Kentucky’s Jesse Stuart Slated For Chapel Speech

Jesse Stuart, poet who has often been called "The Robert Burns of America," will speak in chapel here Monday, July 28.

Today’s literary mind consider Stuart as standing in the line of succession of such great writers of native verse as Joaquin Miller, Walt Whitman, James Whitcomb Riley, Eugene Field, Carl Sandburg, Vachel Lindsay, Edgar Lee Mas Queen.

The speaker, according to Lewis Casseret, "was in the Kentucky Hill-land of which he writes." Born in Humanities, Kentucky, he was able to occasionally attend school; by dint of and continuous effort he worked his way through high school, through college, even able to do a year of graduate work at Vanderbilt University.

This son of the soil has ever had the mind of a poet. It is in this labor he has learned to know the man and the man’s land. His poems are the simple people of a part of America.

As a boy he had to help his father on the farm. He learned the habits of the earth, the chores of a farm.

He has been a farmer, a poet, a writer.

Students Work At Mammoth Cave Park

By Joa Thornsberry

MAMMOTH CAVE, Ky. — Americans look forward to the park as a great place to spend a day or a week, but to the students at Mammoth Cave Park, it can be a place to live.

This month, some 150 students — most of them seniors in various high schools — will spend the month of July living and working at the park, providing education and entertainment to visitors.

The program is part of the park’s Summer Work Program, which offers high school students an opportunity to gain work experience and learn about the natural and cultural history of the park.

The students, who come from a variety of backgrounds and geographic areas, will be housed in park dormitories and will work in a variety of positions, including hospitality, maintenance, and education.

"It’s an incredible opportunity for students to gain hands-on experience in a variety of fields," said Emily Price, the park’s education manager.

The program is open to high school students who are enrolled in a public or private school and who are at least 16 years old.

The summer work program at Mammoth Cave is one of the largest in the country, with 150 students participating this year.

The students work from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day, and are given a chance to learn about the park’s history and natural resources, as well as gain valuable work experience.

"This is a great way for students to get involved with our park and learn about the natural environment," said Price.

The students are housed in two cabins located on the park grounds, and are provided with meals and housing.

"We want to make sure our students have a comfortable and enjoyable experience," said Price.

The students will work on a variety of projects, including cleaning and maintaining the park’s facilities, setting up and breaking down events, and interacting with visitors.

"It’s a great opportunity to learn about the park and make a positive impact," said Price.

The summer work program is supported by a grant from the National Park Service, and is open to students of all ages.

If you are interested in participating in the summer work program at Mammoth Cave, visit the park’s website at mammothcave.nps.gov for more information.

For questions, contact Emily Price at 270-656-2761 or emily.price@nps.gov.
Community Service

When the Kentucky Press Association met this month to pick the top weekly papers in the state, Western students and former students carried away a shareable number of awards.

We have received word of awards won by Mark Sink, Larry Stone, Amon Stone, Ralph Ulrey, L. L. Valentine, Howard Ogles, and Al Walters—all, former students on the Hill—by Denny Gibbons, a member of the Heralds staff. There may have been others:

Perhaps no other college in the state boasts a greater number of weekly papers, since of course, we get more than one. From Bardstown to Franklin, and all points between, there are weekly papers in every community. Everyone from the advertiser to the farmer in some remote section is eager to know what his neighbors are doing and thinking.

To all of these former Westerners now engaged in the community's daily life we extend the congratulations of the College Heights Herald. We offer our congratulations on the superb job done in the past and our best wishes for continued progress in a future of community service.

A Story—Almost

The day was not on hand to report what was almost a smilutation. Luckily the alert driver had perfect brakes and stopped inches of the seven-year-old who had darted out in front of the automobile.

This one second grader was lucky, but hundreds of children are not. They do not heed the rule of "stop, look, and listen."

A great number of the persons now enrolled at Western will all some day carry children who do not heed the rule of "stop, look, and listen."

Somebody has failed to teach that seventh-year-old, and a future lawyer, businessman, or teacher was almost wiped out.

We're glad that it was only our story that was killed. Better write about children being hurt, and tell it in pieces and will fewer such stories in the future if TEACHERS TEACH SAFETY FIRST.

