Western Allocated $1,192,235 In New Budget Bill

Western has been allocated $1,192,235 plus all proceeds from auxiliary enterprise for the college in appropriation under the new Chancellor Budget for the school year 1955-56.

As compared with the 1954-55 school year, about 12,100 more is proposed to be appropriated for the college next year, while the total proposed budget for the 1955-56 school year was $1,192,235.

President E. Kelly Thompson said that this increase will enable the college to add a number of courses which will be of interest to the students.

He went on to say the entire appropriation will be used for the general appropriation plus tuition and agency enterprises.

Eastern State College was allocated $1,241,800 for 1955-56, $1,261,905 for the 1955-56 school year, as compared with $1,239,040, or an increase of 260,455.

President Thompson said the reason for these two colleges being above the previous allocation is that they had more dormitories. These dormitories have been added to Eastern State College for the use of students.

Gregory College was added to the college for the use of students.

All courses will be held by the students in the college.

New Budget Bill

The new budget bill for the college was approved by the Board of Regents in a joint meeting in the president's office.

We Can Solve Problem
To the educator, a dream college would be one as liberally endowed that it could furnish the best in educational equipment and facilities. This is a common dream that many educational leaders have come to admit.

In some instances, with the aid of wealthy alumni and interested philanthropic souls, this goal has been reached and surpassed, but for the most part, the dream is still a dream.

In the majority of colleges, like Western, the struggle with a limited budget, necessitates that the college gives the best educational possible to its students, but when graduates from colleges with large endowments look back and reflect on the experience they have had in their home institutions, they are always amazed at how well educated they were, so "spared" in their so called handiwork. Western is even more fortunate than most colleges in its situation. We have been well educated, not largely because we have a superior faculty, making them equal to any in the country, but because we are the least fortunate.

Admittedly we have a fine teaching staff, but we have a six-day week. Our equipment often fails to measure up to the quality of our teachers. Why is this true? The administration has accomplished minor miracles in proving equipment on its limited budgets. Our state is not the richest in the nation and it cannot afford to lavish a budget for education as other states.

Since this is true, the solution of this problem can be blamed on us, the student body. Through our carelessness, a large amount of money, which could be spent on equipment, is wasted. It’s similar to repairing and replacing old equipment. A large amount of equipment can be maintained, if we are willing to pick up deliberate, and perform other duties. The quality and quantity of equipment at Western can be vastly improved if we develop a deep sense of campus pride. We urge you to construct something instead of complaining about the state of the campus.

Orchestra Commended

Who said that good music could only be appreciated by the Philosophers of Ancient Athens.

There has been long a misconception about good music and good music who is qualified to enjoy it. Many maintain that music is more of a religious thing, and to enjoy it, some spiritual or personal sentiment is its enjoyment, and others feel that, if they lack this understanding, really good music has no place in their lives.

An effort to present good music with an explanation of its origins and the background of the compositions is made by the Music Department, under the direction of Howard Carpenter and Olm Puhl, who have organized a series of concerts. Each of the concerts is an opportunity to enjoy the music, and to reflect on the background.

The concerts are held weekly on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, and held only by very small bodies. The concerts have been repeated several times, and are becoming increasingly popular. The concerts are held in the Music Hall, and all are invited.

The calendar of past events is used to select the music, and each concert will be held for a period of several weeks.

Kentucky Building News

By Ken Burch

The Kentucky Educational Center has the very fine collection of church records in three buildings, which is in different ways.

The church building, marriage and death may be obtained from the Presbyterian and Episcopal churches.

Many of these records are in the church and American citizenship. They were the records of the churches in the first 100 years of Kentucky. The records of these churches are maintained in the church and are not in the church.

The oldest records in the collection were from Miss Maket, you, but the most beautiful of the 13th century facades, in the church, and the church, which is a little building, was in the church, and the church.

There is only one boy in the old church, and he is of the same age as the other churches, and he is of the same age as the other churches. Both are quite rare. There is also a church, and two that are most uncom-

These records of the church, called the "church", are three pieces of interesting data which reflect the times in which they were written. The records were so much discussed as anything to the church, and were the church of the people, typical in many households. The church was a house of worship, and the church was a house of worship, typical in the country. The church was the church of the world, and typical in the country.

