THE BRIDE WORE BLUE

Wedding dresses, mementos, beliefs and traditions of Kentuckians in the late 19th and early 20th centuries will be featured in "The Bride Wore Blue: Wedding Costumes and Customs from Kentucky," a new exhibit opening October 11 at The Kentucky Museum.

The "Bride" exhibit gets its title from not only a blue wedding dress on display that was originally worn in a February, 1885 wedding in Columbia, Kentucky, but also from the symbolism and beliefs concerning the color blue.

In addition to the blue 1885 dress, "Bride" features wedding dresses from 1895, 1906, 1913, 1927 and 1946. A bridesmaid's dress, groom's tuxedo, the dress of a wedding guest and turn-of-the-century lingerie will be on view. Displayed near each wedding dress are documents and mementos relating to that wedding, such as newspaper clippings, photographs or wedding certificates. Mementos from other Kentucky weddings and a group of silver wedding presents will also be exhibited.

An assortment of wedding beliefs, culled from Western Kentucky University Folklore Archives, are printed on the walls of the exhibit, along with excerpts from actual love letters found in the Manuscripts Division of the Kentucky Library.

"The Bride Wore Blue," which replaces "A Bird in a Guilded Cage" exhibits of women's fashions, will remain in place at least one year. The Kentucky Museum is located on the campus of Western Kentucky University. For more information, call 745-2592.

DOWNTOWN REVITALIZATION

Revitalization in the Downtown Commercial Historic District is continuing with the addition of three more projects now under construction.

Mr. David Weaver, owner of the Potter-Matlock Bank and Trust Company, has rehabilitated the formerly vacant second floor. In addition to several office lease spaces, the second floor is the new home of Weaver Appraisal Company. The building's facade has received a new paint color and a new awning is planned for the first floor facade. This building was built circa 1860-1863 by J.R. Golliday and C.R. Edwards and for many years, was the location of Potter-Matlock Bank and Trust Company. Of special interest is the pressed metal facade, one of only four in the historic district.

Hartig and Binzel Master Jewellers will soon move into its new location in the Cooke Building, 431 Park Row. Mr. J.C. James is completing rehabilitation of the building's first floor. Built circa 1880, the Cooke Building was occupied by Sheppard's China Hall and Southern Progress. Since 1900, the structure has a history of housing dry goods and clothing stores.

The most recent revitalization project concerns the Volunteer Fire Department Building at 1019 State Street. Built circa 1870, the structure is owned by Mr. James W. Moore and has been the location of Bill Moore Insurance for a number of years. Damaged by fire in 1911, the building has undergone several alterations and will be rehabilitated to its pre-1940's appearance. The second floor will be adapted for reuse as office lease space.

OLD-FASHION CHRISTMAS

Downey Christmas activities will begin November 25th with a three-day "Open House" sponsored by the Downtown Business Association. The theme for the Christmas season will be an "Old-Fashion Christmas." As part of the "Open House" activities, DBA has made arrangements with Kentucky Classic Carriages, Inc. (Louisville) to give carriage rides downtown. Santa Claus will also make an appearance downtown during the "Open House" with sleigh rides for the children.

In addition, DBA will encourage business and property owners to participate with window displays appropriate to the holiday season theme. DBA is currently looking for items such as furniture, clothing, toys, games, dolls, trains, etc. to be used in the window displays. Anyone wanting to donate the use of these items for window displays, please contact Nancy Lowe at the DBA office, 781-7838.
