Toppers Invited To Play
In National Invitation

Western's fast-breaking Hillsitters, who recently won the Big Eight championship in the National Invitation Tournam-ent at Kansas City, New York City, according to an official announcement, will be invited to play in the Tournament.

The Hillsitters, ranked among the nation's top five teams, will face the second team selected for this 12-team tourney at New York City, March 15.

Lost 100-80 to Stanford on Saturday, the second team selected for this year's tournament, the Hillsitters have announced plans to attend the tournament.

In a game marked the seventh time the Hillsitters have been invited to play in the National Invitation Tournament since its inception in 1947.

Ohio Valley Conference title squared off for the first time in history on Thursday.

Western Kentucky and Murray will face each other in a game that will determine the conference champion. The winner will receive the OVC trophy.

The game time is 2 p.m. at Marlin Memorial Gym.

"We're looking forward to playing Murray," said Coach Carl Carlson, "It's always a good game and they have a good team."

Students Invited to Toppers Club

The new student section, Toppers Club, was invited to the Toppers Club at Bowling Green State University. The club was formed to encourage student participation in campus activities.

Miss McWhorter Takes Speech Contest Honors

Elizabeth McWhorter, a freshman, was chosen as the best speaker in the annual speech contest at Bowling Green State University, February 11.

The contest was organized by the Women's Fraternity, and the speeches were given in the classroom by members of the various fraternities.

Alice Allen, a senior from Bowling Green State University, was the judge of the contest. She gave a well-received speech on "The Importance of Speech." The speeches were given in the classroom by members of the various fraternities.

"Down In The Valley," the musical production presented at the College Heights Herald on February 11, was the highlight of the evening.

The production was directed by the late Dr. Clifton W. Morgan, and the musical was composed by Dr. Paul C. Morgan.

Three Strikes

A neat, young lady seated before Van Meter's microphone Wednesday, Feb. 11, and in a small, firm voice delivered her speech as one of the contributors to the Intercollegiate Debate. Miss Nancy Hallman, the neat, young lady was Mary Alice Hanlon, and her speech was entitled "Three Strikes, College Student."

The contest was won by another participant, but Mary Alice created a furor that is just now simmering down to a quiet blaze. An3d a great number of faculty and students expanded a verbal tangle here on campus. Students and professors alike have been jolted by her statement.

Miss Hanlon drew aside the curtain and gave the public her views on stealing, a topic of prime importance. "It is not right," she added. "In the country we live in, stealing is not right. It is wrong for stealing to be brought into the college, and the wrong students are here."

In reviewing Miss Hanlon's speech, I borrow from a book reviewer's method of criticism. The first question to ask is; "What did she attempt to do?" She attempted to show students that there can still be a self-respect in life, even on a college campus. She failed in this mission. In showing that students steal, cheating, stealing and other questionable acts is wrong, it can be said that the truth may have slipped by some of us across the face like a small fish, but can we say that these conditions exist?

The comments following this speech talk were less than worthy to consider as the speech itself.

The students were divided on both sides of the fence, and a few were trying to straddle it. One popular girl felt that the speech was given to "open the eyes of the Dead."

Arts & Crafts Club Holds Banquet

The Arts and Crafts club held its annual banquet Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Maurice King Home. Members of the club and their guests were present. After which games were played and many prizes were being awarded to the winners.

The banquet was held at the Western Trade School. Dr. and Mrs. U. K. Thayer, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blevins, a relative of the Western Trade School, were hosts for the occasion. Members of the Arts and Crafts club were present.

Musical Notes

The halls of the music building echoed with the Latin beats of the maracas and the tango put two long ago. The irresistible rhythms drew undergraduates back from the floors of the building and set them feet moving "a tempo." The Western band was playing for the Cinita Hills group, who was the winner of the "a tempo." The vocal department had sighted good samples of its versatility in a recent choral performance. Variety was the spice of the program, and music audiences rewarded with rousing ovations.

References to the music of "Down in the Valley," the opera to be given by the Mask and the English departments in cooperation, have been in progress for several weeks, and enthusiasm is running high. The rehearsals are being thoroughly enjoyed by everyone, even the director, who is being his appraisal of the way things are going. From here is appears that the opera will be well-won and hearing.

Some of Western's potential Prod Wartime are traveling in Lexington today to attend a state vocal clinic held by U. K. and sponsored by the Kentucky Music Educators Association.

