President goes back to school

BY GREG WELLS

President Thomas Meredith knew what he wanted way before he drew to see which student would trade places with him yesterday.

"Every year I've done this, it's been a male," Meredith said before the drawing. "I need a female, so I can go to an art class."

Meredith wasn't so lucky. He drew a male winner again this year, and instead of going to a 10:30 a.m. class as he had hoped, Meredith ended up starting class at 6:30 yesterday.

Meredith took the place of Steve Czirr, a senior from Brentwood, Tenn., who spent his day in the President's office.

"Whatever happened to when students' days started at 10," Meredith said.

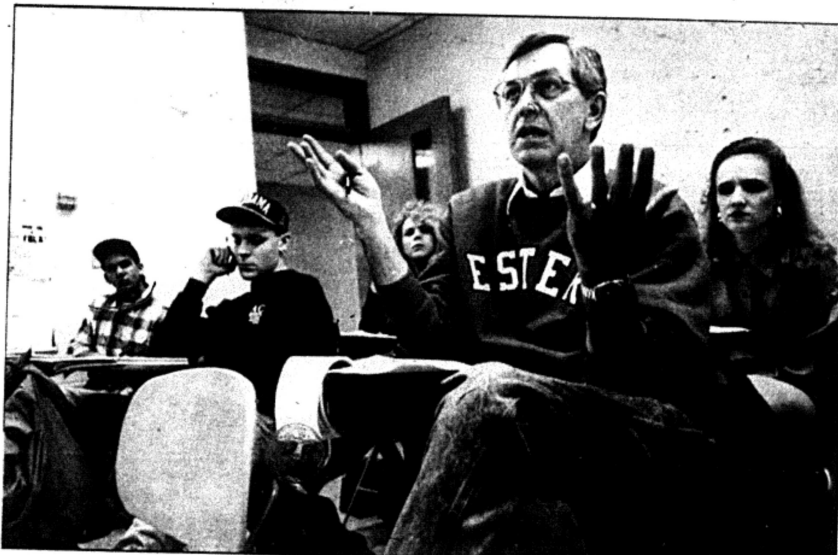

Meredith spent his time watching ROTC cadets train in the pool. He was encouraged to join in, but, smiling, he said he didn't know he needed to bring his swimsuit.

Then it was off to the Marquis Club for a nourishing lunch before a jog up the Hill to Grise Hall for a marketing class. Meredith was reminded of the joys of note taking - trying to keep up and deciding what to use and what not to. He evidently got the hang of it quickly, because one student asked him for a copy of the notes.

"Two dollars a copy," Meredith said with a smile.

Meredith participated several times in his management class where the subject was discrimination against the handicapped. In this case, President Meredith reappeared while student Meredith took a break as he told a story of a hiring decision he faced.

At day's end, Meredith walked into the President's office and shook hands with President Czirr. The reins of power were returned to their usual holder, and a handful of notes were passed to the deposed president.

Taking part in a human resources management class, President Thomas Meredith explains why it is wrong to discriminate. Meredith spent Wednesday as a student while Steve Czirr, a senior from Brentwood, Tenn., took over as president.

Student has power for a day

BY MATTHEW TUNGATE

While President Thomas Meredith was demoted to student yesterday, one student got to be at his power hungry best. Steve Czirr, a Brentwood, Tenn., senior took over as President For A Day.

Czirr won the third annual President For A Day raffle Tuesday night.

"I couldn't believe it," he said. "I was pretty much in shock."

Czirr said he got pressured into buying his President For A ◆ Board meeting

Two salary proposals on agenda

BY JIM HANNAH

Faculty salaries, an issue that has been debated at Western for years, may enter its final chapter today when the Board of Regents considers a proposal that will increase pay.

The board meets today in Wetherby Administration Building at 9 a.m.

Two recommendations on salaries will be discussed, one by the University Budget Committee chaired by President Thomas Meredith and another by the Salary Study Committee chaired by Jim Ramsey, vice president for administration and technology. The Salary Study Committee was formed by the board.

There are two major differences between the two proposals.

◆ The budget committee is calling for a 3 percent increase in salaries for administrators making over $50,000. The salary committee recommended that these administrators' salaries be frozen.

◆ The budget committee is asking for a 3 percent increase in salaries for instructors. The salary committee recommended instructors not get an increase in pay.

There are also items common to both proposals: a 6 percent increase in salaries for full professors, a 6.6 percent increase for associate professors and a 5.4 percent increase for assistant professors.

These figures are for the first year under both plans.

Faculty Regent Ray Mendel said terms in both proposals are good, but he expressed concerns over the fact that funding has not been found for the salary increases.

