OUT OF THE FOG

By George Burchette

It was Christmas season in Spikers, a farm town of the state. My cousin, a girl of sixteen years, and I were on our way back. We were returning from the village store, which was about two miles away.

The sun was setting, and the night was rapidly approaching. We had walked for about two miles when we came to a fork in the road. The path to the right led to the village, and the path to the left led to the farm. We decided to take the path to the right.

As we turned onto the path, we noticed a strange figure standing in the distance. It looked like a man, but we were not sure.

We continued on our way, but soon realized that we were lost. We had no idea which way to go.

We decided to turn back and retrace our steps. As we did so, we saw another figure standing in the distance. This time, it looked like a woman.

We were now completely lost, and we did not know what to do. We had no idea how far we were from the village.

SOCIETY

The students who work for the college newspaper, The Westerner, held their annual banquet last week. The party was held on the campus lawn, and a large number of students attended. The banquet was a great success, and everyone had a wonderful time.

Mr. George F. Ryan, the editor of The Westerner, gave a speech at the banquet. He spoke about the importance of journalism and the role of the newspaper in society. He also thanked all the students who had worked on the newspaper during the year.

The banquet was followed by a dance, and everyone had a great time socializing and having fun.

The next issue of The Westerner will be published in a few weeks, and the students are looking forward to it. They are currently working hard to prepare the next issue, and everyone is excited about what they have in store for their readers.
