'62 Talisman Dedicated To Dean Raymond L. Cravens

By MICHAEL STEWART

The Talisman yearbook was released Wednesday, May 16, in the basement of Van Meter Auditorium. The feature of this year’s annals was the dedication to Dean

Raymond L. Cravens. Dean

Cravens, who joined the Western faculty in June of 1960,

received his A.B. degree from Western in 1952 and his Master’s degree from Western in 1954. Af-tery earning his master’s degree, he was awarded a Haggan scholarship at the University of Kentucky. There he began the doctoral program in political science in 1960.

The Haggan scholarship was reviewed in 1966, and in 1967 he was made a member of The American Government at the University. In 1967,

Gordon Wilson, who is a member of the University’s Board of Trustees, presented the Talisman

Foundation Scholarship for research on his doctoral dissertation.

He was awarded his doctor’s degree in 1967. In 1968, and he began teaching political science in the History Department here at the opening of the fall term.

While Dean Cravens was attending Western, he was a Business Manager for the College

Heights Herald, and a columnist for the college newspaper.

Several columns written by him reognized C. C. County.

While serving in the Air Force in 1952, he was first prize in a worldwide Disney cartoon contest.

Club Sets Picnic Plans

Plans for a picnic to be held be- fore school is out were discussed at the meeting of the Butler Coun- ty club last Wednesday.

Plans were made where the event could be held: Beech Bend Park, Municipal Park and the Recreation Center and Park as Morgantown.

The picnic will be held Friday, May 20, and is to be attended by members only. Committees were appointed for selecting a site, food, and for recreation. A suggestion was brought up to elect officers for next year at the last meeting of the club for the year.

Social and cultural history.

There are forty-eight pages of illustrations for The Architecture of America which not only presents the major architects from Bufffalo to Philip Johnson, but displays the variety of functions for architecture throughout the widely differing regions of America.

Professor Charles Frankel of Columbia presents a profile of American philosophy during the period in which it came to maturity in The Golden Age of American Philosophy. In almost all the areas concerned with philosophy was found the confidence and ability to make out the true and the good and the excellence in something more—in the power of the mind to make the word over. This is one of most typical emphasis of the golden age.

A moral philosophy of the curriculum, by Philip H. Ehrenfels in Education and the Common Good. The book challenges the readers to understand the major problems in contemporary culture and civilization and competes them to take a stand on the crucial questions of education. It is a basic purpose in a free society.

The cultural theme is a distinction between the life of desire, self-satisfaction narrowly conceived, and the life of worth, goodness and excellence conceived in terms of a moral commitment. The author's persuasive proposals for a new curriculum are centered around his interpretation of intelligence, creativity, consciousness, and reverence. From these four concepts come the human characteristics and values essential for a sound education.

More than 4,000 quotations, presented logically, from opinions and writings by justices of the nation's highest court are selected and arranged by Percival E. Jackson in The Wisdom of the Supreme Court.

Story on equity, Brandeis on labor and labor unions, Douglas on civil liberties, Holmes on the qualities of judges and lawyers—these quotations collected here reflect not only the distinguished qualities of intellect and understanding of individual justices, but also the deep and abiding problems which face the Court—building a structure of law on the foundation of the Constitution.

DONT watch while driving

LESSON 13—A few "dons'ts"

Now that we have learned the how of girl watching, let's consider a few safety precautions. These are not as strict rules (since some experts with highly developed eyeball control enjoy watching while running the high hurdles, for example), but merely as friendly suggestions. 1. Don't watch while driving. 2. Don't watch while drilling teeth (dentist students only). 3. Don't watch while removing Swastikas in the lab. 4. Don't watch while mixing chemicals in the lab. 5. Don't watch girls who are engaged to the captain of the football team. Our final suggestion is to watch a don't. Taste Pall Mall—so smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokable!

19 To Enter Med. Or Dent. School In Fall

Western will have twelve of its more prominent graduating sen-Iors this spring entering medical and dental schools next fall.

With graduation less than two weeks away the sixteen young men and one woman are not natiagulating the end of their education, but are merely completing the first step toward their goal of practicing medicine and denistry. For these entering medical school there remains four years of schooling and a minimum of one year of internship before actual practice starts. Jerome Borch, biology and chemistry major from Louisville, will enter the University of Kentucky next fall. Jerome is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Borch, Sr. René Borch, biology and chemistry major from Millwood, will enter the University of Louisville next fall. Rene is the son of H. H. Borch.

Norman Callier, biology major from Taylorsville, will enter the University of Louisville next fall. Norman is the son of Hazel C. Callier, Rachel Echols, biology and chemistry major from Tompkinsville, will enter the University of Kentucky next fall. Rachel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spole Echols.

Robert Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Franklin, will enter Vanderbilt University in September. Robert is a biology and chemistry major from Lewisburg. Jerry Giles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh P. Giles, will enter Vanderbilt University next fall. Jer-

This will be the last column until September, and looking back over the football, basketball, and spring sports seasons, Murray has had a creditable year in athletics. The announcement of leaving both the OVC Conference and football and basketball plus winning the Ohio Valley Conference at the end of the year are highlights of the past year.

In between interments such as Lee Murray, the team’s most valuable player according to the East, Paul Plummer, Jem Soup, John Tabor, John Ericksen, and R. M. tricky Folklore," which appears in nearly five hundred newspapers throughout Kentucky. The column, now in its twenty-seventh year as a weekly feature, has also been a source for recording some of the material included in two other books by Dr. Wilson - "Passing Testimonies and Fidelity Pacts.

Dr. Wilson graciously gives credit to a great many people who have helped him with his studies. Miss Mary Alice Hanlon, a former student of Dr. Wilson and a native of the Mammoth Cave region, has given a great deal of assistance to the author; her name appears on the title page.

Footways of the Mammoth Cave Region contains sections on the people of the cave region, the language and pronunciation of the cave area, regional words, superstitions, folk medicines, folk expressions, and many other topics, about the area that is so rich in folklore. The book has been published to sell for $1.00 per copy; it will be available at the hotel at Mammoth Cave in the College Heights Bookstore, and at Bernard Metz's downtown Bowling Green.

Dr. Wilson has become such a well-known figure at Mammoth Cave that he has been the guest speaker at the Mammoth Cave National Park for many years. He, in effect, has been adopted by the natives of the region and their descendants.

As a frequent companion to Dr. Wilson on his expeditions to collect folklore, this writer would like to add that there are few people in the world who know as much about this area as the professor. May I also say breathlessly that there are fewer people in the world that can keep up with his pace.