For the first year alone, the salary increases will cost $2 mil-

FOOD SERVICES: Cook gave 70 Super Cards to workers

BY CHRIS POYNTER

Former Food Services Director Louis Cook knew in 1987 that his employees were stealing food from the university, so he took action which he thought would curb it — he gave his 70 employees free Super Cards which allowed them to eat meals while they worked.

That cost Western about $55,000 annually or about $250,000 over the four-and-a-half years it was in effect.

Cook, who left Western last summer after Marriott Corp. took control of Food Services, told Public Safety he took the action without authorization from anyone.

Cook was one of several persons interviewed during a Public Safety investigation which resulted in the indictment of Cook's top assistant, Howard P. Lindsey. Lindsey was charged last week with 10 counts of theft from the university. Among other things, the investigation showed that Lindsey gave coaches and some physical plant employees free Super Cards which cost Western about $13,000.

Lindsey will appear in Warren Circuit Court at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 19.

Cook could not be reached last night for comment.

"It's been a long-standing

"I have a feeling that there will be a lot more come out in the trial."

— Sandra Mahaney

problem within any eating establishment that you either feed employees or they steal it," Cook told Capt. Richard Kirby during the investigation. "I mean that's just the way it is. And what happens if you don't feed them is they steal more than it cost to feed them because they take stuff that they wouldn't ordinarily."

Cook said he authorized each employee to use their Super Cards once a day while they worked. He said the meals ran about $3 each and only one person had abused the privilege.

Cook said the employees had Super Cards that would show how much each person had spent per week. "His office would check the balances to see if anyone was going overboard. If they were, Cook said he would bring it to their attention.

Sandra Mahaney, a member of a grand jury that indicted Lindsey, said she personally felt that the Super Card scheme involved more people in higher positions. "It's not something our court system needs to look into. I think Mr. (Thomas) Meredith needs to look into things."

The president has appointed a committee to see if there were any violations of university policy.

"I have a feeling that there will be a lot more come out in the trial," Mahaney said.

Poland popcorn too hot to handle

You never know what might pop up at Poland Hall. Early Tuesday morning a bag of microwave popcorn did.

It forced residents to evacuate the building about 1 a.m. after a bag of microwave popcorn caught on fire.

Poland Hall Director Pam Reno said the fire went out quickly but smoke caused the alarm to sound.

The incident occurred on the second floor and smoke went all the way to the top floor. When residents returned inside about 10 minutes later, they complained that the building smelled like burnt toast.

Poland Hall residents staying cool

By JERRY DANIELS JR.

As the months grow warmer, things may be cooling off in Poland Hall's lobby.

A new cooling tower is being built on the ground, replacing the old tower on the roof which Poland Hall Director Pam Reno said was not cooling the lobby.

Its replacement follows repairs needed for the roof, Reno said.

The entire project will be completed this month, University Architect Paul Morgan said.

The money for the new roof and cooling tower comes from the $3 million loan the federal government gave to Western, Morgan said.

Day ticket.

"It started out as kind of like a joke," said Czirr, a member of the Reserve Officer Training Corps. "People wanted to see Dr. Meredith do P. T. (physical training)."

Physical training is the class where ROTC does rigorous training, such as jogging at 6:30 a.m.

"For the day, he is Cadet Captain Meredith," he said.

Czirr said he bought his winning ticket Tuesday at 2 p.m., five hours before the drawing. He bought the $1 ticket with "pocket change," he said.

The most exciting thing about being president, Czirr said, is "the chance to basically run things."

"This is rough," Czirr joked. "What to do first?"

He said he stayed up until about 2:30 a.m. thinking of things to do. Czirr also said he got a lot of help from friends.

Suggestions included dropping people's schedules, towing someone's car, having someone's room searched, and having "Topless Sorority Girl Day."

He said he planned on having fun, but wanted to "do some good, too."

Actions President Czirr enacted, affecting only Wed., Feb. 3, were:

♦ Declared it "Ticket Amnesty Day" for color-zone violations.

♦ Declared it "Kappa Sigma Fraternity Appreciation Day."

♦ Replaced Communications Department Head Randy Capps with Professor Larry Caillouet.

Czirr and Jerry Wilder, vice president for Student Affairs, discussed the lack of lighting on campus, different types of rush policies and a possible undergraduate admission application fee. Wilder also said he would investigate a report that the Student Escort Service won't escort more than one female at a time if they are going to the same place. Czirr said.

"He was very helpful," Czirr said. "We had a good talk."

He said the secretaries in the president's office "have been great."

They seemed to like him, too. "Steve's real polite," said

Cindy Lee, secretary to Dr. James Heck, "and that's exactly how Dr. Meredith is."

Czirr said another perk was being able to call some friends early in the morning, and his friends weren't happy.

