Little and Mrs. Robson are both from Ottawa, where they knew each other before he began his career as an entertainer — and she married into an international corporation that sent her husband to Russellville.

Monday evening there will be a concert of Canadian and Kentuckian music at 8 p.m. in Downing Theater. The deGraffenreid Chorale from Russellville will perform the music of Stephen Foster, and Canadian folksinger Connie Kaldor will follow.

"That's the only thing all weekend that's going to cost anything," said Mrs. Miller. "And it's only $2."

Tuesday at 9 a.m. discussions of corporate relations with Canada will begin in room 305 of Downing Center. Lee Goetz, plant manager of Alcan Canada's Kingston facility, and Bruce Robson, plant manager of Logan Aluminum, will be speakers. Ronald Ralph, president and CEO of Brown-Forman, and Fred Durdan, vice president of Alcan Rolled Products in Cleveland, Ohio, will speak on corporate culture. Sessions will last about an hour, and will include time for questions from the audience.

Wednesday, John Ed Pearce of the Louisville Courier-Journal, will speak on native culture in Kentucky at 3:30 p.m. in Downing Center. A representative from the Canadian Department of External Affairs will be there to give the view from other side.

Canadian films for young people, including "The Grey Fox" and "Anne of Green Gables," will be shown Wednesday and Thursday in Downing Theater.

For further information on the activities, call 745-5721.

Western Kentucky University Presenteth

A Christmas Madrigal Feast

A Christmas Madrigal Feast is becoming a highlight of the Christmas season for Bowling Green.

The Ballroom of Garrett Conference Center will be festive with heraldic banners and the brilliant processional of madrigal singers and dancers, clothed in reproductions of the beautiful garments of the Renaissance.

The processional, the huge platter with the boar's head, the sparkling wassail bowl, the madrigal singers, strolling minstrels, and a medieval play—all are reminiscent of the pageantry of the sixteenth century. The feast of hot roast beef, chicken, ribs, salad, vegetables and dessert, served buffet style, will satisfy the most discriminating palate.

December 4, 5, 6, 7, 1986 • 7 p.m.
Garrett Conference Center Ballroom

Tickets: $13.50, available November 10 at the Diddle Arena Ticket Office, 745-5222

For more information, call 745-3751. D.N.

WESTERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY

Homecoming activities: The theme for this year's homecoming, tomorrow through Saturday, is "Oh Canada! Get to Know Your Neighbors Better." Some events include: Big Red's Roar in E. A. Diddle Arena, featuring entertainment and a pep rally, 7 p.m. Thursday; Ronnie Milsap in concert at Diddle Arena, 8 p.m. Friday; the 35th Annual College Heights Herald Homecoming breakfast, Garrett Conference Center Ballroom, 8 a.m. Saturday; Homecoming Parade, 10:30 a.m. Saturday; "The Barbecue under the Big Top," in a tent near Downing Center, 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Lunch is $4 for adults, $2.50 for children 12 and under. Also, the Black Alumni reception, 8 p.m.-midnight Saturday, Michael's Pub on 31-W By-pass. Call Alumni Affairs at (502) 745-4395. C. J. 10-26-86

(Staff Photo by James Morris)

Presentation

DR. SYDNEY G. HARRIS, Canadian consul general, presents a three-volume Canadian Encyclopedia to Western Kentucky University President Kern Alexander this morning. The presentation marked the inauguration of the university's Canadian Studies program.

D.W. 10-37-52

Presentation

DR. SYDNEY G. HARRIS, Canadian consul general, presents a three-volume Canadian Encyclopedia to Western Kentucky University President Kern Alexander and this inaugurates the program.

Canadian consul general helps initia

10-17-56
By BRIGGS ADAMS
Daily News Staff Writer

Western Kentucky University became a bit more cosmopolitan today at the inauguration of its Canadian Studies program.

A presentation of Canadian textbooks by Dr. Sydney G. Harris, Canadian consul general, to Western's President Kern Alexander, marked the official beginning of the program, designed to familiarize Western's students with Canada's past and present.

"We welcome your establishing Canadian studies and we wish you very well," Harris told Alexander.

Alexander said he hopes the program will reduce American ignorance of Canada.

