ALEXANDER HEARD BY STUDENT BODY: URGES IDEALISM

On Monday, October 3, Professor W. H. Alexander made a practical suggestion to the student body about how they could improve upon their present state of affairs.

"I believe," he said, "that we should do something to improve the conditions around us. Our campus is not as nice as it could be, and our student body is not as organized as it should be. We need to work together to make things better."

The students were enthusiastic about the idea, and many expressed their willingness to help in any way they could. The meeting ended with the students forming a committee to work on improving the campus.