"Big power trip today," he said. "What are they going to do, call the president and complain?"

Czirr said he could get used to that lifestyle.

"I wonder what Tom's doing tomorrow," he asked.

If he was president for more than a day, Czirr said, he would "try for more money for education."

He also said he doesn't like students having to pay for things like scantron cards and handouts.

"Little things where they try to rip students off," he said.

Not to say Czirr is after Meredith's job. Czirr thinks Meredith is doing a good job.

"The man is brilliant," he said. "He's got a lot of good ideas, but he's got a difficult job ahead of him."

♦ Our view/editorials

Students should clean up campus, adopt every spot

Western has often been cited as having one of the state's most beautiful campuses. But if students don't do a better job of picking up litter, that could easily change.

If students start now, working to keep trash in the cans and off the ground, it wouldn't take any time at all to get Western beautiful again and keep it that way.

Why should the university continue to spend money paying employees to pick up empty Subway cups and crumpled Herald inserts? That money could be spent on improving educational facilities if students would only walk a few more steps to the nearest garbage can or recycling bin.

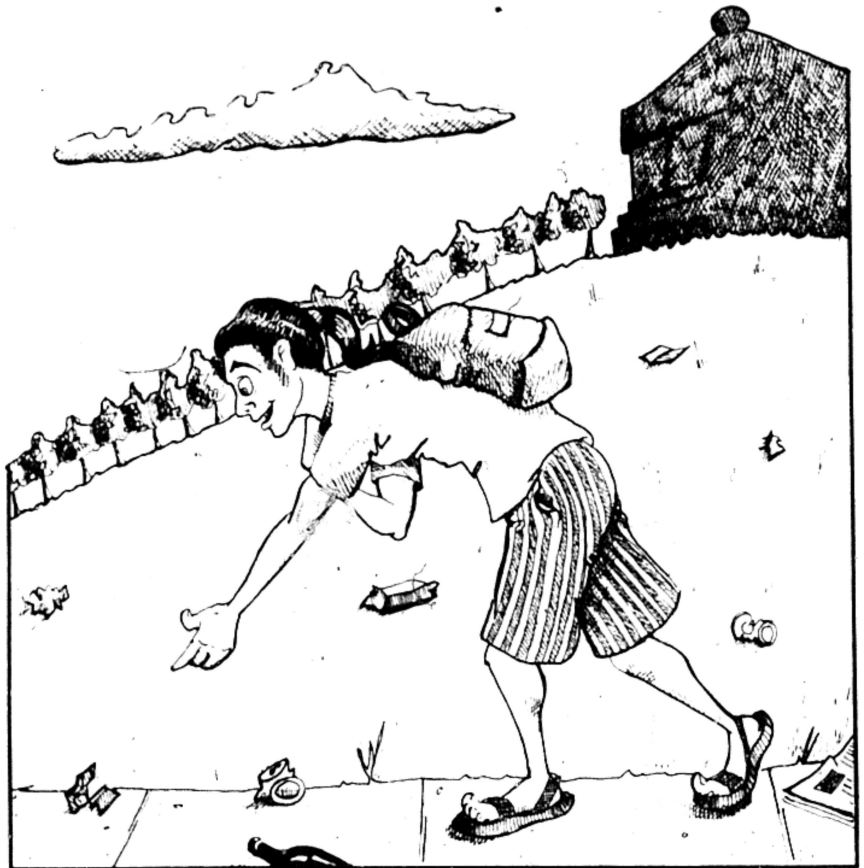

By deciding not to keep the campus clean, students should think of who they are hurting, not the university employees who are paid for our laziness, not the administrators or faculty who dwell here a few hours each day. Since we have to live here, we are only hurting ourselves. We, the students, are the ones who will be wallowing in our refuse.

Even if we don't care about ourselves, we should think about Western's future. With freshman orientation approaching in March, it is especially important to keep Western looking its best. First impressions can often be a deciding factor for attending a college, but with trash littering the campus, what message are we sending to future students?

Luckily, some students are aware of the problem and are trying to change it. The Student Government Association is sponsoring an Adopt-A-Spot program to help keep areas of the campus clean. Students should take the initiative to participate, if not for Western's sake then for the $500 prize that will be awarded to the group with the cleanest area.

United Student Activists should also be commended for their efforts to improve Western's look. USA collects cans from the recycling bins SGA has placed all over campus. All we have to do is fill them.

These groups have set the standards by which we must live. They have started what we must finish. And as human beings we have an obligation to try to improve our lives and the lives of others. The best way to do that is to clean up after ourselves, starting now.

Cool a dollar!

'Virgin rule' for men

Is there a virgin rule for the Hunk of the Hill contest?