We are certainly going to get through with clothes, eat corn, and we have a chance to wear clothes, eat corn, and we have a chance to wear clothes, eat corn, and we have a chance to wear clothes, eat corn, and we have a chance to wear clothes, eat corn.

Some people are cynical, and as is my present of "duty" in life, being an active member in all the cures, and make little of the little thing to correct you. They have little interest in being a "duty" person in their own lives, and they will do little to assist others, and they will do little to assist others.

Roommates are wonderful creatures, but they are not always ideal. You may want to get your girfriend's sweetie-mate, a date, or any other companion, and you may want to feel comforted when you have the blues and in situations, you may have an education in themselves.

Arts And Crafts Sponsors Exhibit In Van Meter

A wood-burning lathe and modern solid maple desk are the features in the Arts and Crafts Club exhibit in the Rooms of Van Meter. Richard Baker, a ’40 graduate in Industrial Arts made the lathe for a project in his machine shop course. The solid maple desk is a project of William Paul a senior in Industrial Arts.

Projects made in the fall semester sesions appear in the open shop in the spring as the students take them home. The Arts and Crafts club is sponsoring this exhibit so these projects made the first semester may be seen.

Library Notes

The library has recently received the Rand McNally Commercial Atlas and Marketing Guide. This is a very valuable reference book giving much information on other cities. It is especially good for economic geography.

The guide contains economic maps of the U.S. showing the distribution of crops and live stock, mining and manufacturing, and railway trade. It has maps of the states with statistical facts on information about county populations and areas, railroads, air lines and air ports, post offices, banks, factories, marketing dates, and others. Also shown are world maps giving world information of world resources.

Other recent additions to the Library include two books given through the Marion Leffly Memorial Fund:

"Outside Readings in Psychology," by Harley, Birch, and Barkley.

"Human Learning and Childen's Psychology," by Julian B. Rotter.

Medea, a freely adapted variation of the Greek tragedy, will be presented by the Western Players, to celebrate their tenth anniversary. It will be performed on April 24 and 25, in Van Meter Auditorium. This is the first time that anything of this nature has been given at Western.

To quote from Russell H. Miller, the director, "Medea has been chosen because it is the most playable and the most active adaptation of any of the Greek originals of Sophocles and Euripides. It has been popular not only with commercial, but also with college audiences."

George Beeler, Mr. Miller director, Clyde Biggs, Billy Short, and Adam Messer.

Western Holds
Practice Debate
With Murray

Western's Debate squad returned on March 22 from a day's match with the Murray selection. Though the debates were won decisively, Western acquitted itself incredibly;
according to the collapse of competition.

The debates were in the nature of a practice round for the major tournament competitions in which the Western squad participated in the last two weeks.

Debaters Return From Southern Tournament

Women's Intercollegiate Debate team was sponsored by the Southern Speech Association of which Western is now a member. Participating in the tournament were George Beeler,
Jim Owens, Hay White and Lacy
Wilson.

The subject was the controversial national topic of the year - Racial Feud: That the non-Agricultural Industries of the United States should guarantee their employees an equal wage. The standard type of debate procedure was used.

Besides debating, the tournament featured several formal events, such as an address Reading. After Dinner Speaking, Recitation, Impromptu and Informative Speech.

Jim Wilson Dubbed
Sir James By Red Cross

James Wilson was "Knights of Valor" in saving a 3 year- old girl from drowning last fall.

Wilson received the "No. 1 Citizen of the Red Cross" award and was dubbed "Sir James" at a Red Cross luncheon in Louisville recently.

The theme of the luncheon was "Knights of Old," thus the reason for Wilson's Knightedness.

A life guard at Cox's Lake in Manchester, Wilson credited his Red Cross training in resuscitation in saving the girl's life.

Life In A Girl's Dormitory

Life In a girl's dormitory is unusual because you don't believe half the things you happen in this habitat. I didn't—until I lived in one. . . .