"Dr. Harris, it is true that we don't know much about Canada ...," Alexander said. "I think many of us have not paid enough attention to Canada.... We're fortunate to have Canada as our good neighbor to the north to mutually support each other."

Alexander said the program will likely make Western's students "more cosmopolitan and more internationally oriented."

Among those who observed the presentation were Dr. Norman London from the Canadian Embassy in Washington and Thomas Niles, U.S. ambassador to Canada.

"The Canada-United States relationship is probably the most important relationship each of the countries has," London said, pointing out that the trade between the two countries is the largest of such relationships that both possess.

Niles agreed and added, "The more we know about Canada, I think the better the relationship will be."

According to London, about 500

American universities and colleges offer at least one course in Canadian studies, with about 50 offering majors, minors or certificates in that course of study of the courses were initiated the past eight-nine years, he said. "The reason you're seeing a growth spurt in the past decade is because both countries are becoming aware of the intertwining of the countries in the economy ... but in energy concerns and trade concerns," London said.

Beginning next semester Western will add "Introduct

(Staff Photo by James Morris)

Presentation

R. SYDNEY G. HARRIS, Canadian consul general, presents a three-volume Canadian Encyclopedia to Western Kentucky University President Kern Alexander this morning.

The presentation marked the inauguration of the university's Canadian Studies program.

D.V. 10-27-66

Consul general helps initiate WKU program

The presentation were Dr. Norman London from the Canadian Embassy in Washington and Thomas S. U.S. ambassador to Canada.

"The Canada-United States relationship is probably the most important relationship each of the countries has," London said, pointing out that the trade between the countries is the largest of such relationships that both possess.

London agreed and added, "The more we know about Canada, the better the relationship will be."

According to London, about 500

American universities and colleges offer at least one course in Canadian studies, with about 50 schools offering majors, minors or certificates in that course of study. Most of the courses were initiated within the past eight-nine years, he said.

"The reason you're seeing a growth spurt in the past decade ... is because both countries are becoming aware of the the intertwining of the countries in not only the economy ... but in energy concerns and trade concerns," London said.

Beginning next semester, Western will add "Introduction to Canadian Studies," a three-credit, general education course, to its curriculum.

To mark the course's inauguration, Western has proclaimed this week as "Oh Canada! Oh Kentucky" week and has planned several commemorative events.

At 2 p.m. today in the Downing University Center, Niles was scheduled to lecture about "Canada-U.S. Relations," while London was to deliver a speech about "Canadian Studies on U.S. Campuses," and Canadian Studies steering committee First Chair

Mary Ellen Miller was to lecture about "Canadian Studies at Western."

A discussion on "Similarities and Differences in the Business Climate," featuring Canadian and Kentucky business leaders is scheduled at 9 a.m. Tuesday in Room 305 of the Downing University Center.

John Ed Pearce, a columnist for Louisville Courier-Journal's Magazine, will speak on "Native Culture: Canadian and Kentuckian" at 3:30 p.m. in the Downing University Theater.

Letter to the D-N editor

D.N. 10-28-86

Symphony of thanks

Editor, Daily News:

On behalf of the Board of Directors of the Bowling Green Western Symphony we wish to thank the people of this area for their support through the recent Book Fair. The response, both in contributions of more than 20,000 books and in book purchases, far exceeded our fondest dreams.

Joe Tinsley of the Bowling Green Mall allowed us the use of a vacant store for two months; James Miles of "Books & Buttons" offered advice and tables; the Capitol Arts Staff provided individual office services; Fairview Liquors provided boxes and more boxes; while Mitchell Leichhardt of Leichhardt Nurseries turned the site of the sale into a place of beauty with his decorations for the delightful preview party planned by Casey Lester. K. Darby & Sons Music Store of Greenwood Mall provided a keyboard for our talented musicians Dwight Pounds, Pam Garrett, Steve Bruns and Peggy Bruns who entertained at the Preview Party. Members of Delta Omnicon Music Sorority staffed the sale and the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity graciously provided strong manpower for clean-up.

