Senator W. M. Logan
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator Logan:

This is wholly a personal and probably a too impulsive letter, but I am sending it on just the same without discussing the matter with anyone on the Hill. If I could take your arm and walk around the square and talk this over with you instead of trying to write to you, it would be a great consolation; for of course I am worried, and am telling you about it. But your shoulders are broad.

As you know, for the past ten years I have put everything that I have into the collection for the Kentucky Library here at Western; and it means everything to me. All this time I have been looking forward to the completion of the Kentucky Building and to having our collection placed there.

Probably no one has told you just how beautifully the Building is going and that it is working out beyond anything that I have been able to picture. It is lovely and I want you to see it at the very earliest opportunity. You have taken such an interest in getting the P.W.A. grant for us that I believe you will help us out, if it is possible, in this matter also.

For the ten years I have been in this work I have been visiting libraries all over the country and talked to librarians about library equipment--~~and~~ and the type of furnishings that will give the best and longest service. My own personal experience with library work backs up my findings with other librarians. This leads up to the fact that we find Remington Rand and Gaylord, with possibly one other exception, the only ones who are capable of furnishing libraries. No commercial house can possibly do this. Their equipment falls down under the test of time. This I know to be true.

On December 23 when the bids were opened for our Kentucky Building, Remington Rand placed a bid; and a commercial house, or houses, did also. The commercial bids were very much less than the Remington Rand of course. Our Board of Regents and Foundation Board felt so deeply that we should have only the best that they were willing to cut out a number of alternates in order to pay the price of Remington Rand equipment. They did this; and during the taking of the bids, telephoned to the P.W.A. office in Atlanta to ask if the Remington Rand bid might be accepted though it was not the lowest bid. Mr. Ingram was assured over the telephone that this bid would be acceptable under these circumstances. We thought it was all settled.

Senator H. M. Logan

June 21, 1939

Quite a little later the news came from Atlanta that they could not accept this bid and it would have to be relet.

So the architect again advertised for bids and sent out notices to the various houses. Remington Rand at this time had the samples (as was required in the specifications) here, and again placed their bid. At this time they had lowered it by $200 and given us two extra pieces in addition. For some reason, possibly because other competitors realized they could not meet specifications, they did not place a bid; thus Remington Rand was the only bidder last week. Yesterday Mr. Garrett received a notice from Atlanta that because there was only one bidder, bids would have to be let again. We can not understand this, because the day the bids were opened the Remington Rand representative told us that in other instances dealing with W.F.A. they had been given bids when they were the only bidder. Mr. Ingram tells me also that he has been permitted to award bids in other instances when there was only one bidder.

As I said before, the Foundation Board and the Board of Regents are willing to sacrifice completion elsewhere in order to equip properly what we do finish. Mr. Garrett has said over and over that he considers the Library the most important unit in the Building, and I believe you will agree with him. Therefore we feel that this unit should not be cheapened or the money thrown away by using equipment that will not stand the test of time. In addition the Remington Rand furniture is specially designed and made and beautiful to look at. The price they ask is most reasonable, considering the product and its efficiency and beauty. They have made a very low bid for them. Though of course their price can not compete with cheaper commercial products.

As I said in the beginning, this is wholly a personal appeal; but I do wish you could do something to help me out in getting what we should have for the Kentucky Library. I feel this so deeply, and of course have only the ultimate service of the Library at heart. It would be the disappointment of my life if we had to cheapen this. Can you do anything to help me out? I know that you will agree with me in my selection, and for this reason I am appealing to you as a very good friend of mine and as one who is deeply interested in our Kentucky collection.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. Mary T. Moore
Librarian of the Kentucky Collection

Dear Mrs. Moore:

I have your letter of the 21st which I have considered carefully.

I believe that more than one bidder is required before P. W. A. can let a contract, and I am quite sure it is required to accept the lowest and best bid. I am anxious to be of assistance. Therefore, I am taking the matter up with the P. W. A. here to find if there is any way to help.

Assuring you of my very sincere regards, I remain,

IN REPLY PLEASE REFER TO

Docket No. Ky.1360-F

Hon. M. M. Logan,

United States Senate.

My dear Senator Logan:

This is in further reference to your letter of June 26, addressed to Mr. George W. Meuth, in which you enclosed a letter you received from Mrs. Mary T. Moore of Bowling Green, Kentucky, regarding the proposed purchase of certain equipment for the Western Kentucky State Teachers College under the above referenced docket.