Mechanical Brains

Scientists at the University of California, Los Angeles, have developed a mechanical brain, which can translate languages at the flip of a switch. It also does mathematics.

It can not think.

But in this thing we call our universe, only man is endowed with the ability to think. It has been original for us to think about every step of progress since the time Eve thought the forbidden fruit might be tasty enough to take a chance on.

In the past twenty years we have learned to teach its students to think. Yet, too many of our courses require not that one think. All the teacher has to do is teach its students the facts. They do not have to become mechanical brains, because they have heard that mathematics was invented by someone else, they say.

So they go on learning facts. And the teachers go on year after year teaching the same old facts until they can do it while they sleep. Leave thinking for someone else, they say.

We hope they don't start manufacturing mechanical brains on the assembly line. It would put some of our colleges out of business. Some teachers would be put out of work by the robots, too. JUST THINK.

Prescotterns is the one word that describes our secret thoughts and ambitions.

As people grow older, the weather looms larger. With the young, any kind of day has possibilities of a picnic.
Crabb Extolls Beauty Of Ky.

The distinct advantage offered by Kentucky, through its farm land for granted by our native, is important enough that one cannot go out of the state for a successful and happy life. Dr. Alfred L. French, well-known and respected professor in the Western Kentucky University, in a speech entitled "All Things Beautiful".

Immaculate Kentuckian

I am a Kentuckian, said Dr. French, the Warren county native said, "To this day, my home is the University of Kentucky, and I shall continue to live in that state and be a Kentuckian as long as I live.

Miss Lynn Tells Of Experiences In New York

"I was a student at New York City as much as a student of Columbia University," said Miss June Lynn, who has returned to her duties at Western after spending a semester's leave of absence to study at Columbia.

Miss Lynn called the series of summer symposiums, and features which she attended in New York a most inspiring part of her stay and she also attended many plays and some concerts.

Among the great men of poetry who composer of the poems were William Butler Yeats, Charles Baudelaire, and Randall Jarrell, Jarrell has written a review on Hart Crane for the AMERICAN MEN OF LETTERS.

"She was a member of the Georgia, and there she has been much admired by the students of the department of the University of Kentucky, he is looking forward to an "outstanding Kentucky Fair.

Dr. Smith Returns From Medical Meeting

Dr. Charles B. Smith, a captain in the army, has just returned from New York City, where he has been attending a national medical conference.

Dr. Smith, who is now completing his three years of residence work at the University of Iowa City, where he is specializing in pediatrics, is visiting his parents, Dr. and Mrs. B. H. Smith, this week, and his wife, who accompanied him, came here, are both graduates of Western University.

Seniors Give Bulletin Board To College

An outdoor bulletin board was given the school by the June and July senior classes of 1960.

Serving as a memorial, the bulletin board has been erected in front of the Cedar House. It has a copper frame and is of wrought iron construction, with space for notices behind hidden glass doors.

The memorial committee which selected the gift for the college consisted of Wendell Burns, chairman; Carolyn Cox, and other seniors.

CABIN ON Watcher Told By "Outlook"

Weather predictions for the coming holiday days may be found by keeping an eye on the board of the prognostication department.

The "Outlook," a chart-map publication furnished by the Weather Department, predicts temperature and precipitation in particular areas in advance. This material is printed twice weekly, and is reserved for weather stations. It is compiled and directed by Mr. William Cock of the 17th Weather Bureau.

The state board of the American Association of University Women, of which Mrs. M. L. Matthews is vice-president, has approved the chart, as far as it goes, for 20 years of local and national use.

The Outlook predicts:

Dick Cassidy Wins Contest

Thomas Richard "Dick" Cassidy, former Western student, was named as first prize for novel writing in the 20th Annual Avery Industries and JohnHopewell creative writing contest.

The award was presented by Jay Cowen, of the University of Michigan English department, through which the annual awards are made.

"The Secret Land" was the title selected for the contest, in which there were three first prizes and five honorable mentions. The entries were made through the University of Michigan.