Many of the media were especially helpful in publicizing the Book Fair. Katrina Larson of the Daily News made three visits to the Book Fair site, ran articles and photographs. Joe Marshall of the Vine, Kyda West of the Country Peddler were generous in their coverage. WKYU, WBGN, WBVR, WLBj and WDNS-WKCT aired regular public service announcements. WBKO, Storer Cable and Western's Channel 4 ETV gave television coverage.

Snyder's in Greenwood Mall, the Kentucky Museum, Stage II and the Downing Center collected books for three months. Each week Nancy Priest, Park Priest and Kelley

Willis moved mountains of printed matter which was sorted for hours by Bob and Martha Haynes, John and Nancy Parker, Chris and Wayne Hobbs and Patsy and Jay Sloan.

The Book Fair provided a unique opportunity for people to support the BG-Western Symphony at the same time they were cleaning out their book shelves and discovering intriguing book bargains. It was a three-pronged success making the Symphony nearly $3,000.

Please continue to support the symphony by attending the Messiah Sing-In on Nov. 28 at the Capitol and getting a few more book bargains Oct. 25-26 at Greenwood Mall's Charity Bazaar.

Martha Haynes
Betty Pease
Mary Frances Willock
The Book Fair
Committee

Dilworth featured at coffee concert

D.N. 10-28-86

The first Cumberland Coffee Concert will be presented Thursday at the Capitol Arts Center. Coffee and pastries will be served at 10:45 a.m. and the concert begins at 11 a.m.

The featured soloist will be Gary Dilworth on trumpet. He is principal trumpet of the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra and a member of the music faculty at Western Kentucky University.

As a soloist, Dilworth has performed throughout the United States and annually tours several European countries. He also served as music director of the Bowling Green-Western Symphony Orchestra.

The concert's program includes Alexander Goedicke's Concert Etude, Sonata by Halsey Stevens, Concert by J.B.G. Neruda and Animal Ditties with music by Anthony Plog and words by Ogden Nash.

Tickets are $3.50 and are available at the door or by calling 782-ARTS. A portion of the admission will go to the Department of Music Scholarship Fund at Western.

(Staff Photo by Kim Swift)

Boy's Club gets a large check

BOY'S CLUB Directors Stan England and Dee Gibson collected this check recently from Chi Omega representatives Ann Cain and Tara Wassom at the sorority's new house at Western Kentucky University. The $3,400 donation was the net result of Chi Omega's Golf Classic. D-N-10-28-86

International Day planned at WKU

Western Kentucky University will help regional high school foreign language students get a taste of international life Friday through the university's third annual International Day.

On that day — the 41st anniversary of the United Nations General Assembly — high school and college students will meet foreign exchange students who are attending area high schools and international students who are attending Western.

The festivities begin at 10 a.m. at the Downing University Center. The festivities also include a professional performance by Japanese Kabuki dancer, Kimiko Gunji, at 1 p.m. in Downing's theatre. There is no admission charge.

Ms. Gunji, a native of Japan currently teaching at the University of Illinois, will also present a slide show on Japanese art at 3 p.m. in room 305 of Downing. D. V. 10-17-68

WKU dean recruiting educators to help train teachers in China

(C.) Associated Press 10-17-68
BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — A Western Kentucky University dean is asking colleges with strong education programs to share their knowledge with a Chinese province that needs help in training its teachers. J. T. Sandefur, dean of Western's College of Education and Behavioral Sciences, said 11 schools, including Murray State University and Indiana State University have accepted. No more than 20 will be chosen to work with Liaoning province, which has 37 million people and just 13 teacher-training schools. Liaoning is in the northeastern region of China formerly known as Manchuria. "With some exceptions, the teachers in Liaoning's primary and middle schools have limited training," Sandefur said. "Some people who teach there are just literate," he said. "Practically none of them have what we would consider the equivalent of a four-year degree." Sandefur agreed to organize a U.S. consortium to provide advice in such matters as school management and curriculum during an Aug. 12-26 trip to China.

He decided to invite other colleges to participate because the number of teachers needed in the huge province would be too much for one or two colleges to handle.

Sandefur said Liaoning' largest city, Shenyang, has 6 million people and is the "Chicago of China," with huge industrial plants. It is less than 200 miles from North Korea.

