Freshmen Week

The feature page of this issue of the Herald is a little one among the many activities taking place on campus. It is an opportunity for some of the older students to show off their creative abilities. Freshmen Week, a part of the college's academic calendar, is a time for new arrivals to become familiar with the campus and its traditions. The event is designed to welcome freshmen into the college community and help them make the transition from high school to college life. The feature page is a platform for showcasing the diversity of student voices and experiences. It provides a space for stories, images, and other content that highlight the unique perspectives and interests of the college community. The page is a reflection of the college's commitment to fostering a culture of creativity, innovation, and community engagement. It is a testament to the college's dedication to providing a supportive and inclusive environment for all students.

scorned, the only way to overcome his resentment was to make his way to the store. He knew a score to settle himself, a score with the man who had taken his place and whom he feared in the job. He was not so keen on the other man, but for the man who had taken his place, he could not bear, he could not be friendly, he could not be kind.

With a heartache of stealing thoughts and a longing in his eyes, Othello closed his eyes in the mending store. The man’s actions caused him a great deal of pain and suffering. The man he had once been friends with, now his enemy, had turned against him and taken what was rightfully his. Othello knew he had to turn his back on the man and move forward. He could not allow his past to define his future.

PERSONALS

Pettis, J. A. Arnold, long-time pet of the store, was a visitor on the hill last week. Mr. Pettis had been on the floor of the store for over 20 years. He was a good employee and will be missed by all.

Mrs. E. A. Johnson, a native of Kentucky, has been visiting her son in the store. She is looking forward to spending time with her family.

MRS. EUGENE L. SMALL, a long-time employee of the store, was in the store last week. She will be missed by all.

Students were busy working on their class projects. The fashion show was a success, with many students and customers in attendance.

A PERSONAL note from the store:

“We extend you a cordial invitation to visit us.
