Christmas Greetings

On this the third Christmas Anniversary since the launching of The College Heights Foundation, the institution would broadcast to her friends all over Kentucky words of hope and encouragement. From her seat on College Heights the prospect for service never seemed more fair. The Foundation has made 700 different student loans. This has cheered and strengthened those taking advantage of the Foundation to press onward to higher educational achievements. And behind these, other groups are pressing, who, in the future, will become recipients of the help which the Foundation has to offer.

Inspired by the vision of a greater service to the Childhood of Kentucky, may not the Foundation send to the friends of education everywhere the greetings of the season held sacred to Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the Kingdom of God."

Have you sharpened your posts at the top and painted them red?

"Christmas Gifts to the Childhood of Kentucky"

ONCE upon a time an individual built a bungalow and painted it red. He also enclosed it with a fence, the posts of which were sharpened at the top and painted red. His plan became contagious and people far and near proceeded to follow his example.

"The first and greatest gift one can bestow on others is a good example. One watch set right will do to set many by; one that goes wrong may be the means of misleading a whole neighborhood. The same may be said of example."

If YOU are a subscriber to the College Heights Foundation and want your neighbor to subscribe to it liberally, YOU must boost it and give to it liberally YOURSELF. Paint your bungalow red by sending in a PAYMENT on YOUR subscription during the approaching Christmas season and by influencing others to do likewise. The Foundation calls upon YOU to continue the good work which YOU have begun, and not to leave it unfinished. If YOU have made a pledge to the Foundation, kindly arrange to meet this pledge. If YOU have not made a pledge, we trust YOU will do so during the forthcoming Christmas season.

"Go make thy garden fair,
Thou workest not alone
For he whose plot is next to thine
Will note and mend his own."

When the Foundation movement was inaugurated, students and others made liberal pledges. Many made untold sacrifices. They paid the price necessary to make the beginning a success. They met the first real test of their loyalty and obedience. They painted their bungalows red and sharpened their posts at the top and used plenty of paint.

Now comes the final test of their obedience and loyalty. The question is asked, "Will they be punctual in the PAYMENT of their subscriptions or will they be found wanting at the crucial moment?" and the answer echoes back, "Yes, we will meet the acid test of our loyalty and obedience to our Alma Mater, and pay our pledges gladly. We have been practicing economy and thrift throughout the year in order that we might be in position to do something tangible and worth while for the Childhood of Kentucky. Yes, you may depend on us to go our full length for the Foundation."

The original plan to have subscribers pay their pledges each Christmas still obtains. This makes the payments uniform and enables them to take the form of Christmas gifts to the Childhood of Kentucky.

The Foundation is hoping to be the recipient of many Christmas gifts so that it may be able to make others happy by aiding them in the furtherance of their educational efforts and ideals.

The Foundation would like to ask former students to broadcast and disseminate information about the Foundation among the people of their community. Tell them of its objectives. Tell them what it has done and hopes to do. Point out to them the fact that it has made 700 distinct student loans; that the number of beneficiaries is growing all the time, and that it requires a continuous influx of funds to meet these demands. Appeal to them for a subscription, and get them to fill out one of the pledges below. Won't you lend your aid and influence in this and other ways? Keep in mind the fact that the Foundation is an unselfish movement, launched in the interest of Childhood of Kentucky, and that its slogan is, "Not for self but for others."

The forms below may be used by those who desire to make a subscription to the Foundation.