Despite China's recent emphasis on economic growth, the nation of more than 1 billion still suffers from the ouster of teachers and school administrators during the 1965-68 Cultural Revolution, Sandefur said.

Then last year, the government decided to require nine years of basic schooling instead of six.

"One of their objectives is to have an adequate cadre of teachers. That's where they need help," Sandefur said. "We want people who will be trainers of teachers."

He said the Chinese are particularly interested in instructors to teach English as a second language.

The other schools that have agreed to help are Glassboro State College and William Paterson College in New Jersey; Marshall University in West Virginia; the University of Akron in Ohio; the University of Arkansas at Little Rock; Mississippi State University; the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater; Emporia State University in Kansas; and Tennessee Technological University.

Other schools, including Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State universities, were invited about a week ago, but have not responded, he said.

Sandefur said the consortium plans to meet on WKU's campus in mid-April with 10 officials of Liaoning province. The consortium has also been invited to conduct two two-week institutes in Liaoning.

WKU program ranked 16th

16-2-9-86
Results of a study by Texas A&M University show Western Kentucky University ranks 16th among the top 50 teacher education schools in the country identified as "producers of new knowledge in teacher education."

The study was conducted by Dr. Jon J. Denton of Texas A&M's instructional research laboratory.

The study was an attempt to determine the productivity of colleges of education in the generation of new knowledge as determined by articles in teacher education journals, and presentations at teacher education association meetings including the Association of Teacher Education, the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education and the American Educational Research Association.

"This interest is based, in part, on the general belief that these ratings influence the recruitment of graduate students and faculty, the employment opportunities for graduates, budgetary justification for programs and the availability of external funding from governmental and private sources," Denton said.

Dr. J. T. Sandefur, dean of Western's College of Education and Behavioral Sciences, noted the incidence of major state universities in the list and the absence of non-doctoral granting regional institutions.

"Our competition with these major research universities should be a matter of pride for each of us," Sandefur said.

The entire study appears in the September-October issue of the Journal of Teacher Education.

Membership drive to begin Sunday

The annual membership drive for Western Kentucky University's public radio service — WKYU and WDCL — begins Sunday with an open house celebration and live broadcast at the studios in the Academic Complex on campus.

The public is invited to take part in a live two-hour broadcast 2 p.m.-4 p.m. and to meet the station staff, tour the facilities and socialize with other listeners of the non-commercial public radio station.

Music will be provided by Western faculty and other friends of the stations. The on-air membership drive will be conducted Nov. 3-9 and the goal is $45,000.

D.N. 70-29-86

Homecoming to have international flair with Canadian theme

D.N. 10-29-86

Western Kentucky University's Homecoming 1986 will have an international flair this weekend as music and floats celebrate the theme of "Oh Canada! Get to know your neighbors."

According to Scott Taylor of Student Affairs at Western, the weekend will begin early for both community residents and Western students and alumni at the traditional Big Red's Roar at 7 p.m. Thursday in L.T. Smith Stadium.

"The evening's free entertainment will include everything from appearances by Western's marching band to members of the football team and coaching staff," he said, "and, of course, Big Red himself."

Taylor said a highlight of the roar will be the crowning of the 1986 homecoming queen. In previous years, the queen was crowned at half-time during the homecoming football game. The homecoming queen candidates were nominated by student groups at Western and include Whitney Auslander, Cathy Brown, Pam Brown, Susan Curtis, Patricia Dorst, Cynthia Edlin, Cherie Heidorn, Rebecca Mayfield, Caroline Miller, Sharon Ottens and Lisa Vittitow.

Comedian Rondell Sheriden and a 15-minute fireworks display will end the evening's program, Taylor said, and if Thursday's weather doesn't permit outdoor festivities, the Big Red's Roar will be in Diddle Arena.

Friday's homecoming activities will begin at 4:30 p.m. when Western's class of 1936 will be honored at a Golden Anniversary Club reception in the Executive Room of Garrett Conference Center. Other alumni activities will include an alumni banquet at 6:30 p.m. and an alumni homecoming dance at 9:30 p.m. at the Greenwood Executive Inn.

Information about individual organizations sponsoring alumni events such as Saturday's 35th Annual College Heights Herald Breakfast at 8 a.m. in the Garrett Conference Center and Mathematics Alumni Breakfast at 9 a.m. at the Ambrosia Restaurant can be obtained from the Alumni Office at Western.