Dawn Mosby
Cave City senior

'Virgin rule' outdated

In irate response to the "virgin rule" of the Miss Western Pageant, how do pageant officials propose to prove the virginity of each contestant? Shall we line them all up at a gynecologist's office and give them a quick check?

Even if women are never married and have no children, then they are most certainly not guaranteed to be virgins. To suppose that they are is arcane and outdated.

To discriminate against someone just because she has a child is simply an outrage. Does it change them into less of a person or student? Have they become a wart on the nose of Western? Furthermore, what if they are married and have a child — a non-traditional student?

The criteria for selection suggests that Western Kentucky University is best represented by those who would be considered traditional students. The university community has changed since those rules were put into effect. Western's student body now more closely reflects the outside world than it ever has. The rules reflect an atmosphere of academic cloistering that simply does not exist anymore. They should not be allowed to stay as they are.

SALARY: Increases proposed

Committee recommendations

lion to implement

Funding these salary increases "is going to require a monumental effort," said Jerry Wilder, vice president for Student Affairs.

Programs, staff and services, including academic ones, will have to be cut, said Wilder, a budget committee member.

Meredith was unavailable for comment last night.

Sociology and Anthropology Professor Joan Krenzin said she has concerns about a possible cut in faculty positions because that would hurt the students.

Krenzin said she wouldn't be as concerned if student services were cut. There are other places to get services, Western offers, but there isn't another place to get educated, she said.

today to determine if a new vice president, as recommended by Meredith in his administrative reorganization plan, will be created.

The proposed Vice President for Institutional Advancement would oversee development. Money would be reallocated to fund the position at first with hopes that it will become self supporting.

Details of the plan also call for the creation of an affirmative action office, changing the titles of some administrators and shifting Western's power structure.

DREAM a little DREAM

A young boy is lost in a forest. Panicking, he runs between the trees - sweat dripping from his brow, his lungs burning - trying to escape the unseen danger behind him. He looks back as his pursuer draws closer. Before he realizes what is happening, he plunges off an unseen cliff. Just as he is about to hit the jagged, rocky terrain below, he wakes up.

It was only a dream.

Many neurobiologists believe dreams are a sort of neuro-discharge, a means of fulfilling parts of life in an unconscious state, Patty Randolph, a psychology instructor, said.

"During dreams we integrate what has happened to us recently and what has happened to us in the past, and get insight into the situation," she said.

Randolph said dreams occur in a semi-conscious state, usually during sleep. Yet, the cause of dreams is uncertain.

"Asking why we dream is like asking why we sleep," she said.

Bowling Green junior Eric Pruett said he sees dreams as an alternate dimension of the universe.

"Dreams are another reality we experience that is just as real as this one," he said. "I think dreams can be affected by this reality; we dream because we are part of that world too."

Other students believe dreams are a unifying tool that links all mankind together.

"I believe in the idea of collective unconsciousness. We as a species have common memories that are genetically encoded in our DNA," Franklin junior Michael Carter said. "For example, put yourself in a harsh situation. Visions of the hunt arise in people, how do you think they know what to do? By some common virtue of the external experience."

Dreams mirror emotional, mental and physical problems. They can provide an outlet for obstacles people face and help them to better understand themselves, Carter said.

Many students said dreams have some sort of significance, and they usually listen to their dreams.

"I always have meaningful dreams," said Albany senior Jerry Pittman. "If I remember them I'll keep working on it until I figure it out."

Carter said he occasionally keeps a journal so he can recall and interpret his dreams.

"I've had some dreams with sure symbols - images," he said. "I try to coordinate a pattern and figure out why I dreamt it and the meaning in terms of my present situation."

Some students said they practice lucid dreaming in order to understand their dreams. Lucid dreaming is maintaining more than one level of consciousness while dreaming, Randolph said. People become aware that they are dreaming and are able to control their dreams. Most attempt lucid dreaming to further expand their level of consciousness.

"The biggest obstacle is when you're so excited that you're controlling your dream that you wake up," Pittman said.

Bowling Green sophomore Scott Lee said he can control his dreams if he is awakened in the middle of one.

"I try to go back to sleep because I want to find out how it's going to end," he said. "It's kind of like a soap opera."

Some students believe dreams provide insight on a variety of problems, if the symbolism of the dream is realized.

"It depends on how much it is interpreted," Carter said. "Take an introverted person - if they are too introverted - their dreams won't mean anything because they're not open enough to understand them."

Lee said he only pays attention to dreams if something out of the ordinary happens.

"If I continually have a dream over and over I look it up in dream books," he said. "I find myself dreaming more when I'm unhappy."

Pruett said that validity must be given to dreams because they are a real part of our consciousness.

"I pay attention to dreams because it's like living another life, existing on another plain," he said. "They compliment each other. If you can't do something in this reality, you can do it in your dreams. There are not as many restrictions."