To give you the proper background, the year is 1947 and it begins with "Freshman Days." The anguishing freshman nerves are in a bang! For weeks she has been parking up the street. Now the big moment has arrived, which meant not only buying tickets to the spring to third floor with three huge suitcases, but also cloths, shoes, clothing, book, and a typewriter. This all above you doesn't disturb them—but oh, her peer pressure.

The senior, who has learned better by now, carriage only a non-case and a hat box. Books, such as high school annuals and scrap books, are conspicuously absent. Experience is a dear teacher.

There are always a few freshmen who threaten to return home disillusioned with the second day. After a bill of permission from upperclassmen their determined minds are usually changed and they find they were merely homesick, not actually unhappy.

Dorm rules are a must and a set of house rules hanging in every room. This still doesn't prevent a girl from forgetting to check once occasionally or piling a black mark during quiet hours.

In general, girls are good managers of their time. They turn in their cleaning room or putting the time through the housekeeping exchange. But guess what happens when Ann Rude goes into 7th hour and her roommate is a step behind in her work. She covers her roommate is a step behind in her work.

Mrs. C. H. Fleezer, bowing to pressure, was arranged and curator of the spelling bee.

Club Searches For Projects

Reports from several committees were given at the regular meeting of The College Heights Herald, possibility of the club helping the different welfare agencies here in Bowling Green.

The meeting was held in the Mains room of the Student Center at 9:00 p.m. last Monday night April 2.

During the meeting Curtis Wiles, president of the club made the suggestion that each member of the club sponsor a child as a party to be given by the club in the future. If anyone is interested or knows of some project that the club could perform please contact Dr. Willam Lawson of the Economics department or any member of the club.

The obvious "who's" and "why's" were finally settled when everyone decided that the small formal or the flowers for the ball. Maybe all this sounds like a committee meeting to the reader, but to many, many girls on the Hill this is fine.

Western's "Mr. Big" To Lead Hilltoppers Nine

By John Lyon

Western's big double-barrel threat and the "Mr. Versatile Athlete" on the Hill, Bob Daniels, has fairly helped out of his usual legendary baseball bops into the Hilltoppers playing lineup.

The big, affable right-hander, who is already being eyed by top baseball scouts, is the Top's number one moundman this season. The towering "TV" Junior from Tuskegee, Ky., who played such a major part in the Hilltoppers closing drive to finish off co-champions of the OVC basketball tournament, has added his expertise to the Hilltoppers' outfield threat. He has added his base running ability to the formidable lineup.

Coach Jack Clayton has stepped in to head the baseball crew this year in the absence of Coach Diddle. It is already a mixed field as big son, a top pitcher from the Tuskegee High, will be on the mound again this season.

Chapel Is Painless

By Joe Walsh

Contrary to popular belief, chapel does not mean a snore, Dr. L. Creighton Monday morning.

Don't misunderstand me, I'm not going to say that chapel was my favorite hang-out. Let me tell you what happened.

When I entered the auditorium I thought I'd better sit down because some of the people's snoring was so loud...er, er... rant... rant... rant... that I think I'd been seen I would have been labeled a social misfit. But I'm not one to give in to peer pressure.

The first thing I noticed when entering the auditorium, I noticed the presence of people, and then I realized I was entering a room full of people. I have heard that only teachers and fellow students are allowed to attend chapels. Suddenly a burning thought struck me. What if I'm one of the few who can't stand spending 20 minutes with people? But I'm not one to give in to peer pressure, and I decided to stay.

The entrance of an institution such as Memphis would mean a big step up in the football world, and I plan to make a powerful basketball race... Here is the vote for the entrance of Memphis State to the O. U. C.

Toppers' Netters Again Led By Big Three Champs

Shannon, Gray, Moore—This "Big Three" led the Toppers in the V.C.C. tennis championship last season—and all three are back on hand to exert their court supremacy this spring.

Last season Shannon, Gray and Moore played the number one, two and three positions respectively. With practice only a week gone there is a possibility of a shake-up in the positioning this season.

Lynn Shastoon, a junior biology major from Kingsport, Tn., came molding the number one position last year. The class junior is one of the most polished players in the conference and is second only to two members of Murray who is one of the top players in the country. Shastoon caused a booming, derivative Austrian style service which throws his opponents off-stride constantly. Lynn will present the bigBaseline in the Toppers' attack this season.