Homecoming day's pre-game festivities will begin at 10:30 a.m. Saturday with Western's homecoming parade. According to Taylor, this year's slightly abbreviated parade will begin at Bowling Green Junior High School and continue south on Center Street to L.T. Smith Stadium. The new 1986 homecoming queen and the 1985 homecoming queen, Tara Wassom, will lead the parade which includes seven bands, 12 floats and Western's cheerleaders and spirit dancers. The floats, built by sponsors of each homecoming queen candidate, will be awarded prizes at the beginning of the parade according to originality and theme.

Also beginning at 10:30 a.m. and continuing until game time will be a "Barbecue under the Bigtop" on the north lawn of Downing Center. Lunch will be $4 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12.

The arts will be represented Saturday as well with an Ivan Wilson watercolor exhibit at the Kentucky Museum 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

The highlight of Saturday afternoon will be at 1 p.m. at Smith Stadium when the Hilltoppers will take on defending Division I-AA national champion Georgia Southern. During halftime, the Big Red Band will present music by Canadian and American composers as part of this year's Canadian theme and the 1986 homecoming queen and her court will be formally presented.

After the game, homecoming activities will continue with free Red/White intersquad men's basketball game at Diddle Arena and several individual group's alumni reception.

Ron Beck of Alumni Affairs at Western said another new alumni event, the first annual Greek alumni mixer, will round out the weekend's activities at 9 p.m. at the Holiday Inn Holldome.

"We are really expecting a lot of people in attendance," he said. "With the amount of Western alumni in this area, we think this will be the first of many Greek mixers."

Preparation is nearing completion for the Duncan Hines Celebration

10-29-56
By KIM SWIFT

Daily News Special Writer

When people think of cake mixes, they think of Duncan Hines, and when they think of Duncan Hines, they'll soon think of Bowling Green.

Co-chairmen Bill Jenkins and Peggy Keck, with the help of many organizations and individuals, will be putting on the first Duncan Hines Celebration Nov. 9-15.

"As Hines was born, raised, worked, and died in Bowling Green, there's no better place to celebrate the 50th anniversary of his book, 'Adventures in Good Eating.' He is by far the most important person to come out of Bowling Green," Jenkins said. "And we want to make people aware of the fact that he was a nationally-known citizen."

Planning for the celebration began in August, but Jenkins and other members of the celebration steering committee began working with the idea before that.

"I'd been aware of the Hines story since I came here the year he died (1959)," Jenkins said. An article published by the Smithsonian Institute captured his attention, and "I wondered why this city hasn't capitalized on this man."

Since then Jenkins has been gathering Hinesian memorabilia from around the country, from publications by and about Hines to photographs of him and his family.

Memorabilia such as a set of the original cake mix boxes, first editions of his famous books, signs that hung in front of the Hines office on Louisville Road (which is now Hardy and Son Funeral Home) and copies of the first Christmas card with 167 suggested restaurants across the country, will be displayed throughout the celebration at the Bowling Green Public Library.

Jenkins is working on having an historical marker put in front of Hines' old office and getting a television documentary for educational TV made on the famous man.

Hines may have been best known as an authority on good eating, but Jenkins said the man's entrepreneurial history interests him quite as much.

After working as a salesman of printing and advertising for the Wells-Fargo Company for 26 years, Hines changed his career with a Christmas card.

In 1935, he sent a card with a list of the best 167 restaurants and inns that he had visited during his travels across the country.

The next year he launched a new career as a household word on dining by publishing "Adventures in Good Eating" at the age of 56.

When the book succeeded, Hines set up shop first in Bowling Green and later in Chicago.

He and his wife traveled about 50,000 miles a year in search of eminently edible cuisine, and soon the sign or logo with "Recommended by Duncan Hines" became a well-known symbol sought after by restaurants and inns.

More books followed from these culinary excursions, "Lodging for a Night" in 1938, "Adventures in Good Cooking and the Art of Carving in the Home" in 1939, and "Duncan Hines' Vacation Guide" in 1948.