Regardless of how dreams are interpreted, everyone has them. Some students agreed that dreams are nothing more than fantasy.

"I had a dream where I was in the hospital, and everyone who came to visit me was wearing Glad bags," said Madisonville sophomore Jennifer Fox. "It didn't mean much, it wasn't very insightful."

Pittman said he thinks dreams could be a passageway to channel psychic energy.

"I've gotten poems in dreams," he said. "But, even if we did have a dream where we predicted something, we'd probably rationalize it so we wouldn't go insane."

Morgantown junior Craig Smith said he has had a few unusual experiences with dreams.

"I remember almost everything and in great detail," he said. "Once I had a dream about a person who was in two of my classes. He was wearing a raincoat with the hood up in drizzling rain, and the next day it was drizzling and he was wearing the same raincoat. It was really bizarre."

'Sister Soul' goes on the road

BY NADINE LAKIES

Determination and confidence are leading a play written and directed by a Western student to appear in Louisville in March.

Louisville junior Ericka Malone is part of African American Players, which performed "Sister Soul" on campus last November before an audience of about 500.

"Sister Soul" has been rewritten since its debut, Malone said, but it is still about the celebration of black women from slavery to the 1990s. Its characters include a single mother, a slave who is raped and a promiscuous woman who becomes infected with AIDS.

"It did so well," Malone said of the performance at Western. "I decided to take it on the road."

But being on the road has its expenses.

The cost of renting Louisville's Memorial Auditorium is $500. Malone donated her $100 paycheck, and her mother, Eva, also donated $100. The rest of the money was raised at November's show.

African American Players are holding two fundraisers to raise money for travel expenses. Tomorrow night they will host a dance in West Hall Cellar from 10 p.m. until 1 a.m. Admission is $1.

In March, the group will have a talent search called "Nite at the Apollo." There is no entry fee for contestants, but admission will be $1.50.

Malone contacted Rod Bubridge, manager of WGZB radio in Louisville, about the possibility of performing "Sister Soul" there.

Bubridge will be promoting Malone's play on the air. He liked Malone's enthusiasm and is helping even though he has never even seen the play, Malone said. "Sister Soul" will be performed March 27 at Memorial Auditorium at 1 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Committees look to future Sci-Fi Club: Group is 'a great social outlet'

BY MIKE BREWER

How is Western doing?
This question has been asked to eight different committees formed to determine where the university needs improvement. The committees include Undergraduate Education, Student Services and Physical and Financial Resources.

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools or SACS, the accreditation association for Western, requires colleges and universities in their region to conduct self studies every 10 years in order to determine which programs and services are up to par and which need improvement. The studies provide information to the association so it may decide whether or not Western should be accredited.

Livingston Alexander, associate vice president of Academic Affairs, has been named as an adviser to the committee of Institutional Effectiveness, the committee that will submit a report compiled by all eight committees to SACS. The summary report is to be turned into SACS by March 4.

One responsibility of all the committees, Alexander said, is to determine how well Western has been achieving its goals in Western XXI. Western XXI is a strategic planning document that outlines Western's priorities for the 21st century.

Alexander said none of the committees have been designed to make any changes in university policy.

"We are to develop strategic plans," Alexander said.

President Thomas Meredith said the committees are working well, but he is concerned with the end results.

"Everything is in place, but we're not seeing if there is a good job being done," Meredith said.

Meredith said SACS has introduced this new "self-study" element in its accreditation process for the first time this accreditation period.

"The new element is how effective are we," Meredith said.

Alexander refused to comment any further on what the committees have found other than to say, "The reports will have a mixture of findings." The report is to be released shortly after SACS receives it March 4.

Attention all science fiction fans! Thanks to a small core of science fiction lovers, the Western Speculative Fiction Club is back.

The organization has been at Western for the past fifteen years, but membership had been slowly declining, said John Reasoner, president and former student.

Members decided a reorganization was in order, and Tuesday, twenty like-minded students came together with one purpose - to enjoy science fiction.

Annette Carrio, club librarian and a chemistry department staff member in the, said she has high hopes for the organization's revival.

"We're here as a social and informational society," she said. "We share new publications by new authors and discuss area conventions."

"It's a great social outlet," said Bowling Green senior Mary Baker. Most of our members are more intellectual than the average guy. And we have more than our share of strange personalities."

The annual speculative fiction convention, Concave 14, will be held Feb. 26-28 at the Park Mammoth Resort in Park City. It will feature sci-fi films, role playing games, book swaps and opportunities to purchase any kind of sci-fi paraphernalia. Patty Teague, club secretary and former Western student, said she hopes the club will help people realize sci-fi has become "mainstream" in recent years.