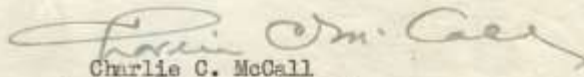

We have communicated with our Regional Office in Atlanta and have been advised that originally bids were taken on work calling for constructing and equipping the library building; that the contractor who was awarded the contract contemplated furnishing equipment other than that manufactured by the Remington Rand Company; that when he was approached by representatives of the College and requested to furnish Remington Rand equipment he demanded that he be paid an additional sum therefor; that inasmuch as his contract already required him to furnish equipment conforming to its specifications, our Regional Office was unable to agree that he should receive any additional sum for furnishing Remington Rand equipment; that it was suggested to the College that a Contract Change Order be issued removing the equipment from the construction contract, the College to receive an appropriate credit, and then that separate bids be taken for supplying the necessary equipment. This procedure was followed and at the scheduled opening of bids only one proposal was received and that from the Remington Rand Company. We are further advised that the Regional Office reached the conclusion that it could not approve of a contract being awarded to the Remington Rand Company because there was a lack of competition. The Regional Office has notified the architect for the College to readvertise the matter and has furnished him with the names of several equipment concerns who have previously bid on equipment contracts in Louisville, i.e., Office Equipment Company, George C. Fetter Company and the Central School Supply Company.

We trust that this action will result in the College receiving bids from all these companies and enable it to obtain the equipment needed for its building without having to pay non-competitive prices therefor.

Dear Mrs. Moore:

In further response to your letter of June 8, I am enclosing a copy of H.R. 3235 - Readjusting the rates of postage on books of fourth-class mail, and for other purposes - as amended and reported to the House, together with copy of the majority and minority reports thereon; you will note that this measure is now on the Union Calendar, but it is my understanding that it will not be brought before the House for consideration and action until possibly early autumn following the Congressional recess period.

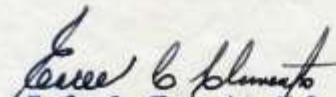

You will note that as this legislation now stands libraries, schools, and colleges are granted rates more favorable than those now in effect, that the Holy Bible and bound portions thereof may be mailed at preferential rates, and that schoolbooks containing students' work sheets will enjoy special rates to a greater extent than at present.

After you have had opportunity to go over the enclosed bill and reports, I would very much appreciate hearing further from you in this connection.

As of possible interest, I am also enclosing a copy of H.R. 3238 - Readjusting the rates of postage on catalogs and similar printed advertising and other matter of fourth-class mail, and for other purposes - as passed by the House on June 28, together with a copy of the report thereon.

Dear Senator Withers,

This is in reply to your letter of May 15 in which you ask whether this Commission has a listing of the materials which will be available for distribution as mementos from the White House, and also, the possible shipping costs for them.

I am sorry that it is not possible to give a listing of the items available. Except for major items of high historical importance, including a few mantel-pieces, the majority of the souvenir materials consists of hand-made bricks, pieces of stone, wood, and metal, old-fashioned nails, hand-hewn lath, and small plaster ornaments. The shipping costs will vary in accordance with the weight of the particular article and the distance it is being shipped.

None of these materials are immediately available. Following the return of the questionnaire from the Members of Congress, the Commission expects to complete the plan for distribution of souvenirs as contemplated by the law. In the meantime, it is not permissible for us to dispose of this materials.

I hope this information will be of assistance to you.

Frank G. Clement

Capitol Hill—

National Democrat Leaders Laud Clement For Speeches

By LESLIE T. HART

Democratic leaders of national prominence have praised Gov. Frank Clement lavishly for his hard-hitting campaign speeches in various parts of the country in behalf of party candidates.

The Governor's office has received numerous letters and newspaper clippings commending Clement and Tennessee has received nationwide publicity because of the ability and effectiveness of the young chief executive.

While Tennessee has received much favorable publicity because of Clement, it also is noted that Clement himself continues to receive an abundance of praise for his speeches and his work for his party.

Regardless of whether hundreds and thousands of persons in Tennessee who helped elect Clement to the first four-year term for a governor agree with his speeches, it cannot be overlooked that he is the first Tennessee chief executive to gain such nationwide recognition.

