Under the able leadership of Romanza Johnson and Mary Frances Willock, Bowling Green's first ever Decorators' Show House is almost ready for its Grand Opening on April 29th. Volunteers from both the Landmark Association and Arts Alliance have put in many hours of work in preparation for the big event. Some 14 interior designers and landscaping designers are now adding the final touches to the rooms and grounds at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wahn Raymer, 1253 State Street.

Opening day on Sunday, April 29th, will include an afternoon Preview Tea from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. Tickets for the Tea are available at $10.00 per person at the door. Also, a preview party will be hosted by Mr. O.V. Clark in the evening. Tickets for the preview party are available at $25.00 per person.

Decorators' Show House 1984 will be open to the public from April 29th through May 13th, 1984 during the following hours: Monday through Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Sunday from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m., and other times by appointment. Tickets will be available in advance for $4.00, $5.00 at the door and $3.00 for students. Advance tickets may be purchased through the Landmark office (781-8106) or the Capitol Arts Center (782-2787). Proceeds from this event will be used to support the on-going programs for the Landmark Association and Arts Alliance.

WARREN COUNTY ARCHITECTURE

Available in May, Architecture of Warren County, Kentucky 1790-1940 is an architectural overview of Warren County containing several sections highlighting Oakland, Smiths Grove and the Smiths Grove Historic District, Woodburn, the Beers and Company Map of Warren County. Several special features include a full list of surveyed properties not pictured, a select bibliography of architectural and local history materials, an architect index, contractor index, style index, building form index, and a fold-out copy of the 1877 D.C. Beers and Company Map of Warren County.

ARCHITECTURAL SALVAGE

Landmark’s architectural salvage material currently includes two fine mantel pieces. A cast iron mantel with insert was donated by Mrs. June Beaulieu, 1850 College Street, built circa 1874-1877. An oak mantel with Classic Revival motifs was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilk and was salvaged from the Lena Runner House, 1350 Park Street, built after 1877. Both mantels are available for $50.00 each. For further information, contact the Landmark office at 781-8106.

NATIONAL REGISTER

From time to time, Landmark receives questions and comments regarding the National Register. The following information concerns the National Register and should be of interest to Landmark members.

The National Register is simply the federal government’s official list of historic buildings, structures, sites, objects and districts eligible for federal funds and for listing in the National Register. Listing in the National Register provides recognition of a property’s archaeological, architectural or historical significance.

In order to be placed in the register, a historic resource must meet criteria written into federal law. The resource is nominated to the register through a state office in each state. Each nomination is screened on the state level by a state review board before being sent to the National Register staff in Washington. The nomination is reviewed by the National Register staff and, if qualified, placed in the National Register.

Created in 1966 by an act of Congress, the National Register was designed as a planning tool for federal agencies. Federal and federally-funded projects have had an unfortunate history of destroying historic resources on a massive scale. As designed, the register would induce planners of projects using federal money to plan the projects around historic resources. Should “planning around” prove impossible, provisions were made for thorough documentation of the resource before destruction.

In practice, the National Register has worked fairly well as a planning tool and has come to serve other purposes as well. Since its inception, the National Register has been a symbolic designation that has helped generate community support for preservation. More recently, the register has become a source of financial leverage that has helped make a great deal of commercial preservation work profitable and therefore possible.

What are the benefits of National Register listing? There are three. First, a public recognition of historic values that merit preservation. For years, listing in the register has fostered pride in ownership of listed properties. This recognition has helped to focus community attention of the need for preservation and has had the general effect of raising property values. Second, a listed property is provided a limited measure of protection from federal and state agencies. This protection is in the form of a wait list for federal funds. Third, listing provides a financial break in the form of a 25% investment tax credit for those who rehabilitate National Register properties for income producing use within a set of rehabilitation guidelines established by the Secretary of the Interior.

What are the restrictions, limitations or disadvantages of National Register listing? For the private property owner, there is only one. Should a National Register property be lost or destroyed before listing, the owner cannot deduct demolition expenses. Other than this, there are no restrictions placed on the owner of private property listed in the National Register. Restrictions are all placed on the federal government, protecting the private owner from ill-advised federal projects.

Basically, the National Register recognizes important cultural resources and serves as a planning tool for federal, state and local agencies. Because the National Register is often misunderstood, this information has been included in the Landmark Report in order to create a better understanding of the National Register.