Coach Ted Hornback will again coach the tennis team and he is to be congratulated on turning out the conference's top teams year after year. The Toppers posted a 19-1 record last year and are favorites to nail down the Flag this year.

Western Teachers Have Unusual Hobbies

"Young man, get a hobby, preferably the one given by Edward NEWTON many years ago," said a member of the College Heights Herald staff. "And many of you Westerners realize the pleasures that can be gained from hobbies." Many college professors at a recent meeting reported that they receive far more enjoyment from unusual hobbies than from conventional ones.

Dr. L.Y. Lancaster, of the Biology department, is interested in hunting, fishing, and poaching. In his free time, he enjoys collecting antique firearms. Through the study of antique firearms and general literature, he has learned many useful facts about hunting.

Mr. J.M. Hargrove, of the History department, is interested in the Civil War. People in many areas of this country want to know the history of the "bog rifles" or "hickory-faced" rifles because they were used during the Civil War. Some have been found only at bog killing times.

The revival of interest in antique firearms has been very widespread. There are approximately 50,000 antique firearm collections in the United States. This National Museum Listing Rifle Auction Society has two meetings each year, one in Friendship, Indiana. Dr. Lancaster attended the fall meeting in September of last year.

After Dr. Lancaster finds an old rifle, he reconditions it. He has four hunting rifles and one shotgun in firing order and has actioned them for several times. He and several students at Western are members of the Eastern Gun Club. The term "Eastern Gun Club" is derived from the gun club located near Dr. Lancaster's home.

Only those using antique firearms for hunting have been considered as "collectors." Even though Dr. Donald Wilgen, of the English department, was called "all collectors are crazy," he is an avid collector of old hillbilly and folk song recordings. He has made more than a hundred of his collection. Several years ago, this interest led him to organize a ballad club. He is now gathering material to write a book concerning the relation of folk songs to hillbilly recordings. He writes hillbilly revue columns for International Dairy and for Hillbilly Book Review Journal, which is published in England. He became interested in hillbilly recordings in the early 1900s and since that time has collected a collection of 2,000 hillbilly and hillbilly recordings. He is especially interested in obtaining all the recordings of certain songs and discovering hillbilly versions of folk songs. Dr. Wilgen says his students have been very helpful in his collection.

Cuba photograph has fascinated Dr. M.J. Claggart, of the Foreign Language department. For almost ten years, his pictures of wild flowers have been accepted by several famous and she has been listed several years in Who's Who in Nature Photography. She photographs wild flowers in their natural habitat with a 35-millimeter camera with close equipment.

Dr. J.B. Whitney, of the Biology department, is interested in color photography, but he doesn't limit his interests to one hobby. He has traveled extensively and is interested in gardening, golfing and running rabbits.

Dr. Gordon Wilson, head of the English department, is an enthusiasm writer. One of the stops for studying birds is at the wet weather lakes bordering the Mammouth Cave area. In recent years he has been especially interested in birds in the Mammouth Cave area. He is especially concerned with the northern migration and winter waves and with the number of different species. Since each year, in late he has reached his highest total, observing 135 species. This year he has observed 134 species. Dr. Wilson is the founder of the Kentucky Ornithological Society, is a member of the Kentucky Varible Society and has contributed many articles about birds to various publications.

Mr. Hugh Johnson, of the Mathematics department, has a collection of 300 models. These are tiny figures carved by Japanese artisans. These models have a fascinating history. In the 1900s, the Japanese workers kites, kites, kites and sashes with no models. They found necessary to sell a way to carry small articles. They devised a three with a cord to slip through the sack. At the end of the cord there is a fish, which at first was a stick or small bird. Eventually, however they began to carve them from box wood, later from ivory and jade. In the late 19th century, wealthy Japanese spent much money for models of special design. Their creations became so popular that his techniques and materials are now used all over the world. The day after you have been interested in keeping these models, you will be interested in making them. The day after you have been interested in keeping these models, you will be interested in making them.
