BIOGRAPHY

Samuel Allen Griffin was born in Sumner County, Tennessee, 18 March 1892 the youngest child of George Washington Owen Griffin and his second wife Alice Burk (Rutledge) Griffin. In 1910 he moved to Nashville, Tennessee and secured a job as a station agent with the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company. He retired from the railroad after 50 years, having worked as telegraph operator, ticket seller, clerk, traveling accountant, and system accountant in many of the cities served by the line. In 1912 he was working as a telegraph operator in Franklin, Kentucky when he met his future wife Bess Cecil Bennett. They retired to her hometown in 1960 where he died 15 December 1979.

COLLECTION

This collection consists primarily of two memoirs written by Samuel Allen Griffin. In “My 50 Years Service with The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, or, From October 1, 1910 to September 30, 1960” he comments on the varied railroad jobs that took him from sending Morse code as a young telegrapher to eventually utilizing International Business Machines (IBM) as a system accountant. “A Country Boy” describes his childhood on a farm in rural Sumner County, Tennessee and the family and friends that influenced him. Includes an article about Griffin's 50-year service published in the June 1974 issue of Railway Employees Journal.