In the following years Hines published two more books, "Duncan Hines Food Odyssey," an autobiographical account of his life and gustatory adventures, as well as the "Duncan Hines Dessert Book."

In the 1940s, Roy H. Park, a businessman from upstate New York, conducted a survey to find the best possible endorsement for his new line of food products.

According to the Smithsonian article, Parks found that Hines was better known among housewives than the vice president of the United States.

From there the Hines-Park Foods, Inc., an organization which licensed various food manufacturers using the Hines label, was formed.

When in 1956 Proctor and Gamble acquired the Duncan Hines Institute, Hines-Park Foods, Inc., and the Duncan Hines prepared mixes through Nebraska Consolidated Mills, Hines was able to retire and relax at the age of 78. His palette's reputation remains well-known among millions of Americans.

As the Smithsonian writer put it, "He (Hines) recommended more than cake mix; in fact this eater-author's name was once engraved on the biting edge of the American appetite."

To kick off the celebration, a reception will be held Nov. 9 at the Chamber of Commerce.

On Nov. 5 Western Kentucky University students will have a bake-off for the Hotel/Motel Association's Monte Carlo night, and throughout the week participating restaurants will have special menus based on Hines' recipes.

Western Kentucky University's chapter of Free Enterprise students have developed a Duncan Hines coloring book to be distributed to the county elementary schools. The book stresses the entrepreneurship of Hines and shows how to achieve success in business.

The Free Enterprise students will work with Western's broadcasting students on a television documentary on Hines.

There are 13 members on the celebration steering committee, and a diverse group of residents have gotten involved with the project.

Dr. Peggy Keck, a professor at Western, will work with various members representing the Chamber of Commerce and the Bowling Green-Warren County Tourism Commission.

"Every section of Bowling Green will be affected by the celebration," said Mrs. Keck. "The celebration is important because many people don't know Hines came from Bowling Green. He is a good national figure to have continuing activities around, and we're hoping the Chamber of Commerce's Leadership program will make the celebration an annual event. Bowling Green should be proud of Duncan Hines."

(Staff Photo by Kim Swift)

DR. BILL JENKINS of BRADD and co-chairman of the Duncan Hines Celebration holds a copy of Hines' book and an original Proctor & Gamble cake mix box.

D.W. 10-28-86

(Staff Photo by James Morris)

MEMBERS OF Western Kentucky University's Sigma Chi fraternity still need to do a little work on their homecoming float at WKU's Agricultural Center before it's in shape to win any awards at Saturday's homecoming parade. In conjunction with the start of Western's Canadian Studies program, the theme for Homecoming 1986 is "Oh, Canada! Get to know your neighbors better." D. N. 10-27-86

Study ranks WKU 16th among teachers' colleges

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — A new study ranks Western Kentucky University 16th among the nation's top 50 schools identified as "producers of new knowledge in teacher education."

The study, conducted by Jon Denton of Texas A & M, aimed to determine the productivity of colleges of education in relation to new knowledge as determined by articles in education journals.

Denton wrote that "this interest is based, in part, on the general belief that these ratings influence the recruitment of graduate students and faculty, the employment opportunities for graduates ... and the availability of external funding from governmental and private sources."

Bowling Green, Ky. — Capitol Arts Center, 416 E. Main St. 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday. Portraits by Sarah Gaines Peyton, closes today. Paintings, weavings and ceramics by Kelly Shay, next Friday-Nov. 28.

The Kentucky Museum, Western Kentucky University. 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 1-4:30 p.m. Sunday. Watercolors by Ivan Wilson, through next fall.

University Gallery, Fine Arts Center, Western Kentucky University. 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Monday-Friday. Photographs

by Anthony Georgieff and John Warren Oakes, through Nov. 13. C. J. 10-31-86

C. J. 10-31-86

(Staff Photo by Kim Swift)

DANCING THE NIGHT AWAY, costumed revelers celebrate Halloween early at Western Kentucky University's "Hilloween" Wednesday night at the Downing University Center. Most other people in Bowling Green, however, will be observing Halloween on Friday. As a safety precaution this year, city police are urging parents to allow their children to trick-or-treat only in the early evening. D.N.
10-30-86

What's for 'undinner?'