"People used to perceive us as odd," she said. "Now, we've become the norm."

Meetings will be held every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Downing University Center, Room 311.

Lady Tops underdog tonight at Vandy

Joe Stefanchik/Herald

Lori Abell grabs a rebound in practice yesterday as the Lady Toppers prepare for tonight's game against No. 2 Vanderbilt. Tipoff is at 7 in Vandy's Memorial Gym.

Lamar next Sun Belt foe for Tops

◆ Western needs win to keep its hold on second place after Tuesday's loss at New Orleans

BY PAMELA C. KIGGINS

When Western plays at Lamar Saturday, Coach Ralph Willard is hoping his team will play the same way it played the Cardinals earlier this season at Diddle.

"We won't do anything different," Willard said. "When we played them, we had pressure defense, pushed the ball up the court and ran the ball. We'll just play the way we did when we first played them."

Western won that game 114-89.

The 7 p.m. contest in Beaumont, Texas will match the league's second and third place teams. With Western's 89-80 loss Tuesday at New Orleans, the Privateers pulled away from the pack with their 10-0 conference mark. Western is 7-3 and Lamar checks in at 7-4.

Lamar Coach Mike Newell said the first meeting between the two teams was a great game because "the students and fans got involved. The team was feeding off the fans' intensity and the fans were feeding off of the teams' play."

Newell also said the Darnell Mee-Mark Bell guard combination would be hard to beat.

"They are the best guard combination in the conference," Newell said.

Newell, who is hoping for a good turnout for Saturday's game, said his team (12-5 overall) has some weaknesses they can't help right now.

"Basically we're a young team; we start a freshman and a sophomore," Newell said. "Also, we are not as athletic as Western. But we do handle the ball and shoot good and we are able to get inside and get some rebounds."

Once again, the Toppers (12-4) were troubled by fouls and missed foul shots in the loss at New Orleans (16-2 overall) Tuesday night.

Backup center Bryan Brown fouled out with 9:55 left and forward Darnell Mee, who was held to 11 points and five rebounds, left with 1:34 remaining.

Guard Darrin Horn fouled out with 49 seconds left in the game and Greg Glass, Darius Hall and Chris Robinson finished with four fouls.

Western's downfall, though, was missing 13 of its 26 free throws.

New Orleans, the conference leader in holding teams to 39 percent field goal shooting, held Western to 41 percent from the field.

It appeared that Western might get a break when New Orleans' leading scorer, Ervin Johnson, picked up two personal fouls in the first four minutes of the game. But Johnson avoided foul trouble the rest of the way and led the Privateers with 27 points and 15 rebounds.

The leading scorer for the Toppers was Bell with 26.

Before the loss, the Toppers had moved up to 16th in the Sagarin Computer power rankings.

The Toppers return to Diddle Monday to face Southern Utah (8-7) at 7 p.m. Southern Utah is ranked 169th in this week's Sagarin Ratings.

BY TOM BATTERS

If you throw out the two games that ended as the basketball plunged through the net at the buzzer, tonight's game could be a battle between two top 10 teams.

Instead, it's Western's chance to knock off the No. 2 team and bounce back into the top 10.

The 18th-ranked Lady Toppers (12-4, 6-0), who lost to Southwest Missouri State and Kentucky at the buzzer this year, will be in Nashville tonight to face Vanderbilt (17-1). Tipoff is at 7.

The Lady Commodores are coming off Saturday's 73-68 loss to then-second ranked Tennessee. As a result, Tennessee moved on top and Vandy slipped to second.

"This game is a great opportunity to show people that we can beat a top 10 team on the road," junior Denise Hill said.

The Lady Commodores will be led by senior Shelley Jarrard (13.5 points per game) and junior Julie Powell (14.1 ppg).

"I'm impressed with both of them," Coach Paul Sanderford said. "They give Vanderbilt two solid wing players."

The Lady Commodores have been averaging 4,612 fans for 11 home games, the best in school history. Last Saturday's game against the Lady Vols was a sell-out. That has boosted Vandy into the top three in the nation in attendance. In past years, Western has had more fans at Memorial Gym than the Lady Commodores have.

"It's a different type of atmosphere with a totally different look," Sanderford said. Part of the different look is because the benches are in the end zones rather than along the sidelines.

Senior guard Renee Westmoreland said it will be very loud and difficult to hear Sanderford on the other end of the court.

"Communication will be a crucial part of the game," she said. "We can't let the crowd get in the way of what we want to do on the floor."

Westmoreland missed Monday's win at Southwestern Louisiana because of bronchitis but will be ready to play today. "I've played sick before," she said. "It's just something I have to do."