The winner is a native of Bowling Green and a graduate of Bowling Green High School. He plans to study journalism at the University of Michigan in the fall. Cassidy has attended the University of Michigan, where he was also a student of the mathematics.

He has just been named research assistant for the State University of Oregon and will begin work this fall. Judges for the Hopkins Award contest were Paul Carrier, James Allen, and Anthony Schechter, Jr., 12. All new entries.

Dye Gets Award For Life Saving

The heroism of a 17-year-old College High student, who faked his life to rescue two others from Hare's river after their boat had capsized, was recognized Tuesday night by American Legion Post 25.

Jack Dye was awarded the American Legion Medal of Honor by H. D. Wilcox, president of the Citizens National Bank.

Dye was serving as a life guard at McPherson's colon in March when a small motor boat carrying three fishermen overturned on the far side of the river.

Without hesitating, Dye shed his clothing and swam to the founding boat. Two of the fishermen were pulled from the water by the youth, and a third, Wilcox Bailey, 25, who was drowned.

After rescuing Davis Travis, 28, and T. A. Willen, 27, both of Bowling Green, Dye made several attempts to locate Bailey, but had to give up his search because of exhaustion.

Dye has been recommended for several other heroism medals.

HOLLOWAY VISITS

Lieutenant Kenneth Holloway, physics graduate, visited the campus last week. Now at Fort Benning, Ga., he will be stationed in the Panama Canal zone this fall.

Students Invited To Join Religious Activities Here

By Juanita McCollum

Many a parent has probably sent his son or daughter off to college with a few mementos. Undoubtedly, he has heard of the "sin and evil" of college life. He has taught his son or daughter what is good and bad. He has brought him up in the church. Now when his son reaches college and is no longer under his wing, he wonders just what will become of his offspring. What few parents seem to realize is that Western does have a religious life.

To guide this part of college life is a council of students who are dedicated to or interested in full-time church work. This council, the Student Religious Council, is called the Western Religious Council. The council is composed of all denominations. They elect officers who guide its activities.

Religious Emphasis Week

Each fall this council sponsors Religious Emphasis Week. During this week we have on or more students come to campus to explain their faith and what it means to them. They also hold daily meetings in the Student Chapel where worship services are held.

Ten Added To Join Religious Activities Here

Ten persons have joined the Western faculty for the summer term in the past five years. Of these, three have returned after leaves of absence.

Miss Justin Juhn has returned to the University as head of the English department. She served as a student teacher last year at the University.

Miss Eileen Dutton is back in the library. She has been the librarian for the University.

Miss Brenda Florance has returned to the University after a year's leave of absence for graduate work at the University of Kentucky.

Music is being taught by Miss. Opie Thompson. She has returned from a two-year leave which she spent at Ralston College, Florida.

Replacing Jehovah Harris and Miss Gertrude Bale as Piano instructor for the summer term in the Music Department in Miss Mary E. Miller, who taught last year at Belfast College, Hopkinsville. Miss Mitchell received the MA from the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y., and taught at Ralston College, Mussie, Ind.

The education department has new faces in its summer staff. Miss Ruth Butler, MA, is supervisor of elementary education in Jefferson County. Miss Betty Cook, education specialist in Hopkinsville, is teaching in the Hopkinsville city school system. Miss Cannon, education specialist in the Harrodsburg area, is teaching in a special four-week course in Accounting for Personnel. Miss Blackshear, who is traveling in an organized program, is teaching high school education courses.

The Belize Presbyterian church is offering a "Start With Me" camp for children. The camp will be held June 26-30. Miss Stanger, who is leading the camp, will be at the University during the summer for an educational program.

Music Program Given By Faculty Artists

A program of music was heard at chapel Wednesday morning.Performed by the Singers, the program included a group of songs by the Student Council, "Invitation to Rejoicing," next week, a special concert performance of a children's program. The selection was "Here Abide the Seven Muses," "The Figure," "Nanogial," and "I'll Be There for You" by Handel. The Music Program has been sponsored by the Students.

The Student Council, under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth Stanger, has planned a number of events for the summer. Miss Stanger during the regular school year is Dewey Green's High Librarian, and Miss Blackshear is the double at the Library as Flax High Librarian.