D.N.
10-30-86

To benefit the national UNICEF agency and to show the differences between first and third world countries, two university groups are sponsoring an "Undinner" at 6:40 p.m. Friday at the campus faculty house.

Some of the special guests for the dinner, hosted by the International Student Organization and United Campuses to Prevent Nuclear War (UCAM), will be State Senator-elect Nick Kafoglis, Dr. Paul Cook and Dr. John Petersen.

The theme of "Feast or Famine" will be used at the dinner with each guest being told if he is representing a first or third world country. Those from a first world country, such as the United States, will enjoy a large dinner furnished by Bowling Green's Altrusa Society while those from third world countries will receive a bowl of rice.

The proceeds from the $3 tickets will go to UNICEF.

Tickets can be purchased at the door or from any ISO or UCAM member.

Coming Attractions

D. N. 10-30-86

EDITOR'S NOTE: Individuals or groups are encouraged to submit items concerning happenings and events in Southcentral Kentucky to the Coming Attractions column, which appears every Thursday. There is no charge and items should be submitted at least two weeks in advance of the event. Deadline is noon Wednesday.

CONCERTS

The department of music at Western Kentucky University continues its Edward J. Pease Memorial Faculty Concert Series with a performance by Gary Dilworth on trumpet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the recital hall of Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center. Admission is $3 at the door or $15 for entire series. Call 745-3751 for added details.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Little ghosts and goblins, ages 12 and under, are invited to "trick or treat" 5 p.m.-7 p.m. Friday in the Greenwood Mall.

A Halloween Skate Party, sponsored by The Fraternal Order of Police and Greenwood Skate Center, will be held 7 p.m.-10 p.m. today at the center. Admission is free. Call 843-3394 for added details.

Elementary age children are invited tonight to listen to stories, play games and have treats at a Halloween Party at the public library. Please wear costumes and program begins at 7 p.m. in the program room.

The third annual Bowling Green-Warren County Hotel-Motel Association and Restaurant Association will present "Big Night Monte Carlo" at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Greenwood Executive Inn. Games, prizes and food from Bowling Green's finest restaurants will be featured. For ticket information, call 781-3460 or 782-0800.

The public library's "Tots and Moms Activity Time" will meet at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the program room.

PRODUCTIONS

Western Kentucky University's department of music and Opera Theatre will present "Cox and Box" and "Trial by Jury" at 8 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Sunday in the recital hall of Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center. Admission is free.

"Noah and the Great Auk" will be presented by Western's department of communication and theatre Nov. 7-9. The production is part of the 1986 Children's Theatre Series. All performances will be in Theatre 100 of Gordon Wilson Hall at Western. Admission is 50 cents and showtimes are 4 p.m. Friday and at 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Auditions for "Once Upon a Christmas" will be conducted at 7 p.m. Monday-Tuesday at the Capitol Arts Center. The Fountain Square Players' production will be presented Dec. 18-21 with Jeff Moore directing.

Auditions for soloists for the Messiah Sing-In will be conducted at 3 p.m. Nov. 9 in the recital hall of Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center. The Messiah will be performed at 8 p.m. Nov. 28 at the Capitol Arts Center and is sponsored by Citizens National Bank. Call Gary Dilworth at 745-5921 for more information.

The Touch of Arts will present the musical revue, "Strictly Logan," on Nov. 21-22 at deGraf-fried Auditorium in Russellville. Wayne Posey's music and Shelly Steele Cataxinos' choreography will be featured. Twenty-six acts are scheduled.

FILMS, FILMSTRIPS AND STORIES

The public library will show children's films at 1:15 p.m. Saturday and 3:45 p.m. Tuesday in the library program room.

The public library's preschool storytime will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the program room.

EXHIBITS

An exhibit of more than 60 Ivan Wilson paintings is on view at the Kentucky Museum. A reception will be held Saturday honoring the late watercolorist who was a member of Western's art faculty for 39 years. (Call 745-2592 for time) John Warren Oakes, associate professor of art at Western and a student of Wilson, will be the exhibit's guest curator. The museum, located Western's campus is open 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and 1 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Eighteen original oil paintings by Bowling Green artist Lola A. Joiner are on display at the Bowling Green Public Library through Friday.