The Lady Toppers will have their hands full with Vanderbilt's 6-10 junior center Heidi Gillingham, who leads the Southeastern Conference in blocked shots and shooting percentage.

Hill said she and seniors Paulette Monroe and Trina Wilson will try to draw some fouls on Gillingham and take her out of the game early.

Lady Commodore Coach Jim Foster, who was 22-9 in his first season at Vanderbilt last year, is expected to switch defenses often and throw some new looks at Western, Sanderford said.

"They are a much improved team now that they've had a year to adjust to his (Foster's) system," he said.

Sanderford said two advantages the Lady Toppers will have are their depth and quickness. "They also have a very good bench, but they only play about eight players," he said. "We can play 14 different players."

Vanderbilt will be trying to avenge last year's 71-63 loss in Diddle Arena when they were also ranked second in the nation.

For the first time this year the Lady Toppers will be the underdog.

Western returns home for a 2:30 p.m. game Sunday against Sun Belt Conference foe New Orleans.

Program begins to fill holes on signing day

BY CHRIS IRVINE

Western's football team began its reloading process yesterday as colleges began to sign recruits for the 1993 season.

Despite the controversy surrounding the program in the last year, Western's biggest selling point was its players, said recruiting coordinator Rick Denstorf.

"The players did a good job selling themselves, the program and the university" to prospective recruits, Denstorf said.

The problem facing the coaching staff will be filling 12 holes left by graduating seniors. "In general, we tried to be very selective and fill specific needs," Denstorf said.

Those needs, he said, are depth in the offensive backfield, size and athleticism on the offensive and defensive lines, cornerbacks who can cover man-to-man, a kicker, a linebacker and a long-snapper.

A big priority for Western will be filling the void created by the departure of leading tackler Richard Grice. Linebacker Jody Inman of Gallatin (Tenn.) High School is one of the new players coaches are hoping will help pick up the slack. Last season, Inman was named All-Conference and All-State and played for the Class AAA state championship team.

It will be up to Mike Montgomery and Ron Kelly to provide depth to Western's improving offensive and defensive lines. Kelly, a 6-foot-2, 255-pound defensive lineman from Lorne Park High School in Ontario, Canada, was a former teammate of current Hilltopper Stuart MacKenzie.

Montgomery, a 6-2, 270-pound offensive lineman from Itawamba Community College in Fulton, Miss., is a national power-lifting champion who the coaches are hoping will help

School spirit causes trouble for some fans

BY JEFF NATIONS

Evans, a Louisville senior, was ejected for abusive language during the men's basketball matchup with South Alabama on Jan. 24.

"Well, basically all I said at the time was that he made a terrible call," said Evans, president of the Hufraisers, the student pep club.

"I yelled it several times," he added.

With his untimely exit, Evans became the second Western student to be ejected from a game at Diddle this season. Both were sitting in the new court level bleachers.

Charlie Bloodworth, the Sun Belt Conference's Supervisor of Men's Basketball Officials, said that contrary to popular belief, referees don't enjoy throwing fans out of games.

"We like to see school spirit," Bloodworth said. "The worst thing that could possibly happen is for someone who is spirited to be removed from the game."

Bloodworth said throwing fans out of games is a last resort.

"We've had very few people ejected in the eleven years I've been associated with the Sun Belt Conference," he said. "It just doesn't happen."

The conference does have a written code of conduct which serves as a guideline for officials, said John Lamarino, Associate Commissioner for the Sun Belt Conference. Excessive verbal harassment is included in the code.

"If the officials feel that there are spectators who are harassing them to the point where they cannot do their job, or if they feel physically threatened, they can ask security to have them removed," Lamarino said.

Other offenses which can earn

Western fans an ejection include:

- Touching an official during a game. At a game in Diddle against Louisiana Tech earlier this season, a Western student was ejected from the game for tapping an official on the shoulder.

- Disturbing the court with debris.

A Western fan faced criminal charges and was permanently banned from Diddle in 1984 for striking a player from Carson Newman in the head with a folding chair.

And in 1986, a raucous Western crowd pelted University of Alabama Birmingham Coach Gene Bartow and his players with Mars candy bars after a controversial call.

Associate Athletics Director Pam Herriford didn't think this year's incidents were as serious as in past seasons and does not plan to take further action against the students.

"The situations we've had with the kids was that they just didn't think," Herriford said.

"Even the situation where the student touched the referee, I don't think there was any malice intended. He was just trying to get his opinion heard."

Herriford said having the students so close to the floor has made it a "tough situation for students and officials alike."

The Athletics Department has been pleased with student spirit and has no plans of moving the new court level bleachers, but the school expects its students and fans to exhibit "correct behavior," Herriford said.

Evans said the officials have been more tolerant since his ejection. "They've been a little bit better," he said. "I just get active in the game, and if I think they've made a bad call, I tell them about it."