From Bach to "jive" is the span to be covered by the band in an informal choral concert, February 18. One of the numbers will be a gypsy instrumental, featuring members of the Gypsy Kings, La Bella Frank Mitropoulos, George Giellespie, and Walden Coats. There will also be some South American dance patterns to demonstrate the Latin beats mentioned above. It promises to be a varied and entertaining program.

Book Marks

By GORDON CRAWFORD

How many of the great books have you read?

A new set of these books selected by Robert M. Hutchins, Montoya, and others of their community, and published by the Encyclopaedia Britannica, has been recently added. This edition is known as the "New Library" and is available in the reading room. It will be interesting to see how many of the authors you have read.

A most interesting feature of this set of fifty-four books is the annotation, an index to the set and an index to the ideas. There are about 5,000 topics in the encyclopedia as a whole, the topics being divided among 1,000 chapters, according to the great ideas under which they fall. Here we find through the index where such ideas as friendship, art, democracy, state government, in return, are discussed in these great books published over a period of thirty centuries. It is monumental work.

Professor Hutchins and Adler believe that only a knowledge of these classics can make an "informed electorate which they believe, is our only sure guarantee of peace."

Go into the library, browse among the great books, which took four years and cost $10,000,000 to collect, and borrow the one book you wish to read this month. How about reading a great book now?

The library has many books whose titles are included on the best seller list of 1952 and are also popular on our campus.

A list of these books includes among others the following: "The Bible" (2 vols.), "Thomas Wolfe: "The Caine Mutiny," Herman Wouk, "West with the L轻, John Steinbeck; My

When we meet that nothing is impossible, and the evil becomes less by the knowledge that we are doing our best."

The literature list also received several other recent books recently, including "The little, black diet," which includes "The Little, black diet," "The Little, black diet," "The Little, black diet," "The Little, black diet," "The Little, black diet," and "The Little, black diet," all by the Valley, Tom Han.

Billy Miller Named Pres. Of Crafts Club

Billy Miller, senior from Owensboro, was elected president of the Arts and Crafts club at its monthly meeting, February 2, at the Industrial Arts building.

Other newly elected officers include Raymond Jeffries, vice-president; Owen Lawrence, secretary; Ron Cragle, sergeant-at-arms; James Haladay, and John Green, reporter.

A number of books are on this list that have been discussed, the meeting for the open shop is to be held at the close of this session.

Sign Pro Football Contracts

Jimmy Feix and Bobbie Simpson, Western grid stalwarts, have recently signed contracts to play professional football with the New York Giants.

Feix, Little All-American quarterback last fall, and Simpson, last year's leading rusher, will be in the Garden next year when completing their college work in a New York school. They are pending assignments to the Air Force next January.

Simpson's contract becomes effective when he obtains his degree from the Air Force, which he expects to be within two to four years. He was filling an end post for the Hilltoppers last season and also played linebacker.

Both Toppers are currently enrolled in the Air Force ROTC.

Feix has signed for a salary of $6,000 plus expenses and Simpson is to receive $5,000 a year.

MURRAY TOPS WESTERN 77-67
IN CRUCIAL OVC TILT

Murray topped Western 77-67 Saturday night in a crucial OVC tilt. This set up a possible three-way tie for Murray for the OVC championship.

With 1:34 seconds gone in the game, Dick Gott, Murray player was flying to the floor in a freak accident from which he gained a nasty crack on the forehead. With both teams equally matched, Murray took advantage and was leading 25-13 by the end of the first period. When the half time buzzer had sounded Murray was ahead 33-25.

Only once after that were the Thoroughbreds challenged. With 4:07 seconds left in the game Western was within seven points, 42-35. Their hopes were then killed when Garcelle B. Murray's high scorer add three points. His total for the night was 28. Marshall for Western also had 28.

Ted Rosenkragt, substitute for the injured, regular Gott, was a stand-out for Murray as he sank 8 of 16 field goal attempts. Western figured to let Kononetzki run loose and double up on Bowie Coll." Western was once more high scorer with 29 points. This proved fatal, however, as Kononetzki fumbled one field goal in the book.

Western had a field goal percentage of 54.4 percent while Murray made 43.7 percent. From the foul line, however, Kononetzki trimmed one field goal in the book.

Mr. John E. Kown, Bill '40, is teaching in the Law College at St. Louis University. His new address is 740 Yale Avenue, University City, Mo.