Lauded by Stevenson

Among the comments received by the Governor's office is one from Adlai Stevenson, former Illinois governor who probably will be the Democratic nominee for President again in 1956. He said:

"Like many Democrats I feel we owe you a large measure of thanks for the results of the late elections. You were a good soldier and those extraordinary talents of yours have earned the gratitude and approval of many."

Lud Ashley, successful candidate for U. S. representative from the Toledo, O., district: "In all seriousness, your visit here was a tremendous boon to every Democrat on the ticket."

Kenneth J. Gray, successful candidate for U. S. representative, from the 25th district of Illinois: "Your most eloquent voice was so possessive I won a seat in Congress by several thousand votes."

'Nothing But Praise'

Melvin D. Hildreth, chairman of the Committee for the Washington Metropolitan Area Dinner for the Democratic Party:

"We have heard nothing but praise for your masterly address. It was superb! We shall watch your climb to even higher political honors with keener interest now that we have had the privilege of meeting you and hearing you speak."

Another letter to Clement shows that the party leaders of the Chicago area give him much credit for the gains the party made in that section in the November election. The letter, from Robert J. Healy of Chicago said:

"You may be confident that your speech, which actually stirred our souls, was responsible in substantial measure for the complete success of the Democratic Party in Cook County."

Chicago's Jake Arvey, Illinois national executive committeeman, wrote Clement that: "Your visit here was a welcome shot in the arm."

Mitchell's Letter

And from the Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell a letter to Clement says:

"Congratulations on your vigorous testimony on the Dixon-Yates matter, as you strengthened our party position considerably. I also want to thank you again for your services as a speaker during the campaign. We heard nothing but complimentary reports from the areas where you were the speaker."

The Decatur (Ala.) Daily said Clement "is leading out on a nationwide crusade on behalf of the people's stake in public power . . . Frank Clement takes a back seat to no man in putting across his honest convictions. In his Decatur oration, Governor Clement opened eyes that have been sleepily shut to the danger now confronting public power not only in the Tennessee Valley but over the whole of the nation."

When Clement was introduced Monday night at the Montgomery, Ala., meeting of some 500 representatives at the annual convention of the Alabama League of Municipalities, U.S. Rep. Albert Raines of Alabama presented the Governor "as the next vice president of the United States," according to the Associated Press.

Raines also said Clement "is the brightest young star on the American political scene."

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Dear Miss Neal:

I am a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, and I write to ask your support.

During all of the fourteen years that I have been privileged to serve our State in the Senate, my purpose has been to work and to speak and to vote for what is best for Kentucky and the Nation.

In these years, it has been my opportunity to have your views and to know your needs and to work with you on matters which are important to our people and in our State.

These views have been of much help to me in the consideration of the great issues which come before the Congress, and I want to continue my work for you in the United States Senate.

I would be grateful for your support on November 8th.

Sincerely yours,

John Sherman Cooper

Dear Miss Neal:

I was very glad to receive your kind letter concerning your interest in S. 3035. Thank you for writing to me. I noted with interest your suggestions that the South Union Shaker Colony buildings in Logan County be preserved, and I have included it in the Record.

On Wednesday of last week, the Senate Interior Committee reported S. 3035 to the Senate, and I understand that action will be taken on this measure next week. I will be present to discuss suggestions you and other Kentuckians have kindly given me.

My wife and I would enjoy a visit to the Kentucky Museum and Library, and I hope we will be able to visit with you some time this summer or fall.

With kind regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS

February 10, 1964

Dear Friend:

I appreciate very much your writing me concerning the tax treatment of dividend income. As I have written in the past, I voted for and spoke for the original legislation in 1954 establishing the dividend exclusion and tax credit provisions, which have been maintained prior to the enactment of the Revenue Act of 1964, which was passed by the Senate on February 7, 1964.

The Senate did not change the House provision which means the amendment in the bill will become law as soon as the President signs the bill. There will be a meeting of House and Senate conferees; but as both Houses agreed upon the amendment, there can be no change in this provision in the conference.

Only one amendment was offered during the debate, by my colleague Senator Morton, on behalf of Senator Dirksen who was ill, which would have improved the House amendment, and would have restored some of the advantages of the tax credit. I voted for the amendment but it was defeated by a vote of 47 to 44.

I am enclosing more detailed information on the history of the tax treatment of dividend income, and also a short statement of some of the principal provisions of the tax bill, which will soon become law. I regret that the present law relating to dividends has been changed, and I want to thank you for giving me your views, which I have supported.

With kindest regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

John Sherman Cooper