"Besides, he should be paying attention to the game, not the fans."

Track teams off to Indiana

◆ Western's runners compete in their largest indoor meet Friday and Saturday without two key seniors

BY CARA ANNA

Members of the track teams may rub elbows with some Olympians this weekend at the Indiana Relays in Bloomington, Ind.

"You never really know who will show up at a meet like this," Coach Curtiss Long said.

Long said he expected several thousand spectators to attend the two-day meet, which starts at 1:30 p.m. on Friday.

It will be both the most well-attended and the largest indoor meet Western will compete in this year.

Long has always taken Western to the meet, which may draw as many as 30 area teams this year. "You can be assured that in any event you're in, it'll be a good one," he said.

Long wants Western to focus on running to win. "With the indoor conference championships coming up, the emphasis is on running against other people," he said. "It's who you are able to beat."

Western runners will compete in some of their strongest events this weekend. Seniors Eddie O'Carroll and Michelle Murphy will not compete because they are recovering from last week's meet at East Tennessee State.

The rest of the men's and women's teams, which placed third last week at Middle Tennessee State, could be led by Jef Scott and Hendrick Maako in the 3,000; Sylvia Moreno in the mile and Marcus Ridley in the long jump, triple jump and hurdles. "It'll be interesting to see which he performs in best," Long said.

Long said the meet will be a big stepping stone for the teams, which still have several inexperienced members. "This is an opportunity for the older, more experienced runners to put it together," he said. "For the more inexperienced runners, it is an opportunity to keep it together."

Swimmers ready to win 'title'

BY DENNIS VARNEY

The closest thing to a Sun Belt Conference swimming championship will be at 1 p.m. Saturday when the Toppers face Arkansas-Little Rock on the road.

The two schools are the only ones in the conference with swimming programs.

Western, 6-2, will also swim against John Brown University and Drury College in Little Rock.

The meet will not make a direct impact on the outcome of the Toppers' season, but the team is using this weekend's meet as a stepping stone toward the Eastern Intercollegiate Championships in early March.

Coach Bill Powell said the meet will be a chance for him to enter swimmers in events they do not usually swim.

Powell said he doesn't know much about Little Rock except that Western beat them last season 146-98.

He said he doesn't expect them to be much better this year.

Little Rock Coach Richard Turner said he has a young team, and it would have to swim a perfect meet to beat the Toppers.

"Western Kentucky has an outstanding team," Turner said. "I wish we could be more competitive."

Little Rock's top swimmers are senior backstroke Kutay Duman and freshman breaststroke Tolga Acarli. Turner expects Acarli to be the biggest challenge for the Toppers.

Drury College was a late entry into the meet after Delta State dropped out earlier this week. Drury is the defending NAIA champion.

Western is 3-2 against Drury but hasn't faced the team in dual meet action since the 1975-76 season, when the Toppers lost 66-47.

This will be Western's first meet against John Brown University.

Tennis coach sees bright future

By Tom Batters

The long hours of practicing indoors from 9-11:30 at night and conditioning all afternoon are about to pay off for the men's tennis team Friday.

Coach Jody Bingham said this year's team is the fittest and hardest working one he's had in his three years here. He also said the first meet of the year will be a success.

"If we play as hard as we've been practicing, we should win all of our matches," he said. "I would be surprised if we didn't."

Western will play Bellarmine College on Louisville's campus courts to open the spring season.

"Bellarmine is an improved team," Bingham said. "But we have also improved and will surprise some teams regionally."

The Toppers will be led by senior co-captain Bernie Howard, who won 18 of 25 matches last season. Howard will be followed by sophomore Quincy Brown, the other co-captain. Brown won 17 of 25 last year. Brown is also the team's leading doubles player.

Junior college transfer Michael Wilson will be the Toppers' third seed Friday.

"He will be an impact player for us," Bingham said. Wilson was the top ranked junior college player in Florida last year.

The fourth slot will belong to freshman Matt Wuller, who was the Louisiana state singles runner up last year. He will also team up with Brown in doubles competition.

Sophomore Adam Seif will play in the No. 5 position. "Adam is a much improved player from last year," Bingham said. Seif won 13 of 25 matches in 1992.

Marc Sedwick, a 6-foot-4 freshman left hander, will be the sixth seed for the Toppers. "He gets better every time he steps onto the court," Bingham said.

Michael Doss and Troy Nunn will be the seventh and eighth seeds and will also be used together in doubles competition.

Next weekend Western will travel to Richmond to face Eastern Kentucky. Other teams on the spring schedule include Kentucky (ranked third in the nation last year), Louisville, Tulane, Southern Mississippi and Sun Belt Conference favorite Texas Pan American.