Two photography exhibitions are on display in the University Gallery of Western's Fine Arts Center. Photographs by Bulgarian photographer Antony Georgieff and sabbatical works by John Warren Oakes are on view through Nov. 13. Gallery hours are 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

On view in the Ervin G. Houchens Gallery at the Capitol Arts Center is "A Selection of Portraits" by Sarah Gaines Payton. A reception will be held 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Sunday. The show runs through Wednesday. Gallery hours are 8:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

The Eloise B. Houchens Center is open to the public Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. or other times by appointment. Call 842-6761 for more information.

WORKSHOPS

The Fountain Square Players are sponsoring a class, "Introduction to Community Theatre" Nov. 4, 11 and 18. The class will meet 7:30 p.m.-9 p.m. at the High Street Community Center. Registration fee is $5. Call 842-4281.

The Kentucky Museum's Fall 1986 Lunchtime Learning Series continues at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday. Daniel Carey will speak on "Greek Revival Architecture: Waveland and Bowling Green" and Thomas Hines will present "South Union: The Simple Life." Program is free and will be conducted in The Kentucky Building. Participants may bring a lunch. Call 745-2592.

Clean sweep

ALPHA GAMMA RHO fraternity pledges Randy Koch, Rick Thurby and Jerry Clemons sweep the Fountain Square sidewalk Thursday afternoon. The task was part of a civic service project by Youth Volunteers community service program.

(Staff Photo by Mark Workman)

D.N.
10-31-86

WKU phonothon to begin

As Western Kentucky University celebrates its 80th anniversary this fall, the office of development is gearing up for the sixth annual alumni phonothon scheduled to begin Sunday.

"Our needs are more urgent than ever," said Barkley Payne, a Bowling Green senior and chairman of the 1986 phonothon campaign. "We are working harder than ever to ensure the phonothon continues to be a financial success."

Workers are expected to contact more than 35,000 alumni using 30 telephone lines over the next three weeks. This year's pledge goal is $37,000.

Last year's final pledge amount was $48,000, exceeding the pledge goal by $13,888.

Payne said over the past five years, phonothon has doubled its manpower and pledge totals. The five previous phonothons raised more than $200,000 in pledges for the university.

The phonothon is organized by a seven-member student committee under the direction of John Sweeney, Western's director of development.

Payne said more than 1,500 volunteers are expected to participate in this year's event, which ends Nov. 20.

This year's theme is "Phonothon '86: Celebrating 80 Years of Excellence." The organizing committee's personal motto is "Don't Miss the Celebration."

Twenty student volunteers met at the Margie Helm Library and found nearly 1,600 alumni phone numbers. The numbers will be added to the pool of alumni that will be contacted during the phonothon and will also be recorded in the alumni affairs office.

During the past five years, students have located 10,000 alumni phone numbers.

Also, a special Bowling Green alumni project will be implemented during the phonothon, Payne said, as organizers try to increase the awareness of the university's needs for private contributions from those living in Bowling Green and Warren County.

D.N. 10-31-86

WKU student arrested

D. N.
10-31-84

Michael Andre Vickers, 18, of 314 North Hall was arrested by Western Kentucky University police Wednesday on a charge of knowingly receiving stolen property over $100.

He was charged in connection with eight musical instruments and a stereo valued at $5,116 that were stolen from the music department in the Ivan Wilson Fine Arts Center during July, August and September.

Lt. Richard Kirby said the instruments were recovered in Vicker's room, while the stereo was found at a home on Regents Avenue.

Michael Edwin Glover, 19, of 2401 Pearce-Ford Tower was arrested by Western police Tuesday on a charge of second degree forgery.

He is accused of using checks stolen from his former roommate, Mark Black of 2120 Pearce-Ford Tower to make seven purchases totaling $90.36 from two pizza restaurants.

(Staff Photo by Mark Workman)

SMILING WITH DELIGHT, Whitney Ann Auslander is named Western Kentucky University's 1986 Homecoming Queen at Big Red's Roar on Thursday evening. The title is voted on each year by Western students. Miss Auslander, a junior math-communication arts major from Louisville, was sponsored by the Kappa Delta sorority and Sigma Chi fraternity. Her escort was James Tennill.