BIOGRAPHY

Frank Davis Cain, Jr. was born in Madisonville, Kentucky, on 27 November 1922, the only child of Frank, Sr. and Lurline (Coil) Cain. He graduated from Madisonville High School in 1941 and matriculated at Georgia Tech. His education was interrupted by three years of military service during World War II. After the war he completed a Bachelor's degree of Science in Industrial Management (1948) and a Bachelor's degree of Architecture (1954).

Cain began a private architectural practice in 1955 in Madisonville. In 1957 he moved it to Bowling Green, where he had a brief partnership with Joseph P. Wilk. After this association was dissolved in 1958, Cain located his office in the Professional Arts Building at 727 Laurel Avenue.

Cain's Bowling Green practice had several longstanding clients, including the City of Bowling Green, Warren County, Warren County Board of Education, the Bowling Green Board of Education and Western Kentucky University. Most of the buildings he designed are in Bowling Green; some of the most notable are: Cravens Library, Diddle Arena, an addition to the Kentucky Building and the Environmental Science and Technology Building at WKU; Warren East High School; Bowling Green's Central Fire Station; Brownsville High School and numerous area school renovations and additions. Cain was licensed to practice in Kentucky, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida, and Virginia.

Cain married Esther Rewis Humphries in 1961. He had two children from a previous marriage: Frank D. Cain, III and Neal Vaughn Cain. She had one son, Sam B., and two daughters Barbara and Brenda, from a previous marriage. Cain was a Mason, an emeritus member of the American Institute of Architects, and a member of the Kentucky Society of Architects and Christ Episcopal Church. Cain died on July 13, 1994 in Bowling Green and was interred at Grapevine Cemetery in Madisonville.
